To the dairyman the summer protection of his cows is a matter of considerable importance. They require protection from the sun's rays when these are so warm as to produce discomfort; from flies during the fly season, and from rainstorms, which are often cold, prolonged and severe. Neglecting to furnish protection in any of these respects results usually in seriously lessening milk yields. Such protection is beneficial to all classes of domestic animals, but it is especially important in the case of cows because of the relatively high value of the milk product which they furnish. Cows are, of course, protected from the sun's rays when they are provided with shade. This may be in the form of trees growing in the pasture, or in a place easily accessible. Sometimes a cheap roof sustained by poles and covered with straw; placed in the pasture, or access to the yard or stable enables the cows to secure the necessary protection from the heat of the sun. These means answer very well until the fly season arrives. It is then that their chief defects are most apparent, as they furnish breeding places in which the flies multiply with great rapidity. The best shade is the ordinary stable. As a rule it is cool, while the flies might be in a great measure excluded. Basement stables are especially suitable for use in summer, because of their great relative coolness.

Absolute protection from flies during the hot season is not always practical. It may mean an excessive outlay for materials used in the spraying of the animals. Usually a mixture of fish oil and crude carbonic acid makes a cheap and effective protection against the annoyance of flies. Everything possible should certainly be done to promote the comfort of the cows during the fly season. One of the best methods is to keep them in the stables during the day. These should be thoroughly ventilated, and yet kept so dark that flies do not care to stay, much less to work in them. Another method is to cover the animals with blankets made of light, coarse, cheap material. They are kept in place by elastic bands, but are not altogether satisfactory, as the whole body is not covered.

Keeping the cows in the stable during the day throughout the summer season is a practice that has many commendable features. It furnishes more of coolness than the other forms of shade, gives the most perfect form of protection from flies, saves pasture and makes it practicable to supply the cows with succulent food in the form of soiling crops. The chief objection to it is the amount of labor involved both in feeding the animals and in keeping the stable clean. If the manure is promptly removed to the fields and the yards freely sprinkled with lime, will be possible to make this method a source of increasing satisfaction to the dairy farmer. The cows should have a good pasture in which to run at night, and should be provided with plenty of good drinking water at all times. Dairy cows that are yielding a large quantity of milk are not, as a rule, injured by a gentle summer rain, but are usually grateful for it. The case is different, however, when they are subjected to violent storms. In early spring and late autumn long and cold rains sometimes last two or three days at a time. Even occasionally mid-summer storms occur that do the cows harm. Prolonged exposure to one such storm may result in a material lessening of the milk flow, which it may be difficult to recover for many days afterward. There can be no question as to the wisdom of housing dairy cows at night as soon as the hours of darkness are cool enough to produce any discomfort.

"O! MY POOR HEAD" Stop Those Headaches.

Headache and neuralgia are pronounced signs of blood poisoning. This poisoning of the blood comes from the waste matter of the body being left in the system, instead of being regularly carried off by the bowels, kidneys and skin.

When the bowels do not move regularly, the refuse is absorbed by the blood. Thus, the blood is loaded with foul poisons which irritate the nerves.

Poor skin action also causes headache and neuralgia. Impurities cannot escape through the skin, so the blood must take them up and deposit them on the nerves.

If the bowels and skin are not ridding the system of waste, the kidneys try to do so and are overworked.

There is just one way to cure headaches and neuralgia—to regulate the bowels, kidneys and skin so that all the poisons of the body will be properly carried off.

"Fruit-a-tives" keep blood pure and rich—relieve the stomach and kidneys—regulate the bowels; and invigorate the skin to healthy action. "Fruit-a-tives" are a wonderful discovery, being a combination of fruit juices and tonics. 50c a box—six for $2.50. At all dealers, or from "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Council Meeting.

The town council met Monday night, all members present.

The Town Treasurer's report for March showed tax collections amounting to a little over $300, and a deficit at the Bank on March 31st amounting to $2608.55. The mayor said it was high time the board made a move to collect the large amount due on last year's assessment. The council should wake up and assert itself.

Coun Hagerman reported that the Water Committee had decided that Dr Camber's bill for a new copper hotwater tank should not be paid.

Coun Thorne wanted to know if the new Supt of Water Works had signed a contract. Coun Hagerman replied that the contract had not yet been drawn up, but he would see that it is completed within a few days.

Coun Hagerman reported that the electric pump broke down on Saturday, one of the coils burning out. Water is now being pumped by the old steam outfit. Mayor Balmain said something should be done along the line of making a settlement with the McDougall Company. They should either make the present pump come up to specifications, or put one in that would. It was decided that the contractors be notified that in the event of their failure to make things satisfactory the town will bring an action for damages.

Bills and accounts were read. Several "legacies" from last year were received, one item being included in a bill from James Carr, for the use of a horse last summer. Mr Carr also billed the town $72 for 24 days work as Supt during March, after his resignation had been accepted. On motion Mr Carr will be asked to appear before the council Friday night to talk the matter over.

Geo E Phillips was granted permission to put a hydrant in the cellar of his new house, at his own expense.

Coun Thorne informed the council he as chairman of the License Committee had instructed the Chief of Police to enforce the dog tax. After June 1st all dogs without the tag will be destroyed.

The yearly motion in favor of a sidewalk for Richmond street was unanimously put through. It was decided to get in communication with a competent man with a view to securing a proper survey of the streets.

Coun Fawcett started a discussion on the beer question. He said the present license law is nothing but a farce. Two or three men paid the license, and the rest sold right on just the same. There was something wrong. He moved that the law be repealed. Coun Thorne said he agreed with Coun Fawcett that conditions were pretty bad. He thought there was very little sense in licensing beer shops anyway. It was either right or wrong to sell beer. If right, no license is necessary; if wrong, proceed under the Scott Act. In order to have the question threshed out he would second Coun Fawcett's motion, providing he would make it so that the proposed repeal would come into effect June 1st, thereby giving time to consider what course shall be taken for the future. Coun Fawcett agreed to the proposition.

A lengthy discussion ensued, the other four councillors taking the ground that there are some good features in the beer law, but all

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have gone by the board, and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, nervousness, dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper in plain, no-hocus-pocus, humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute, but the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequalled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—only to three a dose. Much imitated but never equalled.

Eggs Boiled Hard By a Warm Rain.

WATERFALL, Pa., April 1—The past two days has been remarkable for the number of warm rains which have fallen. The showers have been so hot that the ground is sending up clouds of steam, and all the early vegetables are having a forced growth as strong as if they were in a hothouse.

One shower on Saturday was so hot that for a time conditions were serious. Fortunately it did not last long enough to do much damage. Not a great amount of rain fell, but what there was of it was almost at a boiling point.

Chickens that could not find a place of refuge were scalded and their feathers fell off just as though they had been prepared for the market. There are any number of dogs that today look as if they had the mange, all due to the hot rain.

John McLario, who was on his way to market with a basket of eggs was caught in the shower and forced to abandon his wagon. He and his horse fled to a nearby barn. When the rain ceased and he went after his eggs, he found them all hard-boiled.
