Hartland.

C.P.R. engine left the track at lower extremity of the village on Monday morning last, rolled over embankment carrying engineer and fireman with it, whose escape from death was a miracle. Both crawled out from the wreck. Engine badly damaged.

On Sunday evening last two men were brought in from the Miramichi, badly injured by an explosion of dynamite. They were employed on the Transcontinental Railway but are now being cared for at the Commercial Hotel.

John T. G. Carr attended funeral of the late Mayor Thorne on Saturday last.

The friends of N. Foster Thorne were surprised and shocked on receipt of the news of his death, and his demise will be felt in the SENTINEL office and affairs of your town and with visiting friends. He was a rising young man of promise whose loss cannot be otherwise than regretted. We extend warmest sympathy to the bereaved whom we hope will find comfort in the promise "I will be a father to the fatherless and the widow's God."

Wesley Shaw, lumberman, mill operator and farmer, was buried from his home in Carleton on Sunday last. Rev. Mr. Giberson, officiated minister, preached in the church which was packed to its utmost. The Orangemen took part in the burial service.

A member of the firm of Charles Joseph & Co., Hartland, left for Quebec and Montreal on Monday last to buy goods for spring and summer trade.

Hartland is the home of our Prov. Secretary whose duties are so arduous that he is compelled to be absent the greater portion of his time. Has a fine establishment in the south end of the village and convenient to his steam saw mill.

A fire broke out in McElheney Hotel, between 10 and 11 a.m. on Sunday last, which caused considerable damage. Supposed to have caught between ceiling and floor.

We expect an interesting religious service on Thursday afternoon. Evangelist Bell to be here.

We anxiously await the inauguration of a new Editor for the SENTINEL. The writer has outlived them all from the beginning and they have not been numerous:—Seger, McLaughlin, Samuel and James Watts, N. Foster Thorne. My first letter for publication was written for said paper 60 years ago, encouraged so to do by its then Editor and proprietor, Jas. McLaughlin.

Go to J. O. Everett's for marriage license and collection of accounts.

W. A. Hagerman, sr., is clerking for Hagerman & Baird.

Quite a number on the sick list. Dr. Curtis and Macintosh are on the move constantly.

Harris Keswick who has been confined to the house for some days, is around again.

Fred Crawford is at home in the village after having cooked in the woods during the season for Crawford & Orser and declares no one was injured during the job. He is among the best of the cooks and will be engaged on the drive.

March second and snowing, appearance of a heavy fall.

Rev. Mr. Jenkins has announced special meetings commencing this week.

Donald Matheson, as regular as a clock with his supply of oil, has a good team and knows how to handle it. If the oil was a grade better quality it would be appreciated. The fault is not his.

Just a few horse blankets left at Everett's agency which will be sold at cost rather than kept over.

Indications are that certain matrimonial contracts will soon be consummated. Remember Everett's for license.

S. S. Miller of Estey & Curtis, is on a business trip to Boston, New York and Philadelphia for two weeks.

The metallic ceiling sold by Lewis McFarlane is all the rage in said line.

AGAINST ST. JOHN RIVER SURVEY

O. S. Crockett Much Perturbed at Efforts to Make Stream Navigable.

CARVELL SCORES HIM

Member for Carleton Surprised at His Attitude, Particularly as Fredericton Board of Trade Wished That Work Should Be Undertaken.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—Yesterday was very much a New Brunswick day. Mr. Crockett was looking for trouble, and found all that was coming to him. He discovered that some imprudent remarks of his during the campaign had been remembered and when Dr. McAllister reminded him of his references to "fate and fool surveys," the ball of contention was started.

In his reply, Crockett referred to the member for Carleton and said: "This survey of the waters of the St. John river characterized as a fool survey, and it has been so treated by the people living in the St. John valley. It was the subject of nothing but amusement during the campaign. Mr. Hanson was put into a tow boat and got a number of friends and engaged a number of electors living along the valley of the St. John, and they sported up and down the St. John river during the campaign and pretended to take soundings at a cost of nearly $5,000, as the minister has stated."

Then, in reply to Mr. McAllister, Mr. Crockett used the parliamentary denial that he "was not aware" that the surveys had been made at the request of two prominent Conservatives, Messrs. Shaw and Bull.

Mr. Carvell said in part in reply: "I would like to point out to him, what I have pointed out within a year in this house, that this survey of the St. John river was done at the request of a public meeting in Woodstock, attended by a number of influential people from his own constituency, including the board of trade from his own city, who came to Woodstock and joined the board of trade of that town in passing a resolution asking me to use my influence with the government to have this survey made in order to ascertain if it would not be possible to have water communication between Woodstock and Fredericton during a longer period of the year. I brought the matter before the minister of public works and his department, and they went into it; and I think it comes with poor grace from the hon. member for York to refer to this as a fake survey. No man knows better than he does that there never was a more genuine attempt made to secure a public improvement. The hon. gentleman has referred to Mr. Hanson, who was employed in the work. He would not say to Mr. Hanson's face what he has said tonight; and he would not say with regard to another gentleman—and a good Conservative at that—Mr. Miles, who was employed on that survey, what he has said tonight; and I do not think he would say in his own constituency what he has said tonight."

"It is not very often that we bother calling the hon. gentleman down but there are times when even the patience of a long-suffering man like myself is exhausted. My hon. friend knows the necessity of that work. He knows that if we succeeded in demonstrating to this government that we could extend the water communication down the river St. John three or four months in the year it would be one of the greatest boons that could be conferred on that part of the province. I happen to know the nature of the report of one of the gentlemen who made this survey and he is very hopeful that navigation to a depth of eight or nine feet can be obtained by the expenditure of a very small amount of money. I commend the minister of public works for continuing this investigation, and hope he will succeed in demonstrating that by dredging the river we can have at a reasonable cost the navigation we desire. While my hon. friend from York may not wish to see anything done by this government that will gain credit for it in the eyes of the people, I can assure him that if the Liberal representatives from New Brunswick can do anything to benefit the people, we will do it, regardless of whether the hon. member from York likes it or dislikes it."

Mr. Crockett retorted that he had nothing to take back and referred to the fact that the engineer had been known as the "hydrograph" ever since. He made some statements about the uselessness of the survey which gave Mr. Carvell an opportunity to recite the facts and in conclusion he said:

"It is just as well that my hon. friend and the people should know this. I have seen the plans and profile of the upper twenty-five or thirty miles of that work and there are three or four thousand places in this twenty-four miles that required the survey without which the department would have no knowledge on which to come to the conclusion as to the dredging of the river. If my hon. friend would spend as much time trying to find out the facts of each case as in reading a paper called the Gleaner, published in Fredericton, which throws insulting terms at everybody employed by this government to do anything, he would know more about the subject than he has given evidence of tonight."

And there was no reply.
