Our Weekly Story.

King Cophetus of Klondyke.

I came down into the big place they called the rotunda one evening after supper and there saw something that looked familiar. It was settled down sort of awkwardly into one of those big, deep, leather arrangements with polished arms. It had on a black slouch hat and a red necktie that was of that sensible kind tied by the man that makes 'em and all you have to do is to slip a metal thing into place and hook her on—you know the kind? Handy, ain't they? What was I saying? Oh, yes!—and a pair of store-made boots with the trousers pulled down over them—and you've guessed it—that was Bill.

'Hello,' he says with a grin. Being polite and not having seen him for a long time, I said 'Hello' too.

'Been waiting for you,' he says, after we'd sat quiet for a while, because we didn't either of us have anything to say after that first trade of 'hellos.'

'So?' I says. 'What's up?' I was interested. I didn't know but what he was broke and began to wonder how I could lend him money without hurting his feelings.

'Want to show you something,' he goes ahead, stumbling over his words like a boy speaking a piece at school when his daddy's ridden for miles over the range to hear him. 'Want your advice—want you to come along with me.'

It was evening and the electric lights were shining outside. I don't like to run around a great big city like Seattle after sundown. I ain't afraid out on the range, even if there's a million Sioux on the war-path; but I do get gun-shy when I'm in a place where everything, from a sandbagger to a street-car, sneaks up and tries to kill you whenever you step outside after dark. Once there was a policeman told me I'd better hire a nurse and—but that's another story. Anyhow, I couldn't get out of going with Bill McLean that night.

We acted like a pair of stage-robbers. We pulled our hats down over our eyes and I went up-stairs and examined my Colts before I started. He took me around and around through streets until I was all tangled up and had crossed my trail a hundred times; and then we went into a summer garden sort of place where there were lots of lights, a stage at the end, palm trees in pots, little arbors and tables, and a night-shift of plug-nugly serving things to drink to men in swallow-tailed coats and more shirt-front than I've ever worn. Mighty pretty woman in there too. Bill said there'd be more after the shows let out. Anyway, it looked pretty to me to a fellow just out of Alaska—something like the pictures in magazines where all the men folks look very clean and strong and all the women very beautiful and happy. We slid into one of the arbor places, in the darkest corner we could find, so people wouldn't be ashamed to be seen with us.

'Well?' I says—because he hadn't told me nothing on the way. 'Well?' A waiter cantered up and bowed to him.

'Hello, boy,' Bill said—just like that—and the waiter seemed right glad to meet him. He laughed. Bill slipped him a silver dollar. The waiter looked more interested than ever. I could see without spectacles that Bill looked right good to him.

'I'll see,' he said, as if they'd been talking all the time. 'I think the orchestra is coming pretty soon.'

He looked at a big tin watch. 'Half an hour before the overture, sir.'

And then he went away. Bill laughed at me, because I suppose I looked like a man that had lost his way and forgotten his name. Pretty soon a freckle-faced girl of about twenty-five, hand made, copper-plated, a timber-set high and clean looking, came in and then I knew all about it. I'm old, but it didn't give me much pain to look at her. She called Bill 'Willy!' What do you think of that! I laughed. She looked at me as if wondering what reservation I'd broken loose from and whether the Indian agents were after me. He introduced me.

'I'm real pleased to make your acquaintance, Miss Marguerite Smith,' I said, still feeling the necessity for being polite, and to show her that even if I was from the backwoods I knew what was what and how to meet a lady. I knocked my chair over with my boot-heel when I sat down, and the waiter picked it up—me, too! Hang it!—I can't see why I always tangle my feet and hands when I'm around women folks.

Bill—'Willy'—grinned at her like a baboon in a circus, and they kind of lost me in the shuffle, for which I didn't pine away so's you could notice. They talked till a fellow came along and said she must go. I didn't say anything when she left and Bill—'Willy'—watched her go with a self-satisfied look, as much as to say—'Ain't I in society all right?'

Ain't I the flossy old sour dough? The orchestra struck up and she was part of it. It was all made up of ladies—twenty of 'em—all dressed in white just like she was. She played the piano—and, I want to tell you right here, she could beat it to a bunch of scrap ivory and a few kindling for a camp-fire. But there was another girl that had black hair—done up like this—who looked like heaven to me, and who stood up, in front and played the fiddle—but that ain't got anything to do with the story either.

Stomach Catarrh

Watery Risings, Belching Gas Digestive Weakness.

Fred M. McKenzie recommends scientific treatment that cured him.

New discoveries in the line of medical treatment have come before the profession of late years with almost alarming rapidity, but one that promises to outdistance all others in the treatment of stomach and digestive troubles is Ferrozone, which is a scientific combination of vegetable extracts and juices that soothe the stomach and improves digestion in a truly wonderful way.

So many are interested in finding a really good stomach medicine, that Mr. McKenzie, one of the most prominent citizens in Cambridge, tells of a remedy he proved to be a "cure."

"Although my appetite was poor and I ate little, I always had the sensation of having eaten too much. I experienced weight and oppression an hour or two after eating. Often I had heartburn, risings of a bitter liquid, coated tongue and bad breath. There was a continual gnawing pain in my stomach, especially before meals.

Bad Case Cured.

"No case of Catarrh of the stomach and digestive organs could be worse than mine. I suffered the limit of human endurance. For two years I doctored but didn't find the real remedy until I got Ferrozone, what a blessing this preparation must be to all mankind. I took one Ferrozone tablet at the close of each meal and in one week improved. In a month, although not cured, the improvement was steady. I continued to use Ferrozone for three months and was restored to robust perfect health. I would urge every man to try Ferrozone—in many ways it will do good."

In all cases of Weak Stomach, Indigestion, Nervousness, Palpitation of the Heart, Insomnia, General Debility, Chronic Dyspepsia, and all wasting disease use Ferrozone, no remedy will so surely and quickly restore one to the full vigor of health and strength.

When you take Ferrozone every thing you eat tastes good, and every bit of the nutriment that your food contains is assimilated and appropriated by the blood and tissues. Try Ferrozone, all dealers, 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Get it today.

Care of Horses.

When two horses become accustomed to working together don't change them.

In matching up the work teams mate them in size, weight and disposition as nearly as possible.

It is very hard on a prompt horse to be obliged to work with a lazy one.

The wear and tear is great and unnecessary, and a loss.

Never tolerate a man on the farm who yanks, kicks or whips a horse. In no case should the colt be allowed to follow when the mare is at work.

Sow a good patch of carrots for the horses this year, if you never have before.

Do not bang the bits against the horses teeth. Be patient and he will open his mouth.

Break your colts to walk down hill. Now, that may mean that you will have to break yourself first, for it seems to be natural to hurry horses down hill. It is a bad plan.

Don't toggle your harnesses up with strings. No surer way to invite trouble; have everything stout.

Get a first class horse dentist to look over the teeth of every horse on the farm, young and old.—Farm Journal.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS. The following timely suggestions from the columns of an exchange may prove of value to our community at this season of the year.

Here are the suggestions: If your store front, residence or fence is dingy, order it painted.

If your awning is old, torn or faded, get a new one.

If your sidewalk, gate or fence needs repairing, fix it.

If your advertising sign is old or faded, take it down or paint it.

Resolve never to throw paper in the street.

Take all the dandelions out of your lawn; they spoil its beauty.

Destroy the weeds that are straying on your property and on your neighbor's property.

Burn all the rubbish possible; allow no one to throw it on streets, alleys or vacant lots.

Promise not to spit on the sidewalk.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

Pneumonia's Race with Consumption

These Two Diseases Now Down Annually Ten Times More than War and Famine Combined.

At this season, of the two evils pneumonia is most to be feared. It develops quickly and if not taken in time leaves the patient but a slim chance for his life. Look out for the little cold, don't let it run—keep it from developing into pneumonia or consumption.

Who knows of a real trustworthy remedy that can be relied on to cure colds as quickly as Nerville, it is impossible to find anything that draws out inflammation, cases that tight, congested feeling gives such sure relief as Nerville. Why for fifty years in thousands of homes no other medicine is even kept. "Sometimes I hurried off to work without an overcoat," writes Mr C C Hinckley, of New London, "and as a consequence caught severe chills. I neglected the cold that was tightening around me and finally La Grippe held me in its grip and I was taken to bed as helpless as a child. I feared pneumonia most, but fortunately I had lots of Nerville in the house. When it was well rubbed into my chest, a hard, tearing cough loosened up, I used Nerville as a gargle and got ease in my throat in a few hours. Every four hours I took half a teaspoonful of Nerville in hot sweetened water to break up the fever and chills. My chest felt weak and tender after this attack and for several weeks I wore a Nerville Porous Plaster which strengthened my chest and prevented a relapse.

"I can recommend Nerville as the best and only cure for coughs, colds, tight chest, sciatica and rheumatic pains."

Don't be misled into taking anything but "NERVILLE," fifty years, success stands behind it. Large 25c bottles at all dealers.

Faith Restored. Young Wife (as a beggar gobbles down one of her biscuits)—"Thank heaven! That fellow makes me believe in myself again."—Megendorfer Blaetter.

A DOOR FOR THE BILIOUS.—The liver is a very sensitive organ and easily deranged. When this occurs there is undue secretion of bile and the acid liquid flows into the stomach and sours it. It is a most distressing ailment, and many are prone to it. In this condition a man finds the best remedy in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are warranted to speedily correct the disorder. There is no better medicine in the entire list of pill preparations.
