To Abolish the Fly.

It happens every day, and so one pays very little attention. Maybe it is the butter, or perhaps the slice of bread alongside one's plate. Or else, quite possibly, it is the milk in the pitcher. But, whatever it is that attracts the omnipresent fly, its appearance, as it crawls over the food on the table, is unappetizing. The health authorities of New York City estimate that about one-half of the deaths from typhoid in the metropolis annually are attributable to the distribution of the germs by flies. But, serious as this matter is it is of vastly less importance than the destruction of human life, particularly that of young children, by the bowel complaints which these insects are chiefly instrumental in spreading. It is reckoned that deaths from these latter maladies in New York would be reduced from 7,000 to about 2,000 a year if proper precautions were taken to prevent the breeding of flies.

The insects will breed in fermenting vegetable or animal material of almost any kind. Garbage suits them first-rate. The maggots and chrysalids have been found in great numbers in rotten straw mattresses, among old cotton garments, and even in waste paper that had been exposed to wet.

Now, so far as stables are concerned which are accountable for ninety-five per cent of the fly output in cities, the hatching of the insects can be absolutely prevented by the simple device of putting all manure into a covered receptacle, and removing the contents once a week. This receptacle should be a watertight bin or pit, provided with a cover, so as to prevent the ingress and egress of flies.

The additional methods demanded are the following: Abolish all unsanitary outhouses. Allow no accumulations of filth of any kind. Compel people to put all their garbage in covered cans, and remove the contents at least once a week. Compel owners of abattoirs to keep all refuse in covered receptacles, and remove such waste at least once a week. From "Poisoner a Table Guest," in July Technical World Magazine.

CARLETON ELECTION CASE—JUDGMENTS THIS MORNING

Decision on all points is Favorable to Mr Upham, M. P. P.

(Special to Globe.)

Fredericton, July 2.—The Supreme Court met this morning, those present being the Chief Justice and Judges White and Barry. The following judgments were delivered: William J. Owens vs Geo W. Upham. The Chief Justice read the judgment setting aside the order fixing the 17th of August next for the trial on both grounds that the petition had not been published, as the act required, and that it had not been posted in the registry office as required by the act. The unanimous opinion of the court was that the rule be made absolute to set aside the order with costs, and with costs of opposing the summons to set the case down for trial. A like judgment was given in the case of the order extending the time for trial. The decision is in favor of the sitting member Mr Upham on all the issues of the case and practically confirms him in his seat.

A Canadian Navy.

It is encouraging to note that even the newspapers which are generally of the Montreal Star's way of thinking do not join in the deprecating the creating of a Canadian navy on the ground that we are incapable of doing so, because of our inherent addiction to corruption. It stands almost alone in that "blazing indiscretion." There are, of course, differences of opinion. There are those who favor tribute, notwithstanding the humiliating associations that history assigns to the word. They are able to emphasize the difficulties that would be encountered in treading a wholly new path and the magnitude of the task of getting officers and sailors to man our vessels when they are built. No one supposes, however, that we could forever avoid the necessity of forming a fleet, and if it has to be undertaken some time we might as well make a beginning at it now. We can only learn to walk by walking. It is true that in the early stages we might not add very materially to Britain's sea strength, but every year would see an improvement in that respect.

It is urged in some quarters that the formation of a Canadian navy would only be a bad incentive to the building of fleets on this continent. The idea has also been set forth in some United States papers. A St. Louis paper said recently that it would be a "supreme folly" for Canada to build a fleet, and arrives at this conclusion because she has two fleets upon which she could call in time of trouble, the British fleet and the United States fleet. "As part of the American continent," the writer says, "she could, in an extremity, call on the United States to aid her against any foreign Government, and the United States, in defence of the Monroe principle, would be constrained to go to her defence."

The St. Louis writer overlooks a fact that is too often lost sight of over there—namely, that Canadians are people of very much the same flesh and blood as they are—and if he will imagine the people of the United States calling upon some outside power to come and defend them he will have a better appreciation of the situation. The other alternative—namely, calling upon the British navy to come to our aid—just raises the whole issue. That would be quite right. We would expect to be protected by the whole might of the British navy if it were needed, but we ought also to do something for ourselves, and be of some use to Britain in her day of trial. The whole tenor of the article shows that the writer is not seized of this self-respecting attitude on our part, nor of the profound fact that Britain's enemy is Canada's enemy, even though our shores were not threatened at all.

One portion of the article especially merits a reference: "One of the effects of the creation of a navy by Canada," the writer continues, "would be an incentive on our part to increase our naval defences. This programme would cause irritation between two neighbors who have maintained cordial relations with each other, except for a few brief interruptions, ever since the close of war of 1812. But this Canadian naval programme would arouse a feeling of distrust on our side of the border, and would entail an additional expense on each country, without doing any good to either, or to anybody." If this should be a consequence of the formation of a Canadian navy it would be a very regrettable one. We do not think the fear is well founded, however. The United States is creating one of the strong and efficient navies of the world. It is altogether likely that in no long time it will be second to none. It is doing this without any incentive that Canada has supplied. Any fleet that may be formed in our waters need not and will not cause any forebodings at Washington. If there is any feeling there about the matter at all it should be one of satisfaction. The only thinkable causes in which a United States navy would be called into active operation would be in defence of white supremacy on this continent. In defence of either of those causes we believe the United States could depend upon Canada's assistance to the extent of her powers whatever they happened to be. They might be little, but they would be there to the last ounce. We cannot conceive of Canada standing tamely by while either of these issues was in danger of subversion. We are for the status quo on this continent, and would strain our resources in maintenance of it. We cannot believe, therefore, that enlightened opinion in the United States would regard the beginnings of a Canadian navy with anything but approval.—Weekly Globe

MOST POPULAR LABOR LODGE?

Vote for your Favorite.

Which is the most popular Labor Lodge in the Maritime Provinces? Is it the B. O. F. E. of Moncton, the S. L. U. of St John, the P. W. A. of Springhill, the U. M. W. A. of Glace Bay, or some other of the many popular and powerful labor organizations in these provinces by the sea.

The Moncton Daily Times will conduct an election to determine this interesting question—and incidentally to help the big Labor Day celebration at Moncton. Any and every person, men, women and children, may vote for their favorite lodge and vote as often as they wish. This is universal suffrage. The ballots will be printed The Daily Times each day and can be obtained in no other way. A committee consisting of the Labor editor of The Times, the Editor of the Eastern Labor News, and the chairman of the general committee of the Labor Day celebration will supervise the election, count the ballots and announce the award.

BARNES—CROCKER.

Pilgrim Descendant is Wedded To-day Braintree Bride Will Enjoy Summer Trip Through Europe.

BRAINTREE, June 28.—This morning at 10 o'clock, at the home of Mr and Mrs Oscar M Crocker of Hollis av, their daughter, Miss Mabel Monroe Crocker, was united in marriage to Edwin N C Barnes of the Symphony chambers, Back Bay, the son of Rev J N Barnes, for many years the home missionary of the United Baptists of Canada.

The ceremony was performed by Rev J Stanley Durkee, P D pastor of the First Baptist church of Boston. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs Margaret E Crocker, and the groomsmen were Wilford D Gray of Woburn. Little Miss Marjorie Seavey, the daughter of Mr and Mrs Homer Seavey of Westford, and a pupil of Mr Barnes, acted as flower girl. The marriage ceremony was witnessed by only the members of both families. The bride was gowned in a traveling dress. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served.

Mr and Mrs Barnes left this afternoon for St John, N. B., and after touring the provinces of New Brunswick and Quebec they will board an ocean steamship at Quebec for Liverpool.

Miss Crocker is one of the best-known young women of this town, and is a direct descendant of Dr Fuller, and physician of the Mayflower. In the celebrated Fuller cradle, a family heirloom, now loaned to the Pilgrim museum at Plymouth, Miss Crocker was rocked as a child, as were the children of the preceding generations of her family. She was educated at Thayer academy, South Braintree, and at the Chicago university, graduating from there two years ago. During her wedding trip in Europe this summer Mrs Barnes will make a study of English elocutionary methods.

Mr Barnes is a descendant of a family whose name has been on the rolls of the British army and navy for many generations. His father, Rev J N Barnes, was the first member of the family to break away from the military life, and he chose the church. Mr Barnes' ancestors were officers in the British army during the revolutionary war and the war of 1812 and were among the founders of Parr Town, St John, N. B.

Mr Barnes has been in this country for 15 years and is the author of novels of a sociological nature, among the best known being "The Reconciliation of Randall Claymore" and "By Right of Rescue." He is a vocal teacher with a studio in the Symphony chambers, Boston. During his wedding trip in England he will study voice, choir training and English public school music.

One Dose for Coughs

Children cough at night? Give them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Often a single dose at bedtime will completely control the cough. Good for any one with a cold or cough. Good for easy cases, hard cases; good for acute cases, chronic cases. Ask your doctor to tell you, honestly and frankly, just what he thinks of this old standard remedy. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
