Georgia Letter.

DEAR SENTINEL,—This is March 3rd, 1909, with the usual March wind at high pressure as well as low, for it lifts the dust skyward and carries the pedestrians hat earthward. This is the first real March day we have had, February was a wet month over 8 days of rain. Our ground is too wet to plow and much damage has been done to gardens by the cold, but now peach trees are blooming and forest trees show signs of leaving out.

Our state is growing in improvements, our large rivers are being harnessed up to furnish our state with power to run factories of all kinds, run railroad cars, light the traveler to some extent the night marauders in their dark deeds. Our little city is to be a distributing point from this useful current from three power plants, and we have the promise of an electric railway from Atlanta to Macon and to other points in Georgia run by this same invisible power.

I was very sorry to read in your last number of the death of your Editor, Mr. Thorne. I never knew his name before, but thought highly of him as an editor and writer. For so young a man his future looked bright and hopeful, but God does not see as man sees, and we believe all his providences are for the final good of the afflicted, though humanity cannot see it now but will know sometime.

I wish to extend my sympathy to the bereaved wife and her children. God has promised to be the widow's God and a father to the fatherless. I point them to his promises that are sure and faithful. Truly your town has lost a useful citizen and a valuable man. But He who took him away is able to fill his place with another.

Tomorrow is to be a high day in Washington, but I won't be there. It is very likely it will be all done just about as well as if I was there. Taft is a big man in body and I hope in mind and soul, and will deal with the south. I rather think he will. I am not in love with the name Sherman, our vice-president, (or will be in about twenty-four hours,) for a man by that name did me up very naughty during his march through Ga in the sixties. I hope he will never march through 'Ga' with such a cyclone of destruction as general Sherman did with his tremendous army, tearing down and carrying off our potato hills, burning our mills, carrying off our stock and killing our hogs and cattle, carrying off what they needed and left the balance of the carcass for the natives to save if they could. But of the turkeys and hens they left not a claw. They even took my boots and all the jack-knives I had. Now Mr. Editor do you blame me for not loving the name Sherman. But thank the Lord they left me for they could have taken my head as easy as they took my boots. While I was pleading with one of the soldiers to not burn my sawmill, he comforted me with these words "You are caught in bad company." I felt like my company was not improved by his presence nor his crowd. I do not hold it against him and would give him my hand now were I to meet him. I would give both hands to the tenderhearted Irishman who cried as he saw my property going up in smoke, "there was no need for such destruction," and he was one of Sherman's men, truly.

E. T. MALLORY.

Here and There.

A story is told of an Alderman in a city not a thousand miles from St. John, who was the owner of a small dog, which was as valuable as most of the small dogs that frequent the city streets. This particular dog had the misfortune to come in violent contact with a street railway car and consequently met an untimely death. Shortly after this shocking accident, which, by the way, does not appear to have been chronicled in the daily papers of the city, an official of the Street Railway Company met the bereaved Alderman and expressed to him the very sincere regrets of the company for having caused the death of his friend, the small dog; at the same time adding that he understood it was a very valuable dog. On being assured that such was the case he invited the Alderman to call at the Company's office the following day. On doing so the Alderman was presented with an envelope containing $50. It is said that this is only one of the many charitable acts performed by the company, very few of which ever receive public mention. Now would a Street Railway Company not be a good thing for Woodstock? We probably have a thousand dogs, just the kind that are suitable for this purpose, and while we don't keep that band of Aldermen we have a lot of enterprising small boys who would be quite willing to supply the dogs at one half the price received by the Alderman referred to.

At the recent meeting of Woodstock Council, No 510, C. O. C. F., the following resolution was passed and ordered to be published in the Carleton Sentinel, Woodstock Press and Chosen Friends, also a copy to be recorded in the minutes of the Council:

To Mrs N Foster Thorne.

DEAR FRIEND,—The officers and members of the Woodstock Council, No 510 of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, do hereby extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in your recent sad bereavement in losing your dear and talented husband. May the giver of all good be a comfort to you and your dear little children. We trust that his guiding spirit may ever be with you and that He may help you to bear up for your little children's sake.

Signed on behalf of the Woodstock Council, No 510.

A telegram was received by M G Teed on Saturday from Frohisher, Sask., announcing the death of his younger brother, B R Teed, barrister there. The dispatch was sent by Rev A W Teed of Richmond, Carleton Co., who is in the west on a visit. Mr Teed was a son of John Teed of Dorchester. He graduated with the degree of M A from the U N B, and studied law in the offices of M G Teed. He practiced in Sackville for several years before going West some years ago. In addition to M G Teed and Rev A W Teed there is another brother, Dr J F Teed of Dorchester.—St John Telegraph.

C M Sherwood, Centreville, has landed another lot of "White life" Seed Wheat, grown along the border of Ontario and Manitoba, near the "Lake of the Woods" Milling Co. Hills. The introduction of this variety of Manitoba hard wheat during the past three years has been more than satisfactory. The hull of this variety is exceedingly thin, leaving a maximum amount of high grade bread flour, besides more bread per lb of flour used—conditions not possible with the different grades of soft wheat formerly grown here. To encourage the cultivation of better wheat, this seed, although high priced, is being sold at net cost.

Death of Miss Hopkins.

Beatrice Carlisle, only daughter of John S Hopkins, of Aroostook Jct., died from typhoid at her aunt, Mrs Albert Brewer, on Saturday 6th inst., aged 17 years.

Miss Hopkins who was spending the winter in Woodstock was born in Albert County. She spent the earlier part of her life in Chicago, after which in St John and Woodstock. She attended the school at Upper Woodstock and later Wolfville Academy.

On Monday Mr Raymond conducted services at the house from which the body was taken by the express to her late home at Aroostook. Interment to be made at Andover. Miss Hopkins while in Woodstock made many friends, who regret the passing so early in life of a gentle girlish companion, loving and sympathetic to old and young, an earnest Christian, one gone but not forgotten.—Com.

Emperor Williams recently received a letter from a school boy asking for assistance. The Emperor caused the case to be investigated and as a result of the investigation sent the boy sufficient money to pay his way through high school and also commended that the boy was to receive special attention from the teachers.

SAID TO BE FINE.

Few people here know that we can cure that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, everyday drugs found in any drug store. The prescription is so simple that any one can procure it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolute harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter, which, if not eradicated, either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache.
