WEAR EUREKA UNSHRINKABLE UNDERWEAR

and you will have underwear satisfaction.

EUREKA UNDERWEAR is made of ALL Nova Scotia Wool—it is the only kind that is. Nova Scotia Wool is the best for making cold weather underwear. Why? Because the sheep living on what is almost an island receive the benefits of the bracing ocean air, and ideal climate and feed on rich grazing land, this gives elasticity, silkiness and strength to the wool, which, combined, makes the softness and strength so much desired in wool used in making underwear.

EUREKA UNDERWEAR is unshrinkable in fact as well as in name. The process which has made the wool unshrinkable has taken nothing from its natural softness and pliability or from its wearing quality. This is guaranteed. If the garments shrink do not pass them on to some one else, take them to your dealer, he will cheerfully refund your money.

The fussiest man will appreciate the shapeliness, the and the wearing qualities of Eureka Underwear.

The keenest underwear buyers are impressed with the undoubted superior value offered in Eureka Underwear.

For men, in five heavy weights—Heavy (Red Eureka Label), heavier (Blue Eureka Label), and heaviest (Black Eureka Label), at medium prices; the "N. S." brand at a lower price, and the "Pictou" brand at a still lower price.

The following dealers in your vicinity sell the Eureka Underwear:

Immigration of Americans To The Dominion.

Warning his hearers that the United States is as powerless to prevent her people from following the lure of the Great Canadian Northwest as she is to prevent them and their children from throwing up their caps and shouting, "God Save the King," after they have been there a while the Rev. J. A. Macdonald was cheered by a large assemblage in the Auditorium Annex in Chicago at the opening of the "Why Go to Canada," exhibition.

Said Mr. Macdonald: "I tell you frankly, you cannot bring back to your American states those who have crossed the boundary and settled by the hundreds of thousands in western Canada. No inducements you can offer, no land schemes you may devise, no reclamation proposals or irrigation enterprises, nothing you can do will avail to bring back to your semi-arid States in the west, and the south those who have answered the call of the northern zone. They are now good Canadians, as good as any under the flag."

"They find their property secure their persons safe, their social surroundings congenial, their citizenship free. They sing 'Gave the King' as loyally as the native born, and they teach their children to honor the Union Jack. And I tell you more, you cannot completely or for long block the way of those who are still in your country, but upon whom has been laid the spell of 'No. 1 land.' You may keep them today, but tomorrow they will yearn for the land beyond the northern sky line, and in the third day they will pitch their tents under the northern lights."

The exhibition was given for the purpose of furthering the campaign which is intended to turn the tide of emigration into Canada from the States to other parts of the Union where there is land aplenty. Both state and federal governments are behind the movement, and even the railroads are backing up the cause the purpose of which is to help the United States hold on to her people.

Exhibits of grain, vegetables and products of the arid and semi-arid districts of the United States fill the Coliseum, and the show will be on for two weeks. Arguments in favor of settling in the United States west and southwest are printed and hung up all over the building.

At the banquet were Governor Deeney, of Illinois, the governors of Colorado and Wisconsin and the host was Medill McCormick of the Chicago Tribune which is also at the back of the exhibition.

Governor Deeney admitted in his speech that Canada has made greater progress in the last ten years than any nation in the world. Mr. MacDonald was cheered when he praised the United States for reclaiming their deserts and giving land to the landless from the cities, reducing the mob element and enriching the country, but he warned them again that after they had done their best, the most virile and enterprising of their people would answer the call of the hard wheat from the north and would trek over the boundary to become good Canadians.

"What's this?" demanded the customs officer, pointing to a package at the bottom of the trunk.
"That is a foreign book entitled politeness," answered the man who had just landed.
"I guess I'll have to charge you duty on it," rejoined the inspector.
"It competes with a small struggling industry in this country."

Fears Canada Will Retaliate.

(Associated Press.)

Washington, Nov. 27.—Congressman, Mann, who was chairman of the special committee on woodpulp and print paper of the last congress, and who prepared the provisions on these items as first reported to the house by the Payne tariff bill, but who was overruled by congress in the final passage of the tariff law, takes the position that the country may well be alarmed at the danger of a tariff on woodpulp and print paper under the Payne act.

Mr. Mann has prepared, and at the beginning of the forthcoming session will introduce, several bills relating to this subject. One of his measures is a joint resolution to postpone the application of the maximum tariff from April 1st, next to Jan. 1st, 1911.

Another of his resolutions provides that the maximum tariff of the United States shall be held not to apply to woodpulp and print paper shall be imported from Canada.

Mr. Mann will introduce a bill which provides that woodpulp and printing paper shall be admitted free of duty when imported from Canada, being the product thereof, on the condition precedent that Canada or the province in which the woodpulp or printing paper is manufactured shall not forbid or restrict or impose any export duty or export license fee upon printing paper, mechanically ground woodpulp or wood used in the manufacture of woodpulp.

The measures, when introduced, will be referred by the speaker to the committee on ways and means, but Mr. Mann may make a fight in the house to have them referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, of which he is the new chairman.

Mr. Mann says that unless some legislation such as he proposes be adopted, or a reciprocal treaty with Canada be agreed to, Canada smarting under the injustice of the Payne tariff law, is likely to forbid the exportation of wood from Canada to the United States.

A Christmas Box that is Worth While.

When you make a present of a periodical to a friend or a family you are really selecting a companion to influence them for good or ill during a whole year. If the acquaintances of your sons and daughters were to talk to them aloud as some periodicals talk to them silently, how quickly you would forbid the companionship! In the one case as in the other, the best course is to supplant the injurious with something equally attractive and at the same time "worth while." A food can be wholesome and utterly distasteful. Reading can be made so, too. But the Youth's Companion fills that place now in more than half a million homes. Can you not think of another family in which it is not now known where it would be joyfully welcomed?

If the $2.00 for the 1910 Volume is sent now, the new Canadian Subscriber will be entitled to all the remaining issues of 1909. If desired the publishers will hold these back and send them at Christmas time, together with the Christmas Number and The Companion's new "Venezian Calendar for 1910, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold.

Canada Control Of Her Own Navy.

(Toronto Globe.)

That Canada's fleet ought to be controlled by the Canadian people is so self-evident a proposition that it may well cause surprise that any one should entertain a contrary opinion. What risk is run by doing so? Is there a fear that the Canadian people would be slow to come to the assistance of the mother country? It would argue complete ignorance of Canadian history on the part of whoever harbored such a misgiving. In 1812 Canada was made the theatre of war, and yet the feeble, scattered communities which then constituted the Canadian provinces embarked with their whole heart and soul in a struggle which had no other interest to them than it was the mother country's quarrel. The mother country was at the time in the death grapple with Napoleon, and the Canadian people had largely to assume the defence of their own altars and fires.

At the time of the Trent affair they were found equally ready to accept all the pains and penalties as well as the glories of their British citizenship. At a later period when the late President Cleveland's Venezuela message threatened a rupture of the peace between ourselves and our neighbors Canadians did not either dodge or scuttle. They knew again that their home fields would be the first to bear the brunt of attack, but not a man suggested that in any way we should evade the responsibility attaching to our British citizenship. Not a faltering note was uttered in any quarter. The attitude of Canadians in the crisis did not escape the admiring comment of our British kinsmen. We did not hold a court to find out whether Britain was right or wrong. We only knew that she was threatened and needed help.

When the Boer war broke out a similar attitude was revealed. A new situation developed itself. Hitherto we had been called upon to defend our own soil. Now the seat of war was 7,000 miles away. But Britain needed troops, and thousands of staunch Canadian lads were despatched from Halifax to defend British interests with their lives in South Africa.

Who, then, is afraid to entrust the people of Canada with the control of their own fleet when it gets in being? Is it feared that it would be slow in answering the Empire's call? Canada has never been slow in the past. Why should there be any doubt as to the future? The management of our railways from London has not been a conspicuous success. There is no probability that a fleet managed from London would be any better off. Our fleet when we have one should be under the control of the Canadian people, and it will be as much a part of the British fleet as it needs to be.

Victor Hugo's Superstition.

(London Globe.)

An amusing story of Victor Hugo is related in a French contemporary. The poet had accepted an invitation to dine at the house of one of those ardent Republicans who at that time were wittily termed 'les precieuses radicales.'

The dinner hour had passed some time without any announcement that the dinner was served when one of the company, a friend of Victor Hugo, inquired of the hostess the cause of the delay. The latter explained that owing to one of the guests having sent an excuse at the last moment there would be thirteen instead of fourteen at the table, so she had sent to find another to make the fourteenth.

A moment later the same individual was conversing with Victor Hugo. "Do you know why we are waiting," asked the poet. "Yes," was the reply; "some imbecile is afraid to sit at table when there are thirteen." Victor Hugo in a solemn and severe tone, replied, "L'imbecile, c'est moi."

The Slaughter of the Innocents

(Newark Star.)

From 200,000 to 400,000 children in the United States die every year from preventable causes. The chief statistician of the federal census bureau is the authority for that statement. Nearly a fifth are infants under one year of age, and more than a fourth are children under five years of age. It is the conclusion of an eminent medical authority that the deaths of 47 per cent. of the children may be prevented and that 67 per cent. of the deaths of children between two and eight years are also preventable. There is, therefore, a veritable slaughter of the innocents by ignorance, inattention, neglect and poverty. Society is not as well organized as it should be when its infants are thus condemned to death by the wholesale.

Do not let a cold settle on your lungs. Resort to Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup at the first intimation of irritation in the throat and prevent diseases from lodging in the pulmonary organs. Neglected colds are the cause of untold suffering throughout the country, all of which could have been prevented by the application of this simple but powerful medicine. The price, 25 cents, brings it within the reach of all.

Does he live in a boarding house?

"No; he boards there."

"There are some songs that will never die," said the musical enthusiast.

"I guess that's right," answered Mr. Cumrox. "My daughter sits down at the piano and tries to kill a few of 'em every evening. But it's no use."

Given Up To Die

No. 100 George St., Sorel, Quebec.
"I suffered from womb disease for seven years, with dreadful pains over the front of the body, over the back and down the legs. I had indigestion and chronic constipation and the constipation was so bad that I went sometimes for ten to fifteen days without any action of the bowels. I was ill in bed for one whole year. At one time I was so low that everyone thought I was going to die and the last Rites of the Church were administered to me. I was treated by six different doctors without any benefit."

MADAME JOSEPH LORETTE

Then I got a sample of "Fruit-a-tives," but I had no faith in them at all, and I would not have taken them only my husband begged so hard for me to try them. As soon as I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" I grew better, the bloating was relieved, the sleeplessness was cured, my stomach acted, and the bowels were moved, but above all the fearful womb pains were made easier. I have taken eighteen boxes in all and I am now perfectly well again."
