U. S. SENATE HAS ADOPTED RECIPROCITY

Washington, July 22.—The passing of the Canadian reciprocity bill by the senate today, in precisely the form it emerged from the house, brings to end President Taft's long fight for the measure, but during the debate which led up to today's final action party lines were swept away and a vigorous fight was waged to saddle the measure with riders that friends of the measure claimed would have meant the defeat of the whole proposition.

Following the passage of the bill by the senate and its immediate signature by Vice-President Sherman the measure must be "messaged" back to the house who originated it, engrossed on parchment, signed by Speaker Clark, and then signed by President Taft.

The bill probably will not go to the president until his return from Beverly (Mass.), next week.

An analysis of the vote showed that 24 Republicans voted against the bill and 21 in favor of it; while three Democrats voted against it and 32 in favor of it.

Beverly, Mass., July 23.—In the first statement he has made since the passage of the reciprocity bill by the senate, President Taft at the summer White House tonight, freely acknowledged that his long, hard campaign in behalf of that measure would have proved unavailing if the Democrats had not helped him. Without such aid, the president declared, reciprocity would have been "impossible."

The statement reads as follows: "That I am very much pleased with the passage of the Canadian reciprocity bill through both houses of congress goes without saying. I believe and hope it will be followed by similar action by the dominion parliament. In my judging the going into effect of the agreement will mark a new epoch in the relations between the United States and Canada, and it will tend to a marked increase in the trade between the two countries, which will be in every way beneficial to both."

RECIPROCITY

The adoption of the reciprocity bill by the United States senate clears the decks for action in Canada. President Taft has carried his point in the teeth of bitter Republican opposition. A prominent member of that party who was in Canada a few days ago expressed great surprise to learn that there was any opposition in this country to the measure. In his view Canada was getting all the good of the

HOUSE OF COMMONS

(By our special correspondent.)

With the passing of the reciprocity bill by the Senate of the United States there has developed here a situation as unique as to be without parallel in Canadian political history. Taft and Knox have carried out their part of the agreement made last autumn, and now it remains for Laurier and Fielding to successfully live up to theirs. Whether or not they can will be decided only by the trend of political events during the remaining days of the present session of parliament.

The news of the passage of the Bill in the United States was received in grim silence by the leaders of both parties. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, while expressing his gratification was non-committal as to just what his future course will be. While as yet no new line of action has been announced by the Conservative chieftain, it is known that the obstruction tactics carried on during the past weeks will be continued. No progress will be permitted until the people themselves have pronounced on the issue in question. If then the majority of the electors once again express their confidence in the policy and leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as even the most staunch of the clear-sighted Tories admit will be the case, it must necessarily follow that Bordenites will be compelled to allow the Bill being passed.

Meanwhile the Opposition are pledged to construction and there are no possible means by which they can be compelled, in so far as the Government is concerned, to do otherwise. It would seem indeed that in this case the majority does not rule. In the face of the bare facts and the tactics employed by the Opposition since the opening of Parliament it will not be surprising if Sir Wilfrid, with a firm determination to put the Agreement through should call on a general election even sooner than is anticipated by most people at present.

Close observers of the present remarkable situation assert that an election will be brought on within two months at the very least, while some go so far as to declare that the present session will be declared off within less than ten days. Just what will happen, however, Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be the one man to decide. He it is who will say whether an appeal will be made to the people right now, within three months or a year. And the Liberal leader without a peer as a political bargain, and he could not understand why it was opposed. That many other Republicans felt the same way is shown by the prolonged and vigorous fight against the measure.

Congress having endorsed the action of President Taft; it now remains for Canada to take action. There is longer the plea that we should wait to learn what congress would do. Canada must now accept or reject the measure. There is no question as to what parliament would do if it were free to act, but the Conservative minority is able to obstruct the passage of the measure, and may force an appeal to the people before final action is taken. The delay will not be long. Hon. Mr. Paterson, addressing the Halton, Ont. Liberals on Saturday, very plainly stated the government's position. "If the opposition want to appeal to the people on the issue," said he, "we are not afraid."—Times.

strategist in Canada, can be depended upon to do that which will have the greatest effect in strengthening the hands of his own party, and in the further weakening of the Opposition.

Non-partisan observers unreservedly concede that at the present time the Government forces are better prepared to enter into a federal contest than are the Opposition.

The magnificent reception accorded Sir Wilfrid, fresh from new triumphs at the Imperial Conference, by the people of his native province has dispelled whatever doubt may have lingered in the minds of his followers as to whether or not the old province of Quebec would again be found behind her greatest son in the evening of his remarkable career, and when he again and for the last time perhaps appeals for her support and confidence. The Nationalist crusade, which smacks of a period when its leader Bourassa might have been a Grand Seigneur, is already admitted to be a dying cause, and as an opponent pointedly put it the other day, "Laurier is still king in Quebec." Indeed it is regarded as doubtful if Mr. Bourassa will take any part whatever in the federal contest providing one is brought on this fall. As an indication of this fact it is noteworthy that Mr. Monk, the present leader of the Nationalist party in the House, left for Quebec the other day, disgusted with the obstructionist tactics of Mr. Borden and his followers. Quebec has been whipped into line by Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux and it is now being freely predicted that Sir Wilfrid will strengthen his old stronghold.

It is now almost practically sure that no redistribution bill can be successfully put through during the present sitting. This too as well as reciprocity, the Conservatives are determined to obstruct. However, it is generally conceded that the Liberals will make large gains in the western provinces regardless of whether or not such a bill is put through. There, more than in any other section of the Dominion is the reciprocity sentiment strongest. Of this fact no one is more convinced than Robert Laird Borden himself.

And when it is taken into consideration that no great change is anticipated in the polling strength of the parties in Ontario or the Maritime Provinces, it is difficult to understand what the Conservatives can hope to gain by preventing for the present the reciprocity bill going through, and thereby forcing an inevitable appeal to the people.

In the meantime the second week of Parliament is being entered upon here, and is being marked with a record of obstructionist tactics without precedent or sample in any other parliament in the world. There have been solid hours of speaking and shallow oratory from the Conservative side met only by the continued and comingly undisturbed silence of the Government benches. There is something tragic in the whole proceeding and a sort of re-surrender spirit predominates the entire chamber.

Through all this the veteran Liberal Chieftain patiently and serenely remains in his seat. Not the faintest syllable escapes his trained ear, and not a query goes unanswered. What thoughts and emotions are fleeting through that giant mind no one can even guess, for as usual Sir Wilfrid only smiles. His supporters remain firm behind him, loyal, faithful. ## REWARD HEROES OF BUTTE MINE

Carleton County Man Among the Number

Ed Grimes, John Emerson, Rod McDonald, Don C. Fuller, J. W. Drost and Al Picce, the six miners who distinguished themselves by one of the greatest acts of bravery ever known in Butte when they saved the East Gray Rock mine and probably the lives of many miners by calmly fighting a fire that was consuming a powder magazine, and by carrying out a burning box of dynamite, were handsomely rewarded yesterday by President Ben B. Thayer, of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, who presented each man with a check for $500, and in behalf of the company, expressed appreciation of their bravery. President Thayer arrived in Butte a few days ago from New York, where the details of the heroism of the six men had become known through a report made to Mr. Ryan by John Gillie, general superintendent of the Anaconda company. Mr. Thayer told William B. Daly, foreman of the East Gray Rock mine, that he would like to meet the six men, and Mr. Daly brought them to Mr. Thayer's office Thursday afternoon. They had no idea as to what was wanted, but they were not long left in doubt after Mr. Thayer had shaken hands with all of them.

"Boys, for the Anaconda company and for myself, I want to express my appreciation of what you did in the East Gray Rock mine on the night of Jan. 27. That was heroic work, and in addition to an expression of thanks of the company I want to give you a little something more tangible. I have here a check for each of you for $500."

Then Mr. Thayer handed the checks to the men, and they smiled their appreciation as they said "Thank you," and "Much obliged."

"I might have been looking for a Carnegie medal, but this beats any medal," said McDonald.

RENEW OLD ACQUAINTANCES.

A little social visit followed the distribution of the checks and Mr. Thayer learned that the six men were married and had been in the employ of the Anaconda company a long time. Mr. Fuller the youngest head of a household in the group of brave men, was married only a few days ago. Mr. Grimes, it developed, had worked with Mr. Thayer at Granite Mountain in 1891, and they renewed acquaintance. After the men had again shaken hands with Mr. Thayer and with Superintendent Gillie and Assistant Superintendent Dunshee they departed.

In all my experience in the mines," said Foreman Daly, "I recall no finer instance of courage than that which these men displayed. They faced certain death and each of them realized what he was going up against."

Mr. Gillie mentioned the fact that following the big dynamite explosion in New York a few weeks ago there was a meeting of financial men in that city at which the subject of heroism displayed by some men at the time of the explosion was discussed. John D. Ryan, who was present, expressed admiration for it, but suggested that such heroism was common among the miners of Butte, and as an instance of their great bravery, he sent for Mr. Gillie's letter giving an account of the acts of Grimes, Emerson, McDonald, Drost, Fuller and Pierce, and when the account had been read it was agreed by all that greater bravery has seldom been known in life or fiction.

STORY OF BRAVE DEED.

On the night of Jan. 27, 1911, about 9:30 o'clock, a miner in the East Gray Rock mine discovered smoke coming from the 1,300 level. A hurried investigation disclosed the fact that the powder magazine, located in one of the drifts was burning. Foreman William B. Daly was immediately notified and in a few minutes he had all the men out of the mine and started preparations to get to the fire. Assistant Foreman Grimes, with Fuller, Emerson, Drost, Pierce and McDonald, didn't wait for any precautionary measures but took advantage of Mr. Daly's absence and taking matters in their own hands, went into the mine with an air hose, with which they drove the smoke ahead and got to the burning magazine, in which were stored four boxes of dynamite. One of the boxes and the powder in it were burning. Every instant there was danger of a terrific explosion, which would have torn the six men to shreds, and wrecked the mine. The burning box of powder was picked up by Fuller, who was in the lead, and he carried it back into the drift, where the fire was extinguished. Others carried the remaining three boxes to safety, and then, with tin cans and water from the seepage in the mine, they put out the fire in the burning powder house.

Dynamite is a very uncertain quantity. Sometimes it explodes instantly on contact with fire, and again it merely burns up. The danger of an explosion while the men were putting out the fire and trying to reach the magazine was im-
