

ENGLISHMAN ON CANADIAN ELECTIONS

The Rev. C. Silvester Horne, M. A., M. P., the eminent English minister and statesman, who alone of ministers in the regular pastorate holds a seat in the English Parliament, has several times visited Canada, and was here during part of the time during the recent election campaign was in progress. Mr. Horne is pastor of the great Whitefield Tabernacle, London, England, which is crowded every Sunday from one to two hours before the regular service. His men's meeting has an attendance in the afternoon of upwards of 1,600 sturdy Londoners. In the ministry he has held all they can give, and is without a peer in the British pulpit. Under strong pressure he was prevailed upon to run for parliament, and at the two last elections, the only ones in which he was a candidate, was elected by large majorities.

Canadian Conservatives were loud in their plea about British anxiety over the reciprocity pact, lest through its adoption there might be a weakened and ultimately a severance of Imperial ties. Mr. Horne puts the boot on the other foot, and incidentally says some other things in an article summing up our election. No Britisher, perhaps, is better qualified to represent true steady English opinion, and his words deserve wide reading.

Concerning the election methods he says: In the first place there was a deliberate attempt to work up a thoroughly disgraceful hostility to American neighbors. Some of the placards on the walls were almost as vicious as those we remember so well in England when the baser section of our public was trying to work up a violent enmity toward Germany. I do not know how far this particular campaign succeeded; but I know that the moral of many of the cartoons was not intended to be an intelligent one. It was an appeal to passions that history and experience should have allayed and even extirpated.

Referring to Mr. Bourassa, Mr. Horne continues: "His feud with Laurier is because Laurier has been too British," and adds, "He will now expect his pound of flesh from Mr. Borden for the valuable service he has rendered in helping to dispose the one great French Canadian and Catholic statesman who was too broad-minded, and two high-minded to play the sectarian game. It suited them," he further says, "to forget that Sir Wilfrid has held the forts of freedom against the extremists of Rome."

And read this concluding paragraph of the same article, oh ye valiant and self-appointed custodians of loyalty and imperialism, and remember that it is a Britisher to the very core, and in the heart of true British sentiment who speaks.

"I am as confident as ever that Sir Wilfrid's policy must in the long run prevail. The natural will always beat the artificial in the end; and if the Canadian Coalition that has now put Mr. Borden in power is not very careful it will put such a strain on the loyalty of agriculturists by denying them their natural markets as will foster deep and growing discontent with the imperial tie. That is the great danger of the hour. That, and the possibility that Canada's decision may throw back the cause of international arbitration; that it may stiffen the backs of the American Senate; that it may chill the growing affection and regard of the better part of the American people. Against such a calamity all Americans and English Christians should do their utmost in the present crisis.—Fredericton Mail.

The October Rod and Gun

On the eve of the opening of the big game hunting season, Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Publisher, Woodstock, Ont., is to the fore with a plentiful supply of good game hunting stories, covering Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The opening story by Mr. Bonnycastle's Dale is particularly good, consisting of a fine description of the gallant efforts of a cattle fawn to escape, its rescue by the sportsman whose best instincts were aroused by its hopeless struggle, and its capture and revival by the petting showered upon it. The whole narrative makes an irresistible appeal to the highest ideals of sportsmanship and proves a capital opening for a number which includes hunting of many varieties and under widely different conditions. Mr. Starratt's paper on Woodcock Shooting in Nova Scotia is another article which stands out prominently as one which cannot fail to stir the feeling and the memories of all bird hunters and make them live many of their experiences over again. Big game hunting, however, is given the pride of place in this number, and it is a foregone conclusion that in many a camp throughout this broad Dominion Rod and Gun will prove not only an acceptable but an indispensable companion. Many an important article of the outfit would be less missed than this number. Those who have the arrangements for the hunting parties and camps so general next month throughout the Canadian woods will please take notice. A wet day in camp can be passed most pleasantly with a copy of the big game hunting number of Rod and Gun in Canada.

Provinces Producing Shingles.

The production of shingles increases steadily in Canada, and in a bulletin to be published by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior this is shown, together with the relative importance of the provinces for 1910. Compared with the Canadian lumber cut, the entire shingle industry amounted to less than the value of each of the five most important species—spruce, white pine, Douglas fir, hemlock and cedar, during 1910. Considered separately, the shingle production assumes considerable importance, especially in British Columbia. This province is far in advance of the eastern provinces as a shingle producer and made approximately half of the Canadian 1910 production of nearly two billion shingles, worth over three and a half million dollars. Over one quarter of the shingles were manufactured in Quebec, where the five hundred and thirty-nine million pieces reported were an increase of sixty per cent over the 1909 amount. Ontario and New Brunswick produced nearly equal amounts in 1910, one-tenth of the Canadian production being from each of these provinces. Ninety-eight per cent of the total production was in the above four provinces, although shingles are made in every province of the Dominion. Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Manitoba together produced two per cent of the total. The average price of shingles in 1910 was $1.80 per thousand, the values ranging from $1.51 for shingles in Nova Scotia to $2.27 in Saskatchewan.

SIR WILFRID AN AUTHOR

(From the London Chronicle.)

Literature may be the winner by the surprising result of the Canadian general election. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been Prime Minister for such a long time—a decade and a half—that many of us have forgotten that he was leader of the Opposition for nine years. Sir Wilfrid devoted his leisure to writing a History of Canada, and the work was well advanced when he was called to power. Some years ago Sir Wilfrid stated that he had not been able to add a line since he became Prime Minister, that the manuscript was locked up in a cupboard, and that he reserved its completion for the "occupation of his old age." Some enterprising publisher might possibly persuade Sir Wilfrid to finish it now.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong,
Sick Women Well.
