the Victoria Hotel, is critically ill.

Rev. H. C. Archer spent a few days this week at Hartland and Perth.

Mrs. Douglas Grant of Aroostook Junction, is spending a few weeks in town.

Mr. Robert McKinley of Presque Isle, is spending a few days with his parents here.

It is rumored that the Provincial Government is to bring on the Local Election on February 4th.

Rev. Dean Street of St. John, will have charge of the services in St.
Luke's church, on Sunday next.

Mrs. Sydney Hughes and daughter Marguerite, left on Saturday to spend a few weeks at Milo, Me.

Mrs. John Graham left on Tuesday for New Britain, Conn., to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Leon E. Dary.

Miss Agnes Gallivan left on Monday for Boston, Mass., after spending the past few months at her home in Deserville.

Dr. W. D. Camber has been ill for the last fortnight with gripe but is around the house and expects to be out in a few days.

Miss Faye Camber entertained a few young lady friends at tea on Thursday, in honor of Miss Lena Pickup of Annapolis.

Mrs. Marsden and Miss Helen Marsden, Meductie, who have been the guests of Rev. H. C. and Mrs. Archer left on Tuesday for Andover.

The many friends of Mr. Ray Grant of Aroostook Junction, who has been in the Hospital here for the past month, will be glad to learn he is improving.

Mrs. C. D. Jordan arrived home on Saturday after a four months visit with her daughters, Mrs. Paul J.
Shaw and Mrs. F. Alvin Sailer, in Butte, Montana.

Mrs. D. L. Parks who has been spending the past year in Boston and New York, has returned to Woodstock, and is prepared to do dressmaking at the McLardy house, Broadway.

The ladies of Jacksonville will hold a chicken supper in the chess factory at Jacksonville, Thursday evening, Dec. 7th. Proceeds for improvement on sidewalk. Adults 40 cents.
Children 25 cents.

The "Owls" will hold their first meeting at the Knights of Pythias Hall, this (Friday) evening. The Sentinel is authorized to state that already nearly 100 applications have been received for membership.

Mrs. J. S. Grey will hold a sale of paintings and fancy work, at her rooms in Mrs. Gillen's, commencing December 1st and continuing until the 23rd. Entrance to rooms, Maple street, opposite the Court House.

The young ladies of the United Baptist Church, will hold a Sale in the vestry of the church on Monday evening, Dec. 11th. There will be a food sale, candy table, and some very pretty and useful articles suitable for Christmas presents.

The finest line of set rings ever brought into Woodstock is being shown at Jas. A. Gibson's this week.
This seems a broad statement, but it is an actual fact. Just drop in and ask to see his line of 14k rings with diamond settings. They're simply beyond comparison, and the prices are exceedingly low for diamonds.
Remember the early buyer gets the choice.

The Minstrel to be presented in the Hayden-Gibson theatre next Monday evening, promises to be the best ever put on by local talent. There will be a chorus of thirty people with six end men. The songs are new and catchy, and the jokes are original and exceedingly funny. There will also be duets, solos, quartettes, step dancing, etc. The show is worth the money and they deserve a crowded house.

"YOU'LL LIKE THE FLAVOR."

G. E. Barbour Company, St. John, are to be congratulated on their selection of "YOU'LL LIKE THE FLAVOR" as an advertising Slogan for "KING COLE" TEA. Of all the nice things that could be said in four words about a brand of tea, surely there is none more expressive than this one "YOU'LL LIKE THE FLAVOR," and just as soon as we can, we are going to try a cup of "KING COLE" to see for ourselves that it is really true that everybody ought to like the flavor.

OBITUARIES

MISS ROSE A. OWENS.

On Wednesday morning, Nov 15th, at the home of Hugh Johnston, Newburg, there passed peacefully away Rose Ann Owens, aged 33 years. The immediate cause of death was a hemorrhage, the termination of several years illness with lung trouble.

Miss Owens had always been able to be about the house, to ride out and visit among her friends. She was of a cheerful, sunny disposition and bore her troubles with patience and fortitude. Six years ago in January, she accompanied her sister Helen's body home from Lynn, to be buried in Johnville, N. B. where she was also laid to rest on Friday, Nov 17th.
Her mother, who died about twenty years ago, her father, who died about ten years ago, one brother and two sisters have predeceased her.

She was the second daughter of Ellen (Maguire) Owens and Nicholas Owens, and leaves to mourn two sisters, Mrs Percy Streeter and Miss Mary Owens of Concord, N. H. and three brothers—John, in the west, and James and Dick at home, besides a large circle of relatives and friends.

FENWICK BOYD.

Fenwick Boyd, of Richmond street, died of pneumonia on Wednesday morning, aged 63 years. He leaves a wife, four daughters, Mrs Fred Blaney, Maple Ridge, York Co, Mrs Leonard Sabine, the Misses Ella and Minnie at home. The body was taken to Temperancevale, York Co, for burial today.

MRS. ISAAC ALBERT.

The death occurred on Wednesday, 29th inst, at the home of her daughter, of Mrs Isaac Albert, aged 80 years, leaving one daughter, Mrs Caleb Hopewell, of this town, and two sisters Mrs Thos Brown of Fredericton and Mrs J D Eatman of Boston, Mass.

F. B. CARVELL, M. P.

ors. We formed a nucleus of a navy by means of training ships by which we could eventually become master of the situation ourselves.

"We are absolutely bare of the skill, the experience, the training and the machinery necessary to put one single war vessel on a proper footing; but—and it is but the beginning of a circle—the first Canadian owned vessel, built and equipped in Britain, and sent out to defend our coasts would become the nucleus and the training ground of Canadian stokers, Canadian sailors, and Canadian officers, and by and by perhaps, of a Canadian Admiral on the Canadian coast. How much time would be taken in completing that circle none of us can say, but if we begin the tracing of it and follow it fairly and faithfully, the time must come when we get a complete service and have an imperial adjunct to the British navy for the defence of Canada and the defence of the empire in which Canada gives some of her body, her bones, her blood, and her mental power, her national pride."

And then my hon. friend went on further, and pictured the development of first of all repair plants, next shipbuilding plants, and finally of plants by which we could have commercial ships built as well as naval vessels. This is exactly the course which the late government followed. They did bring British vessels here, they started in to educate our own sons, to develop a Canadian navy, eventually to develop shipbuilding and repairing plants, and I submit that it is the only way of going to work, not only the only way, but it is the way which will eventually inspire all Canadians with the responsibility of their position, and make Canada an integral part of this empire. It will do that better than any other course that could be pursued. That was considered good politics by the members of that House, and the resolution moved by my hon. friend, as slightly amended, was unanimously passed by this House. My hon. friend the premier went to England and, as has been stated in this debate, he advocated and defended that principle at a public banquet in England. He came back to Halifax, and he advocated and defended the principle again, but in his absence certain of his jingo friends in Toronto had got in power, and finally he and his friend the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr.
Foster) were compelled to go back on the main policy which they had advocated, to go back on the logical policy which they advocated, and to do something else—anything at all as long as it was opposed to the principles and the policy of the then government. Then came the memorable resolution of my hon. friend the premier in which he advocated a contribution of $25,000,000, and this went on very well, and the Conservative party seemed to be pretty well agreed upon that, until the Drummond and Arthabaska election took place in the autumn of 1910. And since the Drummond and Arthabaska election was carried by the Nationa-lists we commence to see the fusion—I might almost say the agreement, and, as has been stated by the right hon. the leader of the opposition the unholy alliance—which was entered into, which evidently must have been entered into before then, between the then leader of the opposition and present premier, and the leader of the Nationalist party in the province of Quebec. Perhaps my hon. friends will deny now, as they did a year ago, that such an alliance existed.

We say on this side of the House that at that time that alliance did exist between the Nationalist party and the then leader of the opposition. My hon. friend the premier denounced this statement in almost angry terms and we had it denunced from every platform in the country as well as in parliament. We were compelled to take the word of my hon. friend (Mr. Borden), we were compelled to treat it as though no coalition existed. But, Sir, from the day that the Drummond and Arthabaska election was carried by the Nationalists down to the present time, I ask the hon. members of this House, and I ask the people of this country, can they point to a solitary circumstance that has not shown in the plainest manner possible that that alliance did exist, that it existed down to the very day of the elections on the 21st. September, and that it was consummated by admitting into the government the Minister of Public Works (Mr. Monk), and the two gentlemen whom he says he chose as his colleagues acting under the authority of the Prime Minister.
Now we have here three gentlemen who represent the party which is avowedly opposed—I do not know that I can put my hands on the actual words of the Minister of Public Works in which he will say that he is opposed, absolutely opposed, to contributing anything to the naval defence of the empire; but, Sir, take the statements which have been made by that hon. gentleman all through the province of Quebec during the last year, and a half. Take his admission made here in this House about a year ago when he confessed that he had preached in every meeting in the province of Quebec which he and his friends had held during the preceding summer that the local conclusion of a naval policy at as we had, meant conscription and, therefore, they opposed it.

Sir WILFRID LAURIER. Hear, hear.

Mr. CARVELL. My hon. friend (Mr. Monk) admitted that it meat conscription. He said that it could not be anything else, and he and his friends preached that doctrine everwhere. And then take the impassioned appeal made to the people of the province of Quebec by his leader, and by the actual master of the press at administration, Mr. Henri Bourassa, and his lieutenant, Mr. Armand Lavergne, and the rest of the Nationa-lists in that province. Take the impassioned appeals which they made to the mothers of the province of Quebec, not to have their sons taken away to be disembowelled by German shells. Then take the impassioned appeals and the impassioned remarks —my hon. friend from Champlain (Mr.
Blondin) denies that he is the author of them—but take the impassioned appeals of one Nationalist who said that it was necessary to shoot holes in the British flag in order to breathe the air of freedom. These were the arguments used by hon. gentlemen on the other side, these were the arguments used in the Drummond and Arthabaska election, these were the arguments used last summer, these were the arguments used on every platform in the province of Quebec during the late campaign, and it was on these arguments that hon. gentlemen on the other side were elected.
And now my hon. friend the leader of the government, and his friends around him are sitting on the treasury benches by virtue of the assistance which they received from the men who obtained their election in the manner in which I have described. So, Sir, I say that we have the right to come here and protest against the inclusion of these men in the cabinet. Not that they are not gentlemen unfit to sit in any cabinet, I have nothing to say against them in their personal capacity, I am only criticising them on account of what they represent, and the views which have brought them into the government, views by which this country will be governed I am afraid as long as this government remains in power. My hon. friend the leader of the government says: "We will frame our naval policy in good time, and as we have a mind to."

And the question comes to us now:
What is that policy to-day? The hon. gentleman and his friends said in 1909: We believe in the main policy of self-defence by Canada, the creation of a Canadian navy, the training of our own men, and the placing of ourselves in a position to protect our own shores and our own commerce, and, in time of war to give assistance to the mother country.
But they abandoned that policy, they did not want to pursue the main course, but they said: We ought to contribute $25,000,000 because there was an emergency. But last night the leader of the government was compelled to state before this House
