The Fredericton Cleaner of Tuesday says—Mr. John E. Stewart, of Andover, who is here today, is promoting a company which will see legislation at the approaching session of the Provincial Legislature for its incorporation with power to erect and maintain a dam across the St. John river at or near the Hawkshaw bridge, about forty miles above Fredericton, to develop electricity for light, heat and power purposes, and to transmit the same. This company is to be known as the St. John River Electrical Company, and will also seek the right to purchase, appropriate or otherwise acquire rights easements, franchises and privileges necessary for the operation of the company. Mr. Stewart has for several years past been engaged promoting a similar company to dam the Tobique river and legislation in that connection has precipitated an annual fight in the Legislature and this new company will, no doubt, find opposition from almost the same interests.

Deceased had been in as good health as usual and returned home about dark from threshing at his lower farm. He helped the boys do the chores and was just ready to go to bed when he started to walk across the kitchen. He fell dead on the floor without speaking a word.

Much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing family.—Observer please copy.

Gentleman—I wish to thank you for the prompt attention and courteous treatment received by me from your General Agent, Geo. H. Arnold, in adjusting my claim in advance to the amount of $200.00. Was asked to simply sign receipt, and he handed me check for amount. No red tape here.

Yours very truly, (Signed) DONALD H. SHEA. 4ins-pd-6.

company or two of a militia regiment is situated: I have a regiment in my county, a very good one too, and there is no provision of that sort for it. I would like to ask why it is that an armory should be provided in a small village of this kind, whether it is the custom or whether the minister is making a precedent of it.

Mr. Pugsley—The necessity or desirability of doing this has been passed upon my attention very strongly not only by some hon. gentlemen, but by the militia in these smaller towns, that if, in connection with public buildings, some suitable provision of a not very expensive character can be made for the accommodation of the militia in these smaller towns, it would be very desirable as giving encouragement to the militia and perhaps as saving the necessity that might exist in the near future of erecting separate buildings for armory purposes. I think it is a very good idea. It will certainly be a very great accommodation to the militia and it cannot add very much to the cost of the building.

Mr. Blain—Who was the site purchased from?

Mr. Carvell—It was purchased from a life long Conservative without any middleman being employed.

Mr. Blain—I think that he had better assume that the hon. member for Carleton (Mr. Carvell) knows more about this building than the minister.

Mr. Carvell—I know all about this building. There were three Liberals who had sites that they wanted to sell, but they were not as suitable as the Conservative's site, and so the Conservative's site was bought.

Mr. Blain—Let us look into this. Mr. Pugsley—There being a Conservative in this the hon. gentleman thinks that he had better look into it.

Mr. Blain—Who carried on the negotiations for the purchase of this site?

Mr. Pugsley—We sent a representative of the department to examine the site—Mr. D. H. Watroux, of St. John.

Mr. Blain—Was the hon. member for Carleton with him?

Mr. Carvell—No, I was not with
