The Carleton Sentinel

P. B. CARVELL, PRESIDENT.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6th, 1912.

PUT THE BLAME IN THE RIGHT PLACE

The Orange Sentinel complains that "efforts have been made and are still being made to compel the use of French language in the Province of Ontario."

If the Sentinel wants to strike at the root of the trouble, it should "get after" Mr. Borden. Mr. Borden accepted the help of the Nationalists, the champions par excellence of the French language. When Nationalists first raised its head in Drummond-Arthabaska, Mr. Borden was with the noble object of embarrassing Laurier; he encouraged and fostered Nationalism and gave it a recognized place in Canadian politics. When he got power, on an ultra-loyal and ultra-Protestant appeal, he took the Nationalists to his official bosom. He made three of his chief members of his cabinet—made acknowledged enemies of "England and English" counsellors of His Britannic Majesty, and among these was the very Post, master-General, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, whose conduct in "compelling the use of the French language in Ontario" is calling down the anathema of the Sentinel. Let the Sentinel if it desires to rightly fix the blame, arraign Mr. Borden, who introduced the author of the crime the Sentinel deplores, and still holds him as a colleague; let the Sentinel arraign itself; for in supporting the leader who accepted and welcomed the alliance of the French element, the Sentinel so cordially affects to hate, is to the extent of its influence, responsible for the presence in a cabinet of a British dominion of the minister who, with the knowledge and consent of his chief, is, as the Sentinel complains, "compelling the use of French in the province of Ontario." Let the Sentinel if it doesn't always dig with the right foot, put the boot on the right foot.

SIR WILFRID AND THE WEST

When Sir Wilfrid goes west he will get some idea of the ball he started rolling, in 1896-97, when his government inaugurated the only real effective immigration policy Canada has ever had. When he went into power the West was comparatively a desert, given over to gophers, solitude and prairie grass. Now it is throbbing with a restless, on-rushing life, and as a Yankee remarked, "it's a fine country, but you can't see it for the darned wheat." And the West is growing in other respects in population and political influence. But the country will never have its "fair shake" in parliamentary representation. The last election was held with eight or ten constituencies short of what its population is entitled to. The next redistribution will be made two years after the census of 1911. With the country growing in population at the rate of two members a year, the West will have reason to feel that it's a long time between redistributions. The West is a factor in confederation that must be reckoned with. Its voting power is growing and its special needs will largely influence the character of the representative balance in parliament.

Hon. F. D. Monk is another Minister who has been forced to call in twenty of Mr. Borden's Quebec supporters in the House of Commons the hollowness of the Tory declarations that they wanted no truck or trade with the Yankees. The House of Commons, like several other similar buildings the world over, had poor acoustic qualities, and several attempts have been made to remedy this defect. Mr. Monk called in the aid of a United States engineer, and now the Minister of Public Works says the trouble has been remedied. The building of an elevator costing an enormous sum given to a Yankee, the work of improving the House of Commons given to a Yankee, and the asking of special privileges for grain carriage from Yankee railways is a great record for a party which declared it wanted "neither truck nor trade" with the Yankees.

Mr. Hazen has told the Gazette that the English people were more impressed with Mr. Borden's personality, than with that of any previous Canadian visitor. The meaning of that is obvious. Canada is proud of Mr. Borden, but when a challenge like this is thrown out—well, Mr. Borden has yet to dominate Imperial conferences as Sir Wilfrid Laurier did.—Montreal Herald.

The expenditure of town money is always a good theme for the "other fellow" to harp upon, and the pity is, in most cases there can be found some justification for complaint. With the horses and all other appliances for keeping down the dust on the streets it is no wonder that citizens complain that business methods are not applied to the conduct of public affairs.

"$477.90 for an enforcement of the Scott Act." This item appears in the town treasurer's report submitted at the last meeting of the Council. It is pleasing that stern attempts are being made to load up the water wagon, but from appearances about the streets, other methods would give more satisfactory results for the expenditure.

Gov. Wilson's remark that "when women come into politics they will be as indispensable as they are charming" is a pretty compliment, from the Presidential candidate, but Mr. Choate's expressed yearning to be Mrs. Choate's second husband, in case he were not himself, still holds the record.

The Canadian Immigration Department will run harvesters' excursions from the United States to the Canadian West. Importing harvesters from the United States, as an exchange remark, is perfectly safe, but exporting harvesters to the United States is a menace to Canadian independence.

Senator Poirier in a letter to Le Canada, on the appointment of Bishop LeBlanc says:

"I am at the end of the world among the Ojibways," "perhaps you believe that they are savages. Not at all. It is at St. John, N. B., that the real savages are found."

Senator Poirier, in his first blush of enthusiasm, would do well to remember that the people whom he calls savages made it possible to have a Bishop in N. B. It was not Senator Poirier nor his following—

The London Advertiser recalls that the world will not come to an end for General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and that it was the largest funeral the world has ever known. Such is false, which came to General Booth unsought.

It is reported from London that 34,000 people attended the funeral of General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and that it was the largest funeral the world has ever known. Such is false, which came to General Booth unsought.

French geologists estimate that the world will not come to an end for 3,500,000 years. For this relief, much thanks.

By the way what has become of that committee that was to report on that $5000 bonus?

Vaccinate the school child, if the duty has not already been attended to.

Summer is going.

Accounts of display of heroism are not infrequent. A day or so ago an automobile accident happened in New Jersey. The driver was pinned beneath the car and a woman was trying to help him. "The tank is leaking," he said, "and she'll go up in a minute. There's no hope for me. You go off somewhere and get help for yourself. I'll take my medicine if I have to." He had to. There was no theatrical display about it. The world has other brave men beside those who sailed on the Titanic.

Feed New Oats Very Carefully

It is well for farmers to be careful in the matter of feeding new oats. The almost famine scarcity of oats that has prevailed for the last few months has left some horses low in condition, and now that this season's oats are available, the temptation is great to feed liberally in order that fleshening may go on rapidly. To try this experiment involves serious risks and should be avoided. It is far better to begin with what seems a ridiculously light ration, increasing very gradually for a month or six weeks, meantime keeping an open eye upon the general condition of the horse. It is better to go slowly than to endanger a horse's life through mistake and kindness. The new oats should be fanned and spread out till they are dry and as hard as circumstances may permit.

DAUGHTER OF GOVERNOR WILSON HANDLES
TENNIS RACQUET WITH PROFICIENCY

MISS JESSIE WILSON.
COPYRIGHTED BY UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD N.Y.

Young men at Sea Girl, N. J., have learned that Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of Dr. Woodrow Wilson, handles a tennis racquet with proficiency, and there are many young men who would gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to be Miss Jessie's partner if the opportunity would present itself.

While the young women of the Wilson household are very busy with so much to think about and so many affairs to look after, they are not neglecting chances to get plenty of outdoor exercise, and as they are fond of tennis and there is no better climate in the United States in which to play tennis than that of the ocean shore of New Jersey, they are taking advantage of their summer moments to perfect themselves in the game.

Miss Jessie serves well, and she is good at net play. She has taken some pains to try to perfect herself in net play, for that is one of the higher qualifications of tennis.
