OLD HOME WEEK.

Why not have an Old Home Week organization? The purpose of an organization that encourages the calling back of sons and daughters to the old town is a splendid custom. It is one of the strongest ties that holds former residents to their native country. Comparatively few New Brunswick towns observe this event but those that do observe it find the weeks celebration a pleasing diversion for the home people, as well as a bond of loyalty and good will for those who have gone from home to other sections. An association of this kind could be a great help to the town and county directly and indirectly. The more people we can get back to the county, if for only a short time during the summer months, the better it will be for the county; and, in addition to home comers, we may confidently look forward to attracting many others who are not natives, but who like the flavor of a good old Carleton County welcome amid pleasant surroundings.

Let us have an Old Home Week celebration.

HE WHO RUNS MAY READ

The beginning of the end of the Borden Government has already set in at Ottawa. It is looming up sooner than we had expected, but the handwriting is on the wall, and even he who runs may read. The Government organs, however, seem to think that they can keep it hidden by suppressing all reference to it; and by maintaining their bumptious tone in order to put the best face possible on the critical situation. But they are only deluding themselves with a vain hope if they imagine that they can fool the people on the subject. It is no secret any longer that the Border Ministry is already falling to pieces of its own rottenness and the incongruity of its composition, that it is torn by internal and external dissensions, that its members are at sixes and sevens, and that the Postmaster General has already been or will be shortly dropped from it in order to restore peace and harmony and to patch up its miserable existence a little longer.

Unless we are very much mistaken, there is going to be a dissolution and an end not merely of the session, but of the present Parliament with the certainty of another general election at relatively short notice. This is how the Gordian knot of the situation is going to be cut.—Quebec Telegraph.

FORCING THE DAY.

Whether the suffragettes placed the bomb in Lloyd George's home or not, there is the popular blame just now, and they seem to deserve it.

for they have prepared the public to expect almost any piece of malicious foolishness than can happen. This suffrage question becomes more and more acute in England as the days go by and militants take fresh courage for greater and greater outrage each and every time they succeed in defying the police and the laws, which is about every time they attempt to do so. It is a hard thing for men to punish women in at-tempting to win something to which, in the minds of many they are entitled. But there is no justification of the means by the end, and the general British public has a right to expect the government to protect it from the dynamite of militant suffragettes.

It will be only natural that when the whip has fallen in earnest over the shoulders of these women there will be loud complaints and the life of any ministry will be far from happy in such an event. But the militants are forcing the day when stern and unrelenting punishment must be handed out.

ANOTHER BURDEN.

The municipalities will suffer an additional burden of taxation, on the passing of Premier Fleming's bill relating to the Provincial Hospital, introduced by him in the House last week. Apparently harmless, the municipalities will find themselves this year saddled with an additional tax of $15,519.49 over last. The Premier in his usual suave manner, with honeyed words, blinds his followers with juggled figures and places before them to swallow a dose the municipalities will hardly relish.

Under the terms of this bill after Jan. 1st next, the municipalities must contribute $1 per week for the support of all patients, whether harmless or dangerous, they now pay $1.25 per week for the support of harmless lunatics.

Last year, according to the Auditor General's Report, the cost of maintenance of the Provincial Hospital was $85,212.05 and the total receipts are given at $18,338.63, of which $11,566.98 was from paying patients and the balance of $6,771.65 was contributed by the various municipalities for the support of harmless lunatics.

The government paid $66,878.42 for the upkeep of the institutions. The Premier now proposes the government shall pay two thirds and the municipalities the other third—this only means an additional tax on the latter of $15,519.49.

MUST EXPORT.

During the Reciprocity discussion, opponents raised the cry that Canada had nothing to gain by securing access to the markets of the United States.

Now the same opponents of Reciprocity are gleefully proclaiming news to the effect that the Democrats will give Canada all the market advantages that we might have enjoyed under Reciprocity. It is rather improbable that Canada will secure all the advantages, but this much is shown at least, that the cry of opponents against Reciprocity was insincere.

Hon. George E. Foster never said a truer thing in his life than that Canada's exports, in relation to her imports, show an unhealthy condition. The rich, growing country must export as well as import. The greatest market in sight for the vast products of our soil lies across the border. Canada had her opportunity to secure entrance to that market. In a season of partizan, jingoistic excitement, she refused a great offer. The future, under the present regime at Ottawa, is very doubtful. Thousands of farmers are today cursing the politicians and the interests that defeated Reciprocity. If the people of Canada vote as they think, and Reciprocity is still open for Canada, there will probably be another tale to tell after the next general election.

Every open winter revives and stimulates the theory that the climate is gradually changing and that there is less cold in the course of a year than there formerly was. The present winter makes such a theory seem plausible. And leaving the present phenomenal season out of the account, it is a common belief that the winters are not what they used to be. Men, who cannot be regarded as old, well remember when the winter, as a rule, set in considerably earlier than it has of late years—when there was more snow and more cold weather. Yet there are those who scout the idea that any material change has taken place. They claim that as men grow older the snow banks do not look so big to them as they did when they were boys, that they do not feel the cold so keenly and that, so far as the length of the winter is concerned, five months does not seem so long now as three did in their earlier days. In any case we still have winters and will probably continue having them with the same old regularity—in pretty nearly the same old way.

The British government will provide liberally for the dependents of Captain Scott and the men who died with him near the South Pole. Mrs. Scott will receive something over $4000 a year, and the families of the other men will be well taken care of. This is proper and shows that the people of England are willing to evidence their appreciation of the work of those brave men in a tangible form.

The killing of the deposed president and vice-president of Mexico was a bad piece of business, and the present government can afford to lose no time in convincing the country that it was not responsible for the murders. Under all the circumstances, Mexico can hardly complain of the suspicion that will exist until the matter is fully and fairly cleared up.

The Agricultural Society wants to keep digging right ahead after the land necessary to enable it to carry out plans that will certainly add to prestige of town. The object is a goal well worth striving to attain.

It is something of a distinction to be a graduate of an agricultural school, "not actively engaged in farming at present." There seems to be many men in the country who have that distinction.

Let outsiders know what possibilities the County of Carleton has to offer, and do away with any narrow spirit that checks progress.

Premier Fleming may feel that he is worth $5,000 a year to the province, but better men have filled the position in the past for less than half the money.

Now that he has had his salary boosted there is no reason why Premier Fleming should not devote his whole time to the duties of his office, and like the premier of Nova Scotia, take up his residence at the capital.—Mail.

When the honor of a position in the Executive of the Province ceases to be an attraction for acceptable men, let the province go into the market for managers of departments as a business concern would do. To increase the salaries of the members of the government, while keeping the salaries of the school teachers where they are, is too great an inconsistency.

The Premier's salary should remain just where it is. Poor men can take the office at the same old price.

It is of course true that a poor man may aspire to the honor, but he must be the exceptional one, for as a rule, the poor man considering things that must be, is restrained somewhat in his ambition. But some poor men (politicians) get rich quickly.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 551 Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.
