Both Branches of the Drug Business Have Due

Attention Here

The drug business has two distinct branches—one professional, the other commercial. In our relations with the public we endeavor to draw a well-defined line between the two phases of the business.

In our prescription department or in the sale and dispensing of drugs we give careful, scientific attention.

In the mercantile side—the sale of drug sundries, toilet articles, etc.—we also give the best service. We feel justified in pushing this branch of our business for we believe that it is impossible to give suitable service to either branch unless we do in both.

All that professional skill and loving attention of his family and friends was done for him, but death could not be averted.

I will call for all Hides that I thus hear of later on.

I would prefer Hides stretched on side of barn, without salt.

Also, I will be pleased to buy any Deer Skins, dried or rolled in salt, that you may bring to our place.

particularly sad for Mrs. Squires as he was the last member of her family. Her husband died twenty years ago, and her only daughter, Jennie, a school teacher, and a most lovable young lady, died six years ago, and now her son; her last earthly prop has been taken away.

His funeral service was conducted from his late home and Rev. Mr. Amos of Bath, Rev. Mr. Bell of Andover, and Rev. Mr. Perry of Kings Co., had charge. Special music was furnished by a quartette from Wicklow. The day was full of warmth and sunshine and a large concourse of people was present to pay their last tribute of love and respect to one whom they have known from boyhood. He was laid to rest beside his father and sister in the cemetery near his home.

To those he loved, and who loved him, we extend our sincere sympathy.

Died at Weston, Car. Co., N. B., Sept. 16th, Norman Raymond, the infant son of Alexander and Hilda Gartley, aged four months and six days.—Press please copy.
