A ST. STEPHEN SOLDIER HOME

William O'Dell Wounded was at Langemack A Stirring Day's Work—Hit while Doing His Duty—Fellowship of Noble Men of England with Noble Men of Fighting Ranks

William O'Dell, a returned wounded soldier, tells the St. Stephen Courier of his experience in the trenches. The following is an extract:

In the morning of April 23 they were relieved by the 3rd Battalion, his own company being sent to reinforce two battalions that had suffered severely. Owing to the shell fire of the Germans they could not get far and had to dig themselves in. They were driven several times and had to dig in anew. The ground was marshy, the trenches shallow, and at night they were lying in water.

After dark they were ordered to proceed to Langemack, to procure rations for the others. With the rations they were each given 300 rounds of ammunition to carry back, making a considerable load.

They delivered these safely and were then informed that they would have to dig themselves in across the loop, to connect up the line of communication. As they advanced, parts of the trenches were blown to pieces and the men fell back right and left. They were on a frontage of 2,000 yards and got their trenches down only about three feet.

Daylight came at four o'clock and with it a German aeroplane appeared overhead and dropped signals showing their position. The artillery opened on them but they held on for three hours, though many were killed and wounded.

They were ordered to retire on the double quick and had to cross an open field for 500 yards, all uphill and with wire entanglements at the top.

O'Dell found himself alone, after a little, and started to retire, concluding that it was "no place for a nervous man." He had gone about fifteen yards when he came to a pile of earth where some Germans had been buried and where their rifles were sticking out of the ground, so shallow was the covering thrown over them.

He had to mount this pile, and it was while doing so that he was wounded. One bullet went through both legs, near the ankles and in all he had seven holes in him, but none of them was "serious" as the soldier described them. His clothing was torn almost off him by shrapnel but none of that reached his body.

Anyone who knows big "Bill" O'Dell, knows that he is not made of the stuff that gives up for rifles and wounded as he was, he kept on for three miles before he lay down, and as on the ground for some time before he was picked up by a relief party. He had done his "bit" done it bravely and well, and gone just as far as he could.

He was first carried to the monastery of Mount Ducat, where his wounds, honorably received, were dressed, and next day he was taken by train to Boulogne. There he spent one night in hospital and next day was sent across the channel in the hospital ship Australian.

Two weeks were spent in hospital at Southmead and then with others he was taken to Lord Portman's magnificent estate, one of many that English gentlemen have placed at the disposal of the wounded soldiers.

Among the noblemen of England there is fellowship and comradeship with the other noble men of the empire who have also done what they could, an example that might be followed by some who would be of the "better class" elsewhere who cannot even be generous in their remarks concerning the boys who have done all that they could.

Here, with eight other wounded Canadians and two wounded Englishmen, Pte. O'Dell lived like a millionaire, receiving every kindness and every possible attention. Here they made and enjoyed the acquaintance of Lord and Lady Fitzmaurice and of Lord and Lady Stafford, Lord Stafford being the private secretary to King George, and who, while the soldier boys were there, received word that "his only son had been killed in action."

At the end of seven weeks, O'Dell was able to leave and was granted seven days' sick leave, which were spent in London. He returned to headquarters and was sent to the 23rd Reserve Battalion but had to "report sick" and was then returned to the hospital for six weeks more. At the end of that time he went before the medical board and was found "medically unfit" for further service and was returned to Canada.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The prop's have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OBITUARY

KATHERINE HARRON

Katherine Harron, the beloved wife of Alexander Harron of Debec, passed peacefully away after a prolonged sickness at her home on Sunday, Sept. 19, at the advanced age of 73 years. By her death Richmond loses one of its oldest and most esteemed inhabitants and the Methodist church one of its best workers. Her winning ways and ardent zeal for every good cause endeared her to the hearts of all who knew her. She leaves behind, besides her aged husband, two daughters, Mrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick (wife of Lt. Col. J. R. Kirkpatrick) and Miss May Harron, at home, and three grandchildren. Interment took place in the Methodist cemetery at McKenzie Corner on Monday afternoon. Services were led by Revs. S. Howard, R. J. Miller and H. T. Smith.

VALLEY RAILWAY CLAIMS

(Fredericton Mail)

The announcement has been made by the graft press that the new directors of the St. John and Valley Railway Company are to pay claims aggregating the tidy sum of $300,000. As the new directors are appointees of the government and have put none of their own money into the enterprise, it is to be presumed that the province is paying the piper. If this is so, in the name of all that is good and holy, why have the creditors been kept out of their money for nearly two years? If the bills were just once, why didn't the government pay them long ago? The old company would have gladly paid the bills had the government provided them with the money, but the government refused to do so and must accept the responsibility for their negligence. Are the bills to be paid by the new company the same bills which were rendered to the old company months ago? Are they lawful claims or are they not? Have there been any changes made which mean a saving to the provincial treasury? How is it that the new company can provide funds to pay bills which have been held up by the government for nearly two years? Were the bills right or wrong? If they were right, they should have been paid long ago. If they were wrong they should not be paid now. There surely ought to be some explanation in regard to this wonderful transaction on the part of the government.

The graft newspapers also announce that Premier Clarke is anxious to see the Valley Railway completed. Will wonders never cease? Can anybody imagine Premier Clarke the greatest political procrastinator of modern times, being anxious to complete anything? Nobody who has ever talked privately to his colleagues and legislative supporters would ever think of believing that he had any serious desire of accomplishing anything before the arrival of the millennium. If the report is well founded is it evidence that a change has come over the spirit of the dreams of the premier. If he is really anxious to see the Valley Railway completed the directors should get busy and let the contracts. They should strike while the iron is hot. If there is any delay the premier may change his mind and then the jig will be up.

This is a serious business and should not be passed over lightly. If the claims against the Valley Railway were just, why were they not paid before the war broke out, when money could have been borrowed at a lower rate of interest than prevails at the present time? If the claims were of such a nature as to justify the government in holding them up for eighteen months, why are they being paid now?

A WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO WOMEN.

If you are troubled with weak, tired feelings, headache, backache, bearing down sensations, bladder weakness, constipation, catarrhal conditions, pain in the sides regularly or irregularly, bloating or unnatural enlargements, sense of falling or misplacement of internal organs, nervousness, desire to cry, palpitation, hot flashes, dark rings under the eyes, or a loss of interest in life, I invite you to write and ask for my simple method of home treatment, with ten days' trial entirely free and postpaid, also references to Canadian ladies who gladly tell how they have regained health, strength, and happiness by this method. Write to-day. Address: Mrs. M. Summers, Box 884 Windsor, Ont.

"Sandwich Men" and the Allied Loan

Even in the East there is conflict of opinion, but this is due to pro-German influence. The Anglo-French commission now in the United States for the purpose of establishing a credit for the purchase of war supplies, first tried to secure one billion-half pint vinegar. Let the tomato be dropped to cook for several hours before adding the spices and vinegar. Mix the salt and spices dry in a bowl and blend well before putting into the tomato. Cook till quite thick. "Sandwich men" paraded the streets bearing placards intended to arouse hostile sentiments. One arrayed after a fashion in the uniform of a British soldier paraded Wall Street with standards denouncing the loan. One of the placards said: "King George and the country needs $10,000,000,000. Britain is cheerfully willing to sacrifice the last American dollar. SO COME ACROSS!"

Another read: "Britain will fight as long as there is a French soldier or an American dollar left."

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gents—A customer of ours cured a very bad case of distemper in a valuable horse by the use of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Yours truly, VILANDIE FRERES.

Cooking Hints

GREEN TOMATO HINTS. Green tomatoes can be served as a dessert, and make a really delightful change from the ordinary routine. To prepare the dish, wash the tomatoes, remove the stem and cut in halves. Put them in a pudding dish with the cut side down, and sprinkle with sugar. Add a little water and cook slowly in the oven until tender. Cool and serve very cold with whipped cream.

Another green tomato dessert is a pie. Some persons think it an admirable substitute for mince pie. To make it, wash four pounds of firm, green tomatoes, and add a pound and a half of sugar and a tea-cupful of molasses. Simmer for three or four hours, until rich and thick, and pour into two pie plates, lined with good crust. Add two or three thin slices of lemon peel to each pie, cover with crust and bake. This pie makes a variety at a time of year when there are not many available fruits for pie.

Green tomato jam is worth making. To eight pounds of the tomatoes, add the juice and the thin rind of four lemons, two ounces of green ginger, and boil until tender. Then add seven pounds of sugar, and continue boiling until dissolved. Remove the ginger and pack the jam into jars in the usual way.

TOMATO CATSUP. Wash and cut in pieces a half peck of ripe tomatoes. Cook in porcelain-lined or granite iron preser ing kettle till soft enough to put through a sieve, which will remove skin and seeds. To the pulp add two table-spoonfuls of salt, two table-spoonfuls of sugar, one-half table-spoonful of vinegar, and one-half table-s
