How The Jury Was Chosen In Standard Libel Case—St. John Correspondent Tells How the Dice Were Loaded Against Mr. E. S. Carter, Liberal Organizer ---Liberals Were Promptly Ruled Out by Attorney General Baxter

(Mail.) St. John, N.B., Dec. 13—There are many curious things about the law. The paths of Justice are strewn with snags and all kinds of obstacles. I notice that Judge McKeown has decided that the notice complaining of statements in The Standard, which was served upon the city editor of that newspaper in the editorial office of the newspaper, was not a proper notice because the service should have been made in the business office. I must not discuss this decision of His Honor because that might be contempt of court, but to most laymen, unacquainted with law and its mysteries, it would seem that a notice of complaint, which, according to the libel act, must be served five days before action is begun, would be properly served if given to the editor of the newspaper or his assistant—the city editor, who in this case was served with the notice. EASY TO BE WRONG. How easy it is to be wrong and how little after all, can we depend upon the common sense God gave us in coming to conclusions. Justice travels many routes. Sometimes the judge himself hears the evidence and decides who is right and who is wrong; again, there are seven men chosen in civil cases to hear the evidence and to render a verdict. Usually these seven jurors are chosen from the sheriff's list of men who form the petit jury. A SPECIAL JURY. But when the case has peculiar features, when the evidence is highly technical or the interests involved require special knowledge and intelligence on the part of jurors, or again when the average juror might be swayed by his political or his religious or other beliefs, the plaintiff often asks for a special jury. A special jury is not selected in the ordinary way. In fact, it is not supposed to be ordinary in any respect. Its very name, "special," signifies a special adaptability to hear the evidence and to decide the case that it is to be held before the men thus specially selected. The sheriff has nothing to do with the selection of a special jury. The secretary-treasurer of the county in which the case is to be tried does the selecting. He looks at the case to be tried. He has a wide acquaintance with all the best men, the unbiased, the unprejudiced men in the community. He comes in daily contact with those who never told anybody how they vote. He knows the prominent Protestants and the prominent Catholics; he can divide the temperance folk from the license crowd. E. S. Carter, when he sued The Standard newspaper for libel, asked for a special jury. His reasons for doing so were very apparent. As an active Liberal organizer, he was seeking damages from a newspaper which was the principal organ of the Conservative party and he asked the country secretary, J. King Kelly, to pick out twenty-eight men in the whole county of St. John who would form a "special" jury. THE JURY LIST. Mr. J. King Kelly has always been known as a pronounced Conservative, but a county secretary is not supposed to have any politics. The names of twenty-eight men he chose are given below, with their politics, so far as is known and their occupations: Arthur Adams, Liberal, ship chandler; David J. Brown, Liberal, merchant; P. E. Campbell, Liberal, merchant; J. M. Donovan, Liberal, farmer; Henry Dolen, Liberal, liquor dealer; T. H. Estabrooks, Liberal, merchant; John Flood, contractor; Harry Green, Conservative, expressman; Wm Lewis, Conservative, iron worker; James Sproule, Conservative, contractor; Salmon, Conservative, clothier; C. M. Lingley, Conservative, printer; J. H. Noble, Conservative, plumber; T. E. G. Armstrong, Conservative, clerk; C. M. Baillie, Conservative, clerk; Charles Clark, Conservative, coal merchant; C. W. DeForest, Conservative, merchant; W. H. Golding, Conservative, manager; E. N. Jones, Conservative, agent; S. A. Jones, Conservative, merchant; T. T. Lantallum, Conservative, auctioneer; W. J. Steen, clerk; W. L. Williams, Conservative, liquor dealer; F. J. McInerney, Conservative, clothier; Edward Bates, Conservative, contractor; T. A. Linton, merchant. It will be seen that six of the special jury were Liberals, without any doubt, that nineteen were Conservatives without any doubt and that three men, Messrs. Flood, Steen and Linton, are not considered pronounced enough to be placed. Let us see what happened. Attorney General Baxter, acting for the Standard, and John A. Sinclair for Mr. Carter, were notified to be present and make their objections. Each party was allowed to strike off seven names from the list submitted by Mr. Kelly. LIBERALS BOWLED OUT. Mr. Baxter promptly put his pencil through the names of Arthur Adams, David J. Brown, P. E. Campbell, J. M. Donovan, Henry Dolen, Theodore Estabrooks and John Flood. (Continued on page Ten.)

SAYS CONSCRIPTION SCHEME FRUSTRATED

London Telegraph Declares Lord Derby's Plan Has Proven Pronounced Success

New York, Dec. 13—A London cable to the Herald today says:

"The Daily Telegraph announces this morning that Lord Derby's campaign for the volunteer army has been a pronounced success, greatly exceeding the great organizer's expectations. It was the last three days' rush to the colors which killed Lord Northcliffe's conscription conspiracy."

"My own opinion is that the Kaiser with his Zeppelin raids and policy of frightfulness has been responsible for the magical growth of what he once called the 'contemptible little British army' into a force of nearly five million trained soldiers, eager to meet the enemy in the three theatres of war. The response yesterday, while gratifying and keeping the recruiting officers busy till far into the night, did not compare with the senes of the preceding three days."

Khaki and khaki armlets were seen everywhere here and throughout the provinces yesterday. Thora of military age who did not wear one or the other seemed to be unhappy, and the attitude of England's brave womanhood did not make the slackers feel comfortable. Knowing the feeling of the country, I would not like to be one of the single men who have shown the white feather. "The Daily Telegraph says the voluntary scheme was a success. No official figures, however, are yet available, and the aggregate of enrollment may not be known for a few days."

"Lord Derby's report already is in the hands of the government. It appears that until the end of November the result of the scheme was still very doubtful, in fact it was regarded by its sponsors as a failure, but the splendid response since saved the nation."

OBITUARY

HUGH E. GALLAGHER

Hugh E. Gallagher, one of the town's prominent citizens, passed away at midnight, Saturday. He was taken ill on Thursday and in spite of the best medical attendance and loving care he failed to rally from the time he was stricken.

Perhaps no man was better or more favorably known throughout New Brunswick and Northern Maine. He was an enthusiastic horseman and was at one time a familiar figure at all important track events where he was always selected as one of the trusted officials and in every capacity was noted for his fairness and impartial judgment.

He filled many important positions in the affairs of the town, being a member of the town council for several terms and was a member of the Municipal Board at his death. In his business relations he was courteous itself. No one ever asked him in vain for a favor or a concession which could be granted consistently. If he made a target, he kept it. You needed no written agreement with Hughie Gallagher. In politics he was a pronounced Liberal but he always retained the respect and esteem of political opponents.

As a member of St. Gertrude's church his opinion was always sought in matters in connection with church business. Rev. Father Murphy, of Debec, was with him in his illness and administered the last rites of the church.

Identified with a variety of interests Mr. Gallagher was first and last a popular man among men.

Deceased leaves three brothers, John, Lawrence and James W., and five sisters, Mrs. Bragan, Mrs. Daniel Riordan, Misses Mary A., Ella and Agnes.

The wide spread regret felt for this good citizen, as well as the deep sympathy for his respected relatives, found local expression Wednesday morning in a large and imposing funeral. Every class and business interest was represented.

The requiem mass at St. Gertrude's church was of a most solemn and imposing character. Rev. Father Ryan officiated, assisted by Rev. Fr. Murphy, and the pathos of the church service was reflected by the sadness of the many who were present.

Father Ryan in his touching remarks spoke of the sterling worth and splendid qualities of the deceased and although his passing was a sad blow to his immediate relatives and while we deeply sympathize with the afflicted family we also bow to the inscrutable decree of Providence. The pall bearers were: William Bolger, Joseph Fever, Frank Thompson, Hugh Judge, Alex. Beaton and Owen Kelley.

The deepest and most respectful sympathy of the Sentinel is extended to relatives in their great and unexpected bereavement. It should be at least a slight consolation to them to know that the whole community sincerely condole with them in their misfortune.

SUCCESSFUL OPENING OF Y. M. C. A. ROOMS

Over Two Hundred Soldiers Present—Fine Program Carried Out—Women's Institute Provide Bountiful Supper

The Y. M. C. A. opened their rooms for soldiers Tuesday evening, to the khaki clad lads attending to the number of 275. The rooms have been furnished with a view of comfort and accommodation for the young soldiers who will be here for the winter. A fine piano, many games, plenty of reading matter and general homelike surroundings will no doubt be a source of recreation for the young men during their leisure hours. The arrangements for the opening were in the hands of the resident director, Mr. A. W. Dyer, and the program was carried out without a hitch. Dr. W. D. Rankin presided, and short addresses were made by Mayor Sutton, A. S. McAllister, Gen. Secty. Y.M.C.A., Rev. Samuel Howard, Lieut. Nicholson and Major Laughlan.

Major Laughlan was very happy in his remarks and expressed his pleasure and deep appreciation of the efforts made to make the stay of his "boys" pleasant and comfortable. He was sure the citizens would find them a fine, orderly body of men who are deeply sensible of the kindly treatment accorded them since their arrival in Woodstock. He also spoke of his early military experience, when he got his first taste of military training in Woodstock some thirty years ago. It was rather a strange coincidence that he was now here preparing for actual warfare. Major Laughlan's remarks were frequently applauded. The musical program was carried out under the direction of Mrs. Geo. Clason and its excellence was attested by the hearty applause that greeted each number. The Women's Institute furnished the refreshments and the target body of ladies deserve every praise for the bountiful supper provided, which entailed a lot of hard work. The soldiers were particularly grateful to the ladies for this important feature of the evening.

Secty. McAllister was much pleased with the success of the affair and said it was the best opening he had attended.

The following is the program: Piano Duet—Mrs. Gibson and Miss Lindsay.

Invocation—Rev. Mr. Howard. Remarks—Dr. Rankin.
