A WELL ARRANGED AND UP-TO-DATE JEWELRY STORE

James A. Gibson Makes Attractive Improvements to his Place of Business—Handsome Equipment for Proper Display of Costly Goods.

One would have to travel far to find such a roomy, well arranged and handsomely equipped jewelry emporium as that of James A. Gibson. The proprietor some time ago realized the necessity of increased facilities for an increasing business. In order to properly display a stock, that covers practically the entire field of jewelry, most elaborate and richly carved cases were installed. The deep rich hue of the mahogany, of which the cases are made, and trimmings of elegantly designed brush, brass and illuminated art glass, made an effect that is both charming and pleasing to the eye of the observer. One of these cases is forty feet long and another is twelve feet, running from the repair department to the vault. The counters are of glass and two conveniently arranged silent salesmen are in the equipment. The workroom, in the front, has three benches at which three men are constantly employed. The store has, in addition to many other smaller lights, three, of 100 candle power in Alba globes, throwing out a beautiful white and mellow light. The big vault is probably the most complete of any in the province. It is six feet square inside, with a height of seven and a half feet. The material used in the construction was cement and brick, with hollow terra cotta tiles to prevent dampness. Some idea of the "safety" of the vault may be found in the fact that twenty four barrels of cement were used in the foundation alone.

The store is neat and attractive in all its appointments and is arranged with every attention to modern methods of convenience. Mr. Gibson is familiar with every branch of the business and gives close attention to all matters of his establishment. He has around him competent help in every department and is provided with every facility that experience could suggest or skill devise. The stock carried is one of great variety and in addition to gold and silverware of every description, precious gems vie with each other for recognition.
