Charge Was Excessive.

Four Canadians went into a barber shop yesterday, says a recent issue of The London Mirror. It was a small barber's shop. They had various operations performed, such as shaving, hair cuts, massage, etc. But there wasn't much more. When the bill was handed over it came to £1 15s. Then the Canadians, with great calmness, said that they would wreck the shop. The barber ran out into the road with a great fear upon him. A policeman came in and told the extortionate barber that the charge was excessive.
