About 5 in the afternoon Rogers appeared in the hotel and wished to see me. I took him to my room when he told me that he would be back on Sunday morning with a lot of information. He was pretty drunk and talked about coming to Ottawa to give evidence and a lot of other matters along that line. This whole interview took place in the presence of Mr. Goddard, and without very much ceremony I informed him that I wished to have nothing further to do with him and he could consider all negotiations at an end. He seemed very much surprised and pleaded for the opportunity of bringing certain material to me on Sunday morning.

The interview did not last very long and Rogers left the hotel.

To my surprise he returned again about ten o'clock that evening, as I had previously been informed by my detective that he had purchased transportation for himself and a woman to Toronto. I made no reference to papers and neither did he, and I was very much at a loss to know what could have been the object of his visit, unless to inform me that he was going tempting supper.

How to Have Dry Buildings

IRON doesn't wear out, it rusts out. Ready Roofings don't wear out, they dry out. Do you know how important this is? It means that there is a tremendous difference between ready roofings, even though all have felt and a waterproofing compound in them. It's the quality of that compound, plus the skill used in saturating the felt, that counts. It's the skill used in the saturation, plus the chemical composition of the saturating compound that makes Panamoid a wonderful roofing.

PANAMOID ROOFING

Panamoid is made of the best felt that can be obtained. It is tough, fibrous, strong. This felt is uniformly saturated with a non-soluble compound that stays there. Being thick, the felt holds this saturation indefinitely. If you want dry roofs at low cost, come in and get some Panamoid Roofing. Very easily laid.
