In the Balance

"In acute disease or sudden injury the steady, constant drinkers' chances of recovery are diminished 50 per cent."—Professor Gilbert Barling, F.R.C.S., Vice-Chancellor of Birmingham University.

IT was at the bedside of a very sick man. The physicians gravely watched the struggle between Life and Death. All depended upon the heart. Could it cope with the crisis? Life hung by a thread. The thread snapped. The newspapers said he died of pneumonia, and so he did. But the physicians remarked, "Too bad he used alcohol, or he could have passed the crisis."

Yet this man was no drunkard—just a moderate drinker; he could "take it or leave it alone just as he liked" and all the rest of it; was a highly respected citizen, and a staunch supporter of "British Liberty" (to have his drop when he wanted it).

Here's the tremendous significance of his case: He always voted true to his convictions. Moderate drinkers form a large proportion of the vote upon which the Traffic depends for existence. In fact, in many communities the moderate drinkers hold the "balance of power."

Help to Enforce Prohibition

When, after the war, the people vote for or against permanent Prohibition the moderate drinker may turn the scale as he wills.

Prohibition is on trial. The moderate drinker of the class mentioned is needed in the fight for vigorous enforcement—the means to permanent victory—and who is more likely to be indifferent? Would that all the moderate drinkers in New Brunswick could thoroughly realize the seriousness of even slight acquaintance with John Barleycorn. Prohibition would be assured forever!

In the name of common sense why will intelligent men vote for such a curse? Think of thousands of good citizens being the Traffic's main political support by voting "wet."

Will the moderate drinkers take the responsibility of killing Prohibition after the war? We think decidedly not. But we want their help now—to enforce the laws and thus make freedom a certainty.

Use your influence with every moderate drinker you know. Help to enforce Prohibition.

The Red Cross Nurse says to you:—

"Alcohol, by lowering resistance, nine times out of ten, makes it just so much harder for the patient to recover."
