A WORTHY SON.

The following remarkable letter, written by a British soldier at the front to his father, recently appeared in an Isle of Wight newspaper: To my Father;

Secondly, as to my death, inasmuch as we be men together, there is little need for words. It is in a good cause that I lay down my life. All the things that I hold dear in life I willingly give up, since it is required of me. I am proud and glad to be one of those whom England takes, who in their bodies pay the price of her honor. And though in your heart there will be sorrow, you will also be proud; and you will not grieve overmuch "All good things be unto you! May the coming years bring wider fields of service, honor and honorable work, strength and wisdom to perform it; and in the end peace and contentment and quiet rest! Your son, a soldier of England, salutes you. Farewell!

As a contemporary well says, the business of being a father is quite the most complex and difficult of all the tasks that come to men, and to get such a letter as the above must be to any father a sweet reward.

THE "NEW SCHOOL".

Present conditions about the streets at night are causing some talk as to the enforcement of the curfew law. We doubt seriously the wisdom of seeking a law to take the place of parental guidance. From appearances it would appear to be not the small
