And have you called to look over our stock of Woollens?

Remember that there was an under production of wool before this war started and pure wool cloth will some day be as scarce as hen's teeth, and so high in price that it will be a luxury.

You have in your little Town one of the Best Stocks that could possibly be secured.

We are making these goods up at little advance over old time prices, and in a better manner than ever.

Writing to Miss Helen Tompkins; under date of April 7th, Fred Maln says in part: "I had an awful time my first night up the line—it was very dark and everything was filled with mud and water. I fell in about all the shell holes, with a bundle of wire on my back. When I got in I was mud from head to foot and it is there yet and to add to it Fritz started shelling—Gee, but it was lively! I am getting used to it now. I am writing in a German dug-out with my knees up to my chin and dark as a dungeon and the noise of the guns is deafening."

News has been received from Ottawa that Lieut. Carleton J. Ketchum, of the 4th Divisional Heavy Trench Mortar Battery, has been appointed adjutant of his brigade in France. He is a son of Mr. W. Q. Ketchum, of Ottawa, and grandson of the late Canon Ketchum, of St. Andrews. His cousin, a son of Mr. T. C. L. Ketchum, of Woodstock, who enlisted when he was a student at the University of New Brunswick, was killed in action in France about a year ago. Mrs. W. D. Forster, of St. John, and Mrs. C. M. Sills of Geneva, New York, are aunts of the two gallant young soldiers.
