Black Watch CHEWING TOBACCO

Girl's Organdie Frock. A young girl's organdie frock of white is made with three flounces each of which is bound with a brass band of bright colored calico. The sleeve edges and the bodice, too, are bound with the same material. The little line of bright colored figured calico is in smart contrast to the sheer expanse of the white organdie.

AS HIRAM SEES IT.

(Times.)
"I see," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to the Times reporter, "that one of the fust families is visitin' Rothsay."
"Ah," said the reporter, "I did not suppose you were interested in the society column. To what distinguished persons do you allude?"
"I ain't talkin' about no society column," said Hiram, "an' I don't read it. If some gal out to the Settlement hes the next door neighbor in an' gives 'er a cup o' tea, or some young feller is visitin' some other young feller over Sunday and the two of 'em goes to see somebody else, you'll see a long piece in the paper about what a lovely time they hed and how pleased everybody was that they did hev it, an' how everybody wished 'em well an' hoped it 'ud happen agin. When Hanner begins to read that stuff I want to go out and tackle the woodpile to keep from making trouble in the family. But when I read about that injun over a hundred year old from Nova Scoshe visitin' his folks in Rothsay I call that reel news about the fust families. The reporter didn't say how long he was goin' to stay, but his folks owned the hull place one time. I s'pose the'll be eel suppers, an' porkypine stews, na' basket soccals, an' canoe races, an' pow-wows. Won't Westfield feel kinder jealous o' Rothsay? You tell your correspond-ent to send along some'tin' every day about the festivities. Folks is alwus out'ous to know what the fust families is doin', so's they kin do it themselves. I guess I'll paddle along an' make a call myself. —By Hen!"

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES.

Roses white and roses red
For the bride just one year wed,
Five years wed—'til understood
Pretty presents all of wood.
Ten with jollity and din
Come the treasures made of tin
Twelve means linen soft and sheer,
Fifteen, crystal bright and clear,
Twenty, dishes patterned gay
For the china wedding day.
Twenty-five comes clear and shining
All its clouds have silver lining.
Thirty is the year of pearls
For the loveliest of girls.
Forty is of amber mellow,
Fifty is of gold so yellow.
Sixty years together spent—
Tenderness and sweet content.
Sixtieth anniversary,
Comes the diamond jubilee.

PLACE RAIDED AT QUEBEC WEDNESDAY

Found Three Whiskey Stills in Full Swing.

QUEBEC, Aug. 12—"If you call at 45 Sault Au Matelot street, you will find three whiskey stills in full swing," said an unknown man who approached Constable Doyan on traffic duty at the corner of Mountain Hill and St. Peter street, yesterday. The officer took the tip, and getting a customs officer and another constable they raided the place and found three gas stoves with stills on them. The pipes leading to the gas stoves had been connected to the main pipe, but there was no meter. Some two hundred barrels of whiskey were found on the premises. The place was deserted when the police arrived, as the parties evidently saw them approaching
