DRY BY LEGISLATION!

Correspondent Deals With Export Houses and Methods--A New Experience in Competition--Is Liquor Delivered Enroute to Foreign Country? Present Conditions Will Prove More Harmful Than Profitable--Legal Vendors Hard Hit--Killing the Commission.

Grand Falls, June 19, 1922

Dear Sentinel:

When the law makers took from the people the privilege of importing liquor, for personal use, it came as a shock but being the law was accepted and every confidence was placed in the sincerity of the temperance reformers that the legislation sought and secured by them would produce changed conditions. No longer is this confidence justified and we are living in an atmosphere of law evasion and it is in this atmosphere that the real law evader finds his opportunity. Whether prohibition is an encroachment on personal liberty or not--it is the law of the land and as such should be respected.

No matter how people may feel as opposing, or, in favor of prohibition, all stand in favor of fair play.

Presumably the temperance forces were pleased with the result of their efforts to secure a majority in favor of the temperance act.

It is impossible to say how far they are justified in this presumption, in face of the fact that nearly two hundred auto loads of liquor have left the recently established export houses in St John, ostensibly bound for a foreign country. None can be sold, en route, according to the permit of course not. It is trotting out a piece of well worn advice to warn the government of their full obligation to the community and meet the vote of the people as has been expressed. They have appointed licensed liquor vendors and have tied them to a certain profit and appointed officers to see that all provisions of the law are carried out. But what happens? Thousands of cases of liquor are stored in St John, the government demands and collects an "export duty" in every case and issues "permits" to carry the stuff by auto (common carriers)?

Under these conditions it is an utter impossibility for officers to carry out the enforcement of the law and the vendors who are paying for their privileges are helpless in the matter as any action, on their part, would open them to unwarranted action on the part of friends of those who would be brought to the bar of justice. It does not seem that public opinion has been sufficiently awakened to the situation created by the present method of handling the liquor business, and is more tolerant, in varying degrees, than it should be. When the liquor commission puts a price on liquors to all vendors and commands them to sell at a certain price, the government should put a firm hand on any competition that develops through the licensing of export houses. To be more specific--If a bottle of B & W is required it is sold by the vendor for $4.50 and $1.00 added for the physician making a total of $5.50.

Now, the representative of the export concerns steps in and sells the same article for $2.00 less than the licensed vendor. It is well known that liquor is being offered today in the town of Woodstock, Car. Co., at $8 and $10 a case less than the liquor commission charges--and the same brand. The best interests of the public today demand that the licensee, who is honestly striving to abide by the law, under which he operates, should be given protection.

If prohibition is to be enforced it will be impossible to purchase intoxicating liquors except for very definite purposes and under definite regulations. There is no doubt that, if, the law, as adopted, is carried out it will be impossible to purchase liquor except from those legally authorized to sell it. The only test of prohibition is, whether, in the general run of things, it is commonly observed.

If "export houses" maintain a fleet of autos, and are allowed to sell indiscriminately, the government will find there will be a sharp reaction among those who have always supported, even, a not too drastic enforcement of the provisions of the act. Now, Mr. Editor, in conclusion, space accorded me, I am a let me ask why these special favors

SIX YEARS SHORT OF CENTURY MARK

David Mitchell, One of City's Oldest Residents, Died Yesterday--Conducted Bakery for Fifty Years.

(Telegraph, June 20)

But six years short of the century mark, David Mitchell passed away at his home, 27 Castle street, last night at about 7 o'clock, and in his death there has been lost a strong link with the city's early days. Mr. Mitchell came to St John when he was twenty-eight years of age from Londonderry, Ireland, where he was born. For a short time he was employed by the firm of T. Rankine & Sons as a baker, and then he started in business for himself and continued for fifty years to manage a successful business. At that time his advancing age made the responsibilities of ownership too heavy and he gave up his own establishment to enter the employ of Rankine's once more. He retired from active work ten years ago, but until about one year ago he was keenly alert and kept his bright appearance, and in spirit at least retained the vigor of youth. He was a staunch Presbyterian and had been an elder of St John's church, which afterwards united with St. Stephen's, now Knox Church. His wife died ten years ago, and his surviving relatives are three sons, John and James, of this city, and George, of Woodstock; two daughters, Mrs. B. A. Turner, and Miss Elizabeth Mitchell, both at home. Eighteen grand children and eight great grand children also survive. The funeral arrangements had not been completed last night. Mr. Mitchell was a man of sterling character, highly regarded by all who knew him and will be remembered with most kindly feelings. Sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives.

Her many friends wish her every success.--Chatham World.

A Clever Student

T. B. Murphy, Medford, Mass., is again the winner of the Murphy scholarship at Harvard. He also won it last year. The young man will graduate this year in medicine. He is a son of T. W. Murphy, formerly of St John and Woodstock, and a nephew of John and Miss Ada Murphy, West St John, and of J. A. and George W. Gibson, of Woodstock. The scholarship, donated by a successful business man of the United States, a native of Ireland, was offered for all time. In the will making the bequest it was set forth that Irish birth or Irish descent were essential to competition also that the name must be spelled Murphy. These three qualifications are always insisted upon.

are extended only to a certain element largely from Russia and Germany? Why can this element undersell the commission appointed by the government to handle (legally) this business? It would seem to be up to someone to explain certain things. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the act. Now, Mr. Editor, in conclusion, space accorded me, I am a

HOME BREW TO BE FORBIDDEN DRINK

Ottawa, June 14--"Home brew" will shortly be illegal in Canada, if the House of Commons in committee on the budget resolutions passes one of the proposed amendments to the Revenue Act placed before it by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance. The effect of the amendment will be, according to officials of the department of inland revenue, that once the amendment bill has passed the House and receives royal assent, thousands of licenses issued to individuals allowing them to brew beer for their own use will be void. After this bill comes into effect no one except brewers regularly licensed as such by the department of inland revenue will be permitted to brew beer. Officials decline even to estimate the number of licenses who will be affected by the amendments to the act, but admit that they will total several thousands. Until the bill passes the House and Senate and receives royal assent it does not become law, however, so there is a short respite for those who have been making their own beverages.

FIRE LOSS OF $661,856 IN FIRST QUARTER OF YEAR

Figures Compiled By New Brunswick Fire Prevention Board Show Heavy Loss--Some of the Details Shown.

If the monetary loss from fire continues for the remainder of the year in similar proportion to that which has befallen the province during the first three months of this year the staggering sum of $2,600,000 will represent the 1922 loss as a direct result of the fire fiend's activities. There were 360 fires throughout the province during the first quarter, amounting to a loss of $661,856 with $487,780 of this amount covered by insurance. These illuminating figures are contained in the first quarterly bulletin of the New Brunswick Fire Prevention Board, of which H. E. McLellan is fire marshal.

The report details the number of fires in each county and the extent of the damage caused. The counties and the number of fires follow: Albert, 5; Charlotte, 24; Carleton, 34; Gloucester, 17; Kent, 15; Kings, 26; Madawaska, 13; Northumberland, 22; Queens, 5; Restigouche, 16; Sanbary, 3; St John county, 10; St John city, 77; Victoria, 7; Westmorland, 35; York, 31.

Among the more frequent causes of fire it was found that forty-five fires were caused by overheated chimneys, stoves, cupolas, etc., with a loss of $62,000 but this figure does not equal the $7,784 loss from forty-five fires as the result of exposure. Twenty-five fires were caused by electricity, with a loss of $92,701, and seventy-eight fires were of unknown origin, with an approximate loss of $325,223. There were no fires from steam and hot water pipes, lightning, hot metal, fireworks, friction or spontaneous combustion. Carelessly-thrown matches caused fifteen fires.

In the classification of property damaged or destroyed, 156 protected dwellings were burned, twenty-four unprotected buildings went up in smoke; seventy-four farm dwellings were destroyed and eight farm barns. Thirty-eight mercantile stores which were protected and ten which were not protected were burned.

A SUGGESTION

If approached, the owners of the two poles that are on the corner in front of the soldier's monument, might be induced to move them from their present position, or if this is not possible they would, no doubt, be willing to paint them which would add to the beauty of the grounds and monument.

AN EXCUSE THAT WOULDN'T WASH

Jimmy was blubbing loudly, as he resisted his mother's inducements to undergo a thorough "clean-up" in the bathroom. "No, no," sobbed the boy. "I heard teacher say that we are made of dust, and I don't want to be turned into mud."
