WE HAVE THEM

In every community, and Woodstock is no exception, some men, and women too, for that matter, are not raising a finger in any effort to improve the community. They are, happily in the small minority in Woodstock, but they are here, and you can see them. They grouch, not so much at their own taxes, but their neighbors are not taxed enough. These neighbors are devoting much time and effort to the improvemnt of the town. They are spending much thought and energy in improving the streets, sidewalks, and securing new population. The grouchers, who like ly own real estate that is constantly increasing in value, by reason of the improvements, are doing nothing. They are thriving on the work of others.;

There are also people who are work ing for better social conditions in Woodstock. They are supporting the churches and various allied institutions that are making for a better community. The grouchers, are not so much as turning a hand to help in this uplift movement that is making Woodstock a better place in which to live.

Then there is the mercantile grouch There are fortunately few of them in Woodstock, but their fewness makes them conspicious or, perhaps, it were better to say notorious. Most of the business men are working to bring more people to this town to trade. They are doing this most effectively through the local newspapers, that are reciprocating by laboring in season and out of season to keep Woodstock on the map, to publish widespread the advantages of this town, The mercantile grouches are not putting any shoulder to the wheel to help in spreading the gospel of better business in Woodstock, but are content to reap what benefits they may of the expenditure of other poples' money and work. They are catching what trade they can through other enterprise.

One of the injustices of our scheme of society is that the dynamic forces in a live community, like Woodstock, must necessarily benefit these grou chers.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS CONFERANCE

This conference for Sunday School Workers was held in the Methodist Church, Woodstock,Tuesday to Friday August 15 to 18,. Mornng Sessions 9.30 to 11.45, Evenngs 7.45 to 9.00, After noons for recreations at Island Park where all enjoyed themselves thoroughly playing the popular games of volley ball. Picnic suppers were furnished by the ladies of the different churchurches at the Island, and the practical demonstrations of the culinary art by the good ladies of Woodstock were satisfying, appealing and convincing proof of the efficiency of domestic science to ministers to the needs of the "inner man". The staff of instructors ncluded Dr. Frank D. Erb, of Philidelphia, editor Young Peoples' Publications, American Baptist Publication Society, Rev. Waldo C. Machum,of Fredericton, Baptist Field Secretary, Miss Maria McConaghey, of Fredericton, and Rev. M. E. Conron, Woodstock. At the morning sessions Mr. Machum gave a course on young peoples work; Miss McConaghey took charge of the group interested in elementary work; Dr. Erb lectured on Pedagogy, or the art of teaching. In the evening Mr. Machum lectured on Sunday scool administration, and Dr. Erb spoke ontopes of popular interest. The addresses which Dr. Erb gave on teaching were very interesting and practical. He took for his patron the methods of Jesus n his public teching and showed how He first got attention, then appealed to sympathy, awakened real interest, created desire and talked and actd so winsomly that people wanted the things he taught about . Dr. Erb spoke on the "Contributions of the Sunday School to the welfare of the world", and mentioned as some of the great achievements of S.S. efforts, that the S.S. is the mother of our free school system, the founder of good literature for the young; that it taught the children to sing; has been the greatest unifying influence in Christendom; has enormously increased the number of bible students, churches, church members; was the originator of the Chautauqua movement, the Foreign Bible Soicety and various other great institutions. On Wednesday evening he spoke on "Jesus the Religious Educator". He showed that Jesus emphasized character as the essential thing. 100 great business firms in the U. S. are now running on the Golden Rule basis. On Thursday evening the subject was "Keeping Ahead ofYesterday." The church of yesterday was for adults, the church of today that persists in being an adult church, is doomed to failure. 95 p.c. of all additions to our church comes from young people under 20 years of age. 80 p.c. of boys and girls entering S.S. drop out before 20. On Friday evening he spoke on "Some Problems of Young People and How to Meet Them."

On Thursday evening it was voted unanimously to ask the Maritime Religious Education Council to provide for Woodstock next year a "Summer School of Methods," the same as at Sackville and Wolfville, and Mr. Machum promised to bring the matter before the Board of Directors, and saw no reason why it could not be done, except there might be som difficulty in securing the sam staff of instructors. The attendance this year was abont the same as in 1921. Th following is a list of those registered at the conference:
