UNIONISM ON TRIAL

That a contract honorably entered into cannot be broken without dishonor, unless both sides to the agreement are willing, is elementary. This explains the dishonoring of labor unionism by the action of the radicals who make scraps of paper out of their contracts with their employers.

Unionism is on trial today as never before. It is the radical element that has brought about this condition. The conservative unionists suffer just as all railroads suffered because a few of them went wrong and were plundered through speculation.

The radical element is predominating, and from them unionism takes its color in the public mind. Today the people are rapidly coming to the conclusion that the unions cannot and will not be just and fair, and once this opinion becomes set, the unions will find out just what public hostility means.

Why unionism is taking its headlong plunge into oblivion—for that is what it will amount to if the conservatives are unable to call a halt and to assume control again—is both easy and difficult to explain. One contributing factor is the inability of a certain brand of leadership to stand prosperity.

The unions have gone steadily ahead. They have grown in power. They have recognized their power, a power which depends, in the ultimate analysis, on the sympathy of the public. They have scored victory after victory. They have even, in some instances of common knowledge, been able to secure the granting of unfair demands.

The radicals are unable to see an end to the process. The threat of the strike seems all powerful to them, because the strike is a potent weapon. They have consolidated different industries under the control of a central union management, so that one branch of industry may conduct its warfare and, in case of threatened defeat, call out the reserves, as it were, by declaring sympathetic strikes in other and non-affected industries.

Thus has the powerful machine been constructed. Like other machines of aggression there is a great temptation to use it. It is as easy to find an excuse for its use as it was for Germany to say that it was fighting a defensive war in the conflict just ended. The radicals are giving way to the temptation. The same spirit is moving them as has moved kings in the past to make unnecessary war on their neighbors.

The public has also been indifferent. There is somthing mightily appealing in a movement that aims at the betterment of conditions. Take the demand for an eight-hour day. That appealed and continued to appeal, until it was plain that it was not honest and that the desire was not to have workmen quit at the end of eight hours that they might enjoy the companionship of their families, or improve their minds or bodies by reading and recreation, but was wanted only that the receiving of overtime pay might start the quicker.

The public is beginning to think that many of the aims of unionized labor are improper and are not just to the unorganized part of the laboring world, by far the larger part. They are also beginning to fear that there is being built up a government within a government, that labor, through intimidation of not over strong public officials, is bringing about the rule of the majority by a very small minority.

The public is beginning to fear for itself, its safety and comfort because of the greed of radical unionism. And so far as radical unionism is concerned, the public is waking up none too soon. For the struggle has been joined. In its wrath, if the present trend continues much longer, the public will demand the wiping away of all unionism. Because of this, sane unionism is on trial. It must fight for its very life. It is just as much in the interests of sane unionism to combat the radicals as it is for the public to do so.

Find Liquor Missing."—Headline. Which is much different from "Find Missing Liquor."

According to Chief Inspector Hawthorne, a still hunt will reveal many of them in New Brunswick.

The town of Woodstock paying part of the liabilities of certain parishes in the county is full of dangerous possibilities and is a matter for very serious consideration.

Trial by jury has become more or less a subject of derision. The legal minds of the country should consider some method of reform that would be more in the interests of justice.—Times.

The job of being manager of the exhibition is gradually growing to be something else than to be the subject of unreasonable fault-finding. A way will have to be found whereby a man appointed to this office will receive more help and less silly opposition.

The railway and coal situation is becoming a matter that will compel executives to turn their attention to the electrification of railroads. There is power sufficient, many times over, now going to waste, to run most of the railroads. And some day electrification will be an established fact.

A Young Liberal Association has been organized in Woodstock and will spread over the constituency. Both of the old parties must reckon with the Progressives, and there can be no success without patient and well-planned organization behind a definite policy which appeals to the people.—Times.

It is difficult to understand why any body of working men should pick out the present as a good time to strike. There are thousands of men out of employment because they can't find it. It would seem that a strike would be better staged when the market was on a boom, when demand was straining supply and when there was a widespread industrial activity. Striking on a bad market looks like poor generalship.

Has prohibition developed a new crop of grouches? We all talk about the .44 calibre fiend when intoxicated, but what of the opposite fellow in whom the milk of human kindness never flowed until it was primed with intoxicating beverage? In order to determine whether you are one of the new grouches: "Are you sour when sober, Have you become fussy? Do you think everything has gone to the dogs? Have you thought of resigning from the lodge? If so, sign on the dotted line.

If the users of highways would bear in mind that the roads are narrow, we wouldn't hear of the grist of motor car disasters. There is not room enough unless all use due caution. A bicyclist remarked the other day, that he would rather be arrested for riding on the sidewalks than take the chance of having his neck broken by being run into by an automobile on the streets. The reckless driver is bringing the whole automobile fraternity in disrepute. It is the duty of sensible motorists to join in an effort to make it possible for everyone to use the streets and highways without fear of danger.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' CONFERENCE

The anual Christian Workers Conference, for the people of the Upper St. John River, will be held in Woodstock, August 15—18 inclusive, under the auspices of The Maritime Religious Educational Council.

The classes will be held in the Methodist church in the forenoons and the afternoon will be given up to recreation on "Island Park, followed by a picnic supper.

The instructors will be Rev. M. E. Conron of Woodstock, Dr. Frank O. Erb, Philadelphia, Miss Maria McConaghy, Fredericton and Rev. W. C. Machum.

The registration fee is $1.00 and board will be provided at $1.00 per day.

Further particulars may be obtained from any Sunday School Superintendent.

A COOL RECEPTION

Two Houlton lads, a Ford Sedan and several officers in pursuit, furnished a lot of excitement a day or two ago. The young chaps appropriated the car and went out to do the Houlton boulevards and finally included in their program a trip to Woodstock. They arrived in due time and after making a dive at the wood pile near the laundry and smashing the headworks of the auto, they concluded that Fredericton would be a desirable spot to visit while the tour was uninterrupted. This last decision proved their downfall, as an attack on a team with disastrous results to team and car,, about eighteen miles from Fredericton, gave the pursuing officers a clue. The hilarious youngsters were taken into custody and held here for Houlton officers. Damages were adjusted satisfactorily and the boys were taken to their homes where the parental reception was evidently feared, as one lad remarked "We'll get it when we get home."

MAY WANT HARVESTERS

(St. John Telegraph)

It is problematical how many harvesters will leave New Brunswick this year for the western provinces. Unemployment in this province is decreasing, but it is thought several hundred who are not permanently employed will join the excursionists.

It is officially announced that 41,000 harvesters will be required to handle the prairie crops this year, exclusive of those to be obtained from prairie cities and towns. The rate of wages will be $3.50 a day for harvesters and $4.00 a day for threshers.

The first harvester excursions will leave here the first week in August and will continue until about August 20th.

Of the total number of men required 37,000 will be drawn from eastern Canada and 4,000 from British Columbia.

SELECT YOUR CAR FOR MURDER PURPOSES

Bracebridge Gazette:—Far be it from me to suggest murder. In fact, one will probably feel more comfortable in his declining years if he never commits murder. But, when one sees a good thing, it is but neighborly to pass it on to his friends. So I say to you, if you feel you really must murder someone, do it not with a club or a gun or a razor or an axe, or, even poison, do it with an automobile. An automobile presupposes wealth. But do not commit your murder with a Ford; run her down with a Rolls-Royce, Moon, Packard or some other high priced type. That entitles you to respect in Canada's most select and all-powerful circles. If at all convenient, take a drink or two before the killing, and have a drop or two in the car. That ensures sympathy and respect afterwards. There is always some slight feeling against one who kills a human when perfectly sober. Look: Chas. Syrett, a prominent business man of Toronto ran down a woman and child and killed the child. He had been drinking. He was convicted of manslaughter sentenced on May 13th to a year at the gaol farm and pardoned July 10th. This is in line with other punishments for the same kind of crime. Harris Goldbery was sentenced to two years all but a day. He was released after serving two months. Others have been mentioned before. So, you see, get a flask, a good car and a good chance and your country will do the rest.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

Lady escaping from hotel fire in cheap, plain robe re nuit.

Driver admitting that he might possibly be to blame for automobile accident.

Butcher advising customer to take the "cheaper cuts of beef."

Lawyer telling prospective client that his case will be easy to win.

Society bride being acclaimed as plain looking and unaccomplished.

Banquet speaker blushing when the toastmaster refers to him as a brilliant and illustrous citizen.

Man worrying about the same thing he was worrying about a year ago.

The officials of the town of North Adams, Mass., are effectively enforcing the anti-speed ordinance with an original road barrier. An officer stands at the side of the road with a red lantern. Speeding drivers are hailed and cautioned to use discretion, providing they stop. If they fail to stop the officer blows his whistle and farther along the road a belt filled with short spikes is stretched across the highway. No one has run past it as yet.

SPICED RASPBERRIES

To the raspberries left after making raspberry shrub, add four cups of sugar and one cup boiling water. Tie in a square of cheesecloth, two sticks of cinnamon broken in small pieces and one half dozen cloves; add to the berries and sugar and heat to the boil ing point; let boil or simmer one hour Remove spices and strain while hot through a fine sieve to remove the seeds. Reheat the pulp and pour while hot into sterilized jelly glasses. Store as other jelly, serve with roast meats or with game.

PEOPLE NOW MAKE THEIR OWN BOOZE

(St. John Telegraph)

"Everybody makes their own," was the jocular remark made by J. B. Hawthorne, chief liquor inspector, last evening when asked if prohibition was working successfully.

He did not mean that every home in the province had a private still but that such luxuries were becoming more plentiful. He said that it was safe to say that there were well over thirty of these in operation in the province but in many cases it was beyond the jurisdiction of the inspectors to interfere with the operations. Unless those who were running these stills could be found distributing the goods the provincial inspectors were helpless as the manufacture of intoxicating liquor was under the jurisdiction of the federal authorities and any masures to stop it would have to be taken by the department of Inland Revenue.
