HON. JAMES MURDOCK PAYS HIS RESPECTS TO WOODSWORTH

The German Champion Told Few Truths

(Hansard)

Hon. JAMES MURDOCK (Minister of Labor): I can imagine no other condition or time under which it could be as conclusively proven that "time is a great healer." Hon. members in this House, imagine, if you can, four years ago tonight, sitting deliberately and listening to a statement from an hon. gentleman such as we have heard for the past hour and a half. I want to say, only a few words in regard to this particular matter, and not of necessity dealing at all with the particular question of reparations, or the question of the sums owing to Canada by Germany. I care not personally whether the reparations ever came or not, but I do believe that there are some things that surely the hon. member for Centre Winnipeg (Mr. Woodsworth) has either overlooked or else never experienced. He spoke of the great trouble, tribulation and hardship that would come to future generations of German children should there be insistence on the payment of these reparations. I imagine that I learned in my younger days and since from the same Book of Holy Writ as my hon. friend from Centre Winnipeg, and in that I found conveyed the suggestion of an eye for an eye and that justice is eternal. Four years ago that would have been conclusively proven to my hon. friend and other members of this House, I imagine, had anyone even thought of such a thing as raising the question that we have heard raised tonight.

I wonder if my hon. friend from Centre Winnipeg knows anything of the wounds in the hearts of tens of thousands of Canadian mothers that are being opened up afresh tonight, and that would, if his view carried, figuratively speaking, bleed with the injustice of the proposals that have been discussed before us. I think it can be very readily conceded that sentiment very largely rules the world, and looking at it from every viewpoint of sentiment, I cannot but express the view that my hon. friend from Centre Winnipeg has acted in entire disregard of the feelings of tens of thousands of Canadian mothers, yea, and of Canadian fathers, in making any such proposal or indulging in any such discussion as we have just listened to. My hon. friend surely overlooked the fact that mankind in all the ages, from the garden of Eden, has, we are told, been paying the penalty for sin, for injustice, for violation of the law, and does he appeal to us as human beings, thousands of Canadian citizens, with hearts still bleeding, and expect us to forget all of our conception of human justice and right, and do the work of forgiving, white-washing, waiving these things to one side, as is suggested in his resolution? The hon. member undertook, as I understood, to show that maybe Germany was not responsible for the war to the extent that was alleged, but I would submit to my hon. friend that were it possible for this resolution to pass, tens of thousands of Canadian mothers and fathers would hear the tramp of a nation run mad with the lust and desire for conquest, marching through Belgium, and that would be the only thing that they could see was the cause of the war.

I desire to say, Mr. Speaker, that so far as I am personally concerned, I think the proposal of my hon. friend tonight is in entire disregard of the sufferings, the sacrifices and the feelings, present and future, of tens of thousands of Canadian citizens, and might I, in all seriousness suggest that if my hon. friend is so sincerely desirous of bringing about peace and of obtaining harmony and co-operation, he will find wide scope in the industrial field here in Canada, where there is ample opportunity for the exercise of his undoubted ability and great earnestness in this direction. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the motion should never have been discussed, because in my judgment thousands of our Canadian citizens will never be able to understand why we should, at this time, have listened to any such proposals as have come to us tonight.
