There is something about the color of MORSE'S SELECTED ORANGE PEKOE Tea when you see it in the cup, which is impressive. You instantly spot it as good quality. You say to yourself, "that looks like good quality." Afterward when you have taken your first sip you say to yourself: "Yes, it looks good and it is good; in fact it is the best tea I ever tasted."

Sewing Circle Gossip

There was some discussion at the Sewing Circle this week about the respective merits of local and western beef. The wife of the new Bank Manager said that she had no preference; she would just as soon have one as the other. The only thing on her table she said about which she was very particular, was her coffee. She insisted on LUXOR ORIENTAL COFFEE, and would take no other kind. If the grocer sent her any other kind she sent it back. The new Bank Manager's wife is a strong-minded woman and a sensible one too.
