THE NAZI LINE

If you don't know the Nazi line in this country, here it is:
"Look out for Russia. We will have to fight the Communists before we are through, so it's best not to supply them with too much war material."

"We shouldn't have gotten into this war in the first place, but now that we are in it we have to win." This line creates sentiment for a negotiated peace at the first opportunity.

"The English are just waiting for others to do the fighting for them, as always. Why be suckers for them?"

"The British never will invade the Continent until there are American suicide squads to do the dying."

"Let's keep our soldiers and our ships at home to protect our own shores." That's a mighty good way to lose the war.

"This war is going to end up in a war between the white and yellow races." The purpose of this is to create the feeling that the Japs and not the Nazis are our mortal enemies, which will help the idea of a negotiated peace.

"England is more of a liability in this war than she is an asset. They can't win a battle. We have to protect their possessions for them."

In addition to the above, the rumormongers are working overtime on direful tidings.

Bristol

Carleton County teachers held an interesting meeting recently when they convened for the first time following the Easter vacation. This meeting, held at Bristol was addressed by Rev. Mr. Haslam, of East Florenceville on "The Excellences of the Rural Compared to the Urban Community." The President, Neil Ganter, principal at Centreville, brought to the club a splendid report of the New Brunswick Teachers' Convention which he had taken advantage of attending during the Easter vacation. The teachers profited by a discussion in three groups on subjects in which they took particular interest. Dainty refreshment were served by the teachers of Bristol.

TENANTS WARNED CONCERNING RENTS

Urging that all tenants who are moving into new premises this year find out from the landlords and former tenants the maximum rentals paid, as well as the exact accommodations in the way of services, equipment and facilities supplied by the landlord to former tenants, the rentals officer of the New Brunswick Regional Office of the War-time Prices and Trade Board stated here today that a check-up will be made in the occupancy of premises where there has been any change in the identity of the tenant. This will be done, he stated, in order to obtain a due observance of the rentals regulations by the landlords and tenants alike.

"Such investigations will be followed by prompt enforcement measures if there has been any unlawful increase in the amount of rent," the rentals officer declared. He said that it is unlawful for landlords and tenants to agree upon an increase in rent without such an agreement being sanctioned by the rentals committee.

He also stated that it was equally an offence under the regulations for a tenant to pay as well as for the landlord to accept a rental in excess of such maximum rental.

It was pointed out that the rentals regulations contained a provision making it compulsory for every landlord or representative to prepare and keep available a record describing clearly and fully any of his real property for which the maximum rental is fixed by the regulations or fixed under the provisions of any order of the Board. Such record must state the amount of rent fixed and the name of the tenant who was or is obligated to pay such rental and the name of every subsequent tenant.

"To facilitate the work of the Board out-going tenants should readily supply such information to the incoming tenants and also report such information to the incoming tenants and also report such information by letter to the New Brunswick Regional Office of the Board, 58 King Street, Saint John, N. B. In such communications addressed to the Board's office at Saint John, tenants should set forth their names, the addresses of the premises they are vacating, the amount of rent paid, the name of the landlords and the nature and extent of the services, equipment or facilities that had been supplied by the landlords," the rentals officer declared.
