CARLETON COUNTY LEADS AGAIN

Modesty is a becoming trait either in an individual or a community. There are times, however, when even modesty becomes an impossible virtue. This is one of them so far as Carleton County is concerned. It is doubtful if any county in all Canada surpassed the result shown by Carleton County in this week's plebiscite. Unrevised figures show 8134 yes votes against 399 noes, a verdict of roughly 20 to 1 in favor of an all out war effort.

Not one poll in the county showed an adverse result. Johnville, where it was at first incorrectly reported that the noes had a two to one majority in light voting was found later to have 81 "Yes" votes against 40 "Noes". Woodstock did itself proud with a 33 to one yes majority. Hartland was even better with 45 to 1, Jacksonville was 73 to one, East Florenceville about 45 to one, Debec more than 20 to one. Two banner polls, however, were Florenceville, Simonds and Wicklow. In each of these polls only a single negative vote was recorded while the yes ballots approached the 150 mark. This remarkable showing was duplicated by our next door neighbor Meductic in York County.

With the exception of Johnville, in no community did the "noes" receive as high as one sixth of the total votes cast.

The showing in this county has been brilliant. It reflects the greatest credit both on the patriotism and good sense of our citizens and on efforts of those who worked unceasingly to achieve such a success, and to ensure that an unusually high percentage of voters went to the polls.

The verdict in Carleton County cannot fail to be most heartening and encouraging to thousands of Carleton County men who are serving overseas. This county continues to show the way.

THEIR HANDS ARE FREED

Canada voted in smashing style on Monday to free the government from any pre-election pledges which would hamper the war effort. The total vote is not yet known, but even without the ballots of hundreds of thousands of men and women who are serving in the forces, it is evident that the "yes" majority is overwhelming. Every province except Quebec voted yes in a ratio of anywhere from 2-1 to 10-1.

The result in New Brunswick was most creditable, a huge majority being achieved in spite of a heavy adverse vote from the French counties. These, with the exception of Restigouche, were frankly disappointing; especially so in Madawaska, which we fear has justified its unofficial title of the Republic of Madawaska. The attitude of the French counties is hard to understand in view of the excellent showing they have made and are making, and also in view of the predominatingly "yes" sentiment of our French-speaking soldiers.

Sympathy is extended to those French men and women—and they were many—who voted in accordance with what they knew to be right, and who must be bitterly stung and humiliated by the way so many of their people have let them down and have let Canada down. In the meantime the Government of Canada know just where the people of Canada stand. The people want and demand an intensification of the war effort, and no section of the country must be allowed, or will be allowed, to stand in the way of the war effort.

The result of the election will make encouraging reading for the British and Americans, and conversely discouraging reading for Hitler and his Nazis.

A WORTHY EFFORT

Last year the Canadian Ladies' Gold Union raised money to purchase a fighter plane and three mobile kitchens for Britain. The Woodstock club came fifth in New Brunswick in contributions to this worthy cause. Golfers will be the happier for knowing that in these terrible days they are using their peace time sport in a concerted effort to bring some protection and succour to British men, women and children who have carried on so bravely and cheerfully. The executive hope for a good attendance of members on Monday.

THE STORY OF MONEY

By Mrs. Laura Glass Simms

have been used as money in many countries, such as India, Babylonia, Egypt, Siam and Arabia.

It is rather hard to imagine money in the form of dried fish. But in countries of Europe, where fishing is an important business, this kind of money has been used until very recent times.

In Russia, many years ago, there was a very curious kind of money. It consisted of small pieces of skin, of different shapes, cut out of the whole skin of animals. The person who received one of these pieces had a right to the whole skin out of which it had been cut.

In the British Colonies of America and elsewhere, during the seventeenth century, almost everything that one could think of served as money in different places. Among these things were corn, sugar, rum, cotton, wool, mahogany, molasses, ginger, indigo, furs and skins and dried codfish. In the West Indies the use of sugar and tobacco as money lasted until only a little more than a century ago. In Virginia, during the colonial days of American history, tobacco was a very widely used form of money. Even salaries used to be paid in tobacco.

In ancient China, knives and pieces of shirt-cloth were long in use as money. But these things were troublesome to handle, and over 2000 years ago there came into wide-spread use small bronze models of the original articles. These were known as the pu, or shirt money, and the tao, or knife money. In order to make the knife money convenient to handle, the blade was made very small and the end of the handle was made round and pierced with a square hole so that the money could be strung on a cord. Finally, the blade was dropped altogether, leaving round pieces of metal, each with a small square hole in the middle. These became the famous Chinese Cash, which have been in use for hundreds of years.

Shells and beads have probably been used more widely as money than any other articles, aside from the standard money of modern times. The reason is that people everywhere valued them as ornaments, and so were glad to take them in exchange. They lasted well, and it was easy to divide them into large or small amounts.

The Indians of North America had a curious kind of money called wampum. It consisted of black and white shells, rubbed down, polished made into beads, and then strung into belts and necklaces. Wampum was used by the white people in trading with the Indians. But its value was destroyed after a time by cheap European imitations.

There has been a close connection between money and personal adornment.

Countries of the ancient world, like Egypt, Babylonia, and Assyria, which were great empires with splendid civilizations, never invented coins. But they used to make beautiful gold and silver ornaments, such as earrings and bracelets frequently used to pass from hand to hand as money.

principal of the school.

The bride graduated from Coakale High School, later taking a course in Calgary where she was employed until about a year ago when she returned to Lethbridge to accept a position.

Many relatives at Canterbury and Temple, N. B., will extend best wishes to the bride and groom.

The bride's mother was formerly Miss Mae Scott of Canterbury. Burns (Jr.) Hillman of Waterville, Me., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. Hillman.

The W. A. of the Anglican Church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. Lundon.

A social evening was held in the Orange Hall Thursday evening in honor of Samuel Dow, of Winnipeg, Man., who is spending leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dow. Cards and dancing were enjoyed. During the evening the honor or guest was presented a gift. Refreshments were served by members of the younger set.

Dr. C. T. Lundon, and Col. A. E. (Ned) Lundon of Montreal who were here to attend the funeral of the late John Lundon, have returned home.

For travelling she wore a gray and blue tweed coat over her wedding frock. The out of town guests included Mrs. O. B. Doten and Mrs. Frank Estabrooks, McAdam. The bride has been honored at several social functions prior to her marriage.
