FLIES FOUND TO BE A SOURCE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

An interesting statement, made recently in a report to the American Health Association, was that flies were carriers of infantile paralysis virus. It was pointed out that poliomyelitis is a disease of summer, more prevalent in rural areas than elsewhere.

Warmer weather will probably bring flies in just as great profusion as ever. It is obvious how important it is, then, to guard against infantile diarrhoea and other diseases often caused by flies which pick up the deadly contagious germs on manure heaps, exposed garbage and other favorite breeding places.

Health authorities rightly warn against allowing flies to enter the home or the store, where they deposit filthy bacteria (which may number 5,000,000 for a single fly) on food, drink and even little babies sleeping in their cribs.

The importance of this cannot be over-emphasized, but to destroy flies before they get in their deadly work is, obviously, the safest solution, as it eliminates the extraordinarily prolific breeding capacity of the common house fly. In this connection it is very generally conceded that Wilson's Fly Pads offer a rapid, safe, sure and efficient method of killing all the flies. Just a few Pads in the right place, at the right time, will do the trick. In war days, the keeping up of a nation's morale is greatly aided by protecting health and anything that helps to exterminate flies, helps to do this.

Incidentally, Wilson's Fly Pads work wonders in destroying ants, too, which are destructive, annoying pests, indoors and outdoors.
