into beef.

SUPPORT INVITED

"It should be remembered that while there are great economic advantages in maintaining a direct connection between this country and Britain in hog marketings, the economic advantages in relation to cattle are in maintaining our connections with the United States.
Any policy devised must both in our own interests and that of the war effort be so arranged as to keep our meat supplies in Britain and so far as beef is concerned in the United States as well as Canada.

"With the enormous supplies of other food which we have it is not nearly so important to keep a slice of any particular kind of meat which will help our allies on our own plate at present as it is to ship it to where it will do the most good.

"In the program which is being prepared we hope for and know we will get the support of all household organizations, farmers, and the press."
