PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT V. O. N. ANNUAL

service available for men, women, and children regardless of race, color, creed, or financial status, and a our town, every category just named is represented in our V.O.N. committee. Each new case reported from any source is visited, but nursing care is given only under the direction of a physician. Each year our nurse cares for medical, surgical, and clinic cases, instructs the expectant mother in the care of her health, assists the doctor at delivery, gives nursing care to the mother and baby during the week following and supervises their health for at least six weeks. One advantage of a visiting nursing service is that patients can frequently be discharged from hospital earlier than would be otherwise advisable, thus reducing the cost of illness to the individual family or to the municipality.

But not all the burden has been carried by the nurse, albeit she has carried the major part. For five years citizens of the town, business and professional men and women, and homemakers whose time is never wholly their own have given their time and of their experience to help direct the work of this branch of public service. Our board, composed of twelve members, meets monthly with an average attendance of eight.

In the report of the nurse, of the secretary, and of the treasurer, and we stand ready to do what work may be required of us to ensure the smooth running of the organization. During the past year, we have lost the services of Mr. Scovil Baldwin, an efficient secretary, and of Mr. H. W. Dick, treasurer for several months prior to his leaving town to continue his work in another branch of the Bank of Montreal. We are much indebted to both of these for their interest and valuable assistance. For a time, the work of both offices was done by Mr. R. W. Maxwell, and for the past few months, Mrs. Gordon Noble has given us excellent service as secretary-treasurer. We are indeed fortunate to have officers of the attainments and ability of Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Dick, and Mr. Maxwell, and particularly fortunate in having a person of Mrs. Noble's ability, experience, and attitude willing to serve the community so well and so cheerfully when we all know there are many other calls upon her time and strength.

While speaking of service rendered gratuitously, I trust you will not think it amiss for me to mention that for the years that we have handled the Christmas Seal T. B. Sale in Woodstock all the clerical work has been done in the Vocational School. We have had the use of all school facilities, the students have kept the cards up to date, have made innumerable lists, and this year they delivered the seals and thereby saved at least $10.00 in postage. The first year that we had a sale in Woodstock, Colonel Manzer was the chairman of the committee, and I acted as his secretary. Each year I have directed the work done by the students, and Mr. Maxwell has worked long and earnestly to manage the sale for all except the first year. Our purpose in having the students help with the work is two-fold. We realize that the work requires far more time than a busy person can devote to it, and we hope through their work, to make the students conscious of the good that the seal campaign procures for the residents of the town. During the past year, we have given a room in this school to the nurse for her office. We feel that in co-operating to improve the health of the community we are but tending the sphere of our public service.

During the past two years, we have had an annual tag day, and his year's receipts were much better than those of last year. Mrs. A. H. Carr and Mrs. J. L. Stone, members of our local board, planned the campaign, and in Mrs. Stone's absence from town, Mrs. Carr directed it and did a remarkably fine piece of work. Young girls, students of our school and of the high school sold the tags. Although the return from the T. B. Seals is lower this year, the difference is more than recovered in the increase of this year's tag day receipts over those of last year. In responding to these appeals, we feel that the public is expressing in the right way its commendation of our excellent service.

Regarding the cost of illness, it has been said that the rich do not suffer for lack of attention, neither do the very poor, but the great middle class may. With a service such as the V. O. N. renders in this community, no one suffers if the need of care is made known. Kindness and love may, and do, play their part in lightening the burden of illness, but in most cases skill is also needed—skill and understanding, and I feel confident that in the representatives of the V. O. N. service who have served us, we have had all the requisites for courteous, painstaking service rendered with the utmost care and discretion.

Our sincere thanks are due to the following financial local supporters:

Compressing maximum nourishment into minimum space was an important consideration in preparing the ration to be placed on life-saving floats. The salt tins in the foreground contain biscuits, whole milk tablets and chocolate bars, one of the larger tins contain the day's supply of water. Lieutenant R. W. Millard of Vancouver and Surgeon Lieutenant Commander J. E. DeBelle of Montreal, above, were two of the Canadian Navy men who produced this new emergency ration kit which is placed in special compartments on the rafts and floats.

The Canadian Parachute Corps wears distinctive uniform badges. The upper illustration of the cap badge combines the flying aspect of the service as represented by the Wings, the jumping as represented by the parachute and the maple leaves identifying the corps with Canada. The centre illustration of a collar badge shows the paratrooper's hand with unsheathed dagger dropping from a cloud, "Ex Coeles" meaning "Out of Heaven" conveys the suggestion that paratroopers drop from the clouds behind enemy lines and use their highly specialized fighting ability to full advantage. The uniform buttons illustrate a maple leaf suspended from a parachute partially surrounded by the word "Canada."

Boxing is one of several sports encouraged in the Canadian Army and the burly young men who make up the nation's army have excellent opportunities to learn the "manly art of self defence" under expert instruction. The picture shows a boxing class in action in a Salvation Army hut in camp "somewhere in Eastern Canada." Here the boys meet once or twice a week and the instructors exercise in this sport teach them the art from A to Z. The boys are not permitted to go into real competition until they are trained. In this way they are protected from injuries. Below are two of the lads, champions of their particular classes, engraving in a brick battle. They are Rfm. Henry O'Toole (left) and Rfm. Robert Smith both of Montreal. Boxing is just one of the many activities of the Salvation Army Hut in providing recreation and entertainment for the armed services when they are "off parade."
