MAINTAIN THE PRICE CEILING

The Montreal Star
 The Wartime Prices and Trade Board is very much in earnest in its policy of strict enforcement of the price ceiling. Anybody who is in doubt about this and who is hopeful of evading prosecution may be quite sure that sooner or later the Board, like the Income Tax Department, will catch up with them. The public has a duty to perform in supporting the price ceiling policy, because without that policy we should by now be miserably enmeshed in an inflationary spiral, and the country would face financial disaster long before victory is clearly in sight.

Those who deliberately violate the law face heavy penalties, and it is the duty of those upon whom law enforcement rests to see that these penalties are enforced. There is not the slightest justification for a mere nominal sentence in such cases. There are, doubtless, not a few instances in which the offence of selling higher than the price ceiling has been inadvertently committed, or is solely the fault of some irresponsible employee. That should be clearly pointed out to the offender. But where, on the other hand, it is clearly proven that the ceiling has been exceeded for the sole purpose of making a profit prohibited by law, then exemplary sentences are called for in the public interest, because it is only by exemplary sentences that offenders who are seeking nothing but undue profit can be deterred from repeating the offence.

It is only fair to say that the great bulk of businesses, like the great bulk of the buying public, have loyally supported the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. If the deliberate offenders are taught sufficiently drastic lessons, there should be a swift decrease in price ceiling breakages.

Empire Airmen See Plane Plants

THE close co-operation which exists between the British Empire and the United States was much in evidence at a unique get-together in Dearborn, Michigan, of boys from Britain who are training to be R.A.F. flyers at a base in Michigan, and American boys who are training at an R.C.A.F. school at Windsor, Ontario. They were guests of the Ford Motor Company for the day and saw a private showing of the recent movie "A Yank in the R.A.F."; toured the great Ford Rouge plant where engines for war planes are being produced, and visited the mammoth new plant where Ford will build four-engined bombers of the Liberator type used by the R.A.F. Among the guests at this international gathering were, above, Wallace R. Campbell president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Flight-Lieutenant Desmond Roberts, officer in charge of the R.A.F. unit at Grosse Ile, Mich., and Flight-Lieutenant H. L. Kay, officer commanding the R.C.A.F. training school at Windsor.
