ULTRA VIRES

The late Manitoba School Act, intended to abolish the separate school system in the Prairie Province, has, by the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, been declared unconstitutional, as contravening an important provision of the measure by which Manitoba was created a province. The Act had been fiercely fought over in Manitoba, strenuously demanded and defended, hotly resisted, its disallowance asked for, and its nullification in the courts required. The separate school party, beaten in their own Province at the polls and in the legislature, have triumphed at last in the Supreme Court. The unanimity of the judges seems to indicate that the case made out was clear. The matter, however, is not finally ended, an appeal to the higher court in England now lies open, and it is, it is said, to be resorted to. But it seems probable that the decision will stand.

THE MINISTER'S STRIKE.

Mr. Chapleau, Secretary of State at Ottawa, was being added to the sensations of the hour by going on strike for a higher position. The office he has filled in the Federal Government is equal in emolument, and, save the premiership, in dignity to that of any other cabinet position in the government, and more than equal in lightness of labor. But its command of patronage is small.

Mr. Chapleau is a man of mark, with large capacity for stump oratory, and knows it. He claims that a more influential portfolio should be given him—that of Railways and Canals, or of Public Works, for instance. He has been pressing his claims for some time, as virtual leader of his party in Quebec, and as special representative of Montreal, its most important district. But government supporters from Ontario are understood to be strongly opposed to the concession of his demand. Last week, therefore, he sent in his resignation, which, up to the hour of writing, has not been acted on. There is talk of a compromise in the case.

The moment selected for the strike was shrewdly chosen, one at which it seemed easy to embarrass, if not to endanger the existence of the government. But, however, the matter may end immediately. Mr. Chapleau will not add to his weight and influence as a politician and a statesman by his movement.

THE GREAT STEAL.

The great steal investigation in Quebec is about to close, if it has not already ended. The commission seems to have striven to get at the true inwardness of the case, and has succeeded in establishing its main facts. But much remains unexplored. Since our last issue glimpses of a new feature have been caught. Some five or seven thousand dollars of the Quebec steal are reported to have been sent to this province for use in the Dominion election then going on.

Public opinion as to the finding of the commission seems settled. It remains to be seen whether the fact will accord with the expectation, and what the result, as to the condition of the political parties in Quebec, will be.

DANGEROUS BABBLE.

Mr. Gladstone is now quite an old man, and he is in many respects a wonderful one. But he is beginning to pass into his second childhood. It is said that some of his recent stump deliverances have been marked by evidence of failing powers. Much complaint has especially been made of his declaration respecting Britain's military occupancy of Egypt. He pronounced in favor of the speedy withdrawal of the British forces from the Nile valley, regardless of the interests involved, or of the dangerous embarrassment to his country that might be brought about. Report says that many of Mr. Gladstone's supporters strongly object to the tone of his remarks on the Egyptian question.

But, in fact, confidence in the wisdom of Mr. Gladstone's dealing with foreign affairs was never strong. He was overmuch given to gush, on occasions wanting in reticence, was not noted for farsightedness, and unprepared for things turning up, and he failed sadly in the enduring courage characteristic of his race.

The government of Chili has refused to the United States government the satisfaction demanded of it for ill-treatment of United States seamen by Chilean mobs in some street rows. It does not seem likely that serious results will follow the refusal.

Bismarck is about to re-enter the German Parliament, with, it is said, the intention to work up an opposition to the German government. He is not likely to engage in reckless proceedings to avenge his wrongs to the danger of his country.

Immense progress is being made in the application of electric power to the uses of every day life. The illumination of houses, streets, shops, factories and public buildings is proceeding with lightning like rapidity, and the use of electricity as a motive power to machinery has extended wonderfully. Presently street railways everywhere will be worked by electric power, judging by the progress made in this direction.

IN MRS. MAYBRICK'S BEHALF, T American Women Joining in the Effort to Secure Her Pardon.

A great deal of sympathy is expressed in England (the land of her adoption) and in the United States (the land of her birth) for Mrs. Florence Maybrick, now serving out a sentence in an English prison for poisoning her husband—that is to say according to the judicial determination of the court which tried her case.

Many petitions in her behalf have been sent to the home secretary, and Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Foster and the wives of other men of prominence at Washington have recently sent a petition to the Queen asking for Mrs. Maybrick's pardon.

Private letters have been sent from all parts of the country to Mrs. Blaine, asking her to use her influence with her husband, but Mr. Blaine is understood to be already a firm believer in Mrs. Maybrick's innocence.

The popular feeling in England was so great that within three days of the passing of sentence some 3,000 petitions were sent in against it, with more than 500,000 signatures. It was under this pressure that Mr. Matthews, the secretary of state for the home department, reviewed the case and commuted Mrs. Maybrick's sentence of death to penal servitude for life.

But why ask for Mrs. Maybrick's pardon if she be not guilty? Because there is no appeal for her to any court of justice. By the English law the case cannot be reopened. English and American people, therefore, ask the Queen to pardon her.

The judge who sentenced her to death has since become insane. His mental malady was so apparent soon after the trial that his resignation was demanded on the score of mental incapacity.

English women ask American women to act in the matter because Mrs. Maybrick is an American. A fund has been raised for Mrs. Maybrick's benefit, to which Mrs. James G. Blaine, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Miss Helen Dinmore and others have each contributed $100, and the New England Woman's Press Association has pledged itself to use its influence in Mrs. Maybrick's behalf. Other organizations of women are expected to follow.

Mrs. Maybrick's grandfather, David Chandler, was born at Warrington, Ga., was an able lawyer and a most philanthropic man. He was mainly instrumental in founding Wesleyan College, the first in the world to grant a diploma to girls. His eldest son, William G. Chandler, was the father of Mrs. Maybrick. Her mother was Miss Holbrook, a daughter of the late Darius Blake Holbrook of New York, who was associated with Cyrus W. Field in laying the first Atlantic cable. Rev. John Ingraham, rector of Grace Church in St. Louis and author of "The Prince of the House of David," was an Uncle of Mrs. Maybrick's mother.

The claim of innocence put forth upon Mrs. Maybrick's behalf rests mainly upon these assertions: That Mr. Maybrick was an arsenic eater; that the poison found in his body was taken by him medicinally and was not administered by his wife; that sufficient in amount to cause death, and that he really died from natural causes.

Earthquake and Fire Destroy Japanese Towns.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Despatches from Japan state that shocks of earthquake have been experienced in that country. Hiogo, on the island of Honshu, has been almost entirely destroyed. Telegraph wires are down and particulars are hard to obtain, but it is known that a large number of lives have been lost. At Osaka, a city of 250,000 inhabitants, 800 persons are known to have been killed and thousands of buildings destroyed.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Advices from Japan state that an earthquake on Wednesday last destroyed the towns of Nagoya, Gifu and Ojaki. All the public buildings and most of the smaller structures in those places were thrown down. In Nagoya, one of the finest cities in the Empire, the fire broke out and completed the work of destruction. It is estimated that 3000 human beings lost their lives. In the vicinity of Hiogo many vessels were reported wrecked. The telegraph wires are prostrated and details are impossible to get.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A private despatch from Japan says additional advices regarding the recent earthquake show that the total loss of life may be over ten thousand.

Minard's Liniment for Rheumatism.

Portland, Me.

Oct. 27, 1891.—The weather here has been unsettled for the last few days. Previous to this, it had been very pleasant weather for the season.

Most of our girls have returned from their summer vacation. One of the latest arrivals was Miss Annie O'Neil, of Chelmsford, who arrived in the city on Tuesday last. It is needless to say that we were delighted to welcome her back. She was accompanied by Miss Maggie Sauntry, of Williamstown.

Still absent, our friend Joe; and we begin to fear that something or some one very enticing is occupying her time. Rumor hints that she may probably change her name instead of returning to Portland. If this be true, we think no one will deny that we have been badly used.

Miss Norah Hickey returned from her visit to Boston and vicinity a few days ago, highly pleased with her visit, every moment of which was pleasantly spent. We were well pleased to see her bright self again.

Mr. Ben Kavanagh, of Philadelphia, has returned to this city in poor health. His numerous friends here were very glad to see him, and hope the rumor may prove true—that he intends remaining in the city.

Mr. Thomas McDonald left here last week for the West. He is missed by a host of friends, and his place will not be easily filled.

We have to congratulate Mr. John J. Lyons on the birth of a young daughter.

Also Mr. John Quinn, who was presented with a young daughter last week.

Mrs. Perry (nee Emma Fraser) has a young son.

We visited our friends on Danforth St. the other evening, and were much surprised to find Ned, dressed up in his furs, occupying the time of our friend Norah. We would advise W. to beware, or Ned will be the possessor of the inside track pretty soon. At least, we should say from appearances that Ned will win the day yet.

There was a very pleasant little party last evening at the residence of Mr. Charles Jordan, on Winter St. Quite a number of our friends were in attendance, and those who could not be present were very much disappointed. We were of the latter number. Our friends say that they had a very enjoyable evening and it was all too short. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served, and, at a late hour, our friends separated, with many thanks to their kind and genial host and hostess, and to our friend, Miss Aggie, who was the chief factor in getting up the party.

463, finding Cumberland St. getting somewhat dull, has removed to Deering St. We think our friend A. is not less pleased than 463, and, being such near neighbors, we fear A. will forget to send postal cards or very bulky letters to that little village on the Miramichi.
