Moncton.

Tuesday, Oct 6th 1891.—The past week has been full of interest and "go," so much "go" that almost everybody has gone, some for a limited time to the Halifax exhibition, while others visited a similar attraction in the rival city.

Apropos of departures one particular beam of sunshine, whose flitting presence, and prepossessing rays, made so many young lives joyous, has returned home, much to the regret of a host of friends who will long remember her as a most charming young lady. I refer to Miss Winnie Kendrick of West Haven, Conn., who while here, was the guest of the Misses Harper, Shediak. I never weep impromptu; else tears would destroy the economy of my cheek, as I give expression to my sympathy for the bereaved.

The tide of gaiety is rising steadily, already a number of whist parties have engaged the attention of our card enthusiasts, who had almost forgotten that such an authority as Hoyle ever existed.

The coming fortnight will see the glorious autumn foliage at the height of its beauty, when a trip to the suburban forests should be on every lover of nature's programme. Already the variegated hues have taken place and prominence with the sombre green.

The Military Battalion are home after a tremendously active ten days at camp Sussex, which was one, too, of greatest pleasure, and excitement, the weather being superb for camp life. Major "Dennis" and Lieut. "Jack's" bronzed faces tell the story of their cruise.

Dr. J. D. Ross' charitable promotion of a scheme to erect a comfortable dwelling for a destitute Indian family, who are incapacitated to support themselves, is worthy the highest commendation.

Mr. R. E. Wallace of the Bank of Montreal, Halifax, and favorably remembered by his connection with the same banking company in this city, is in town.

Mr. J. V. Ellis, the enterprising sub-editor of the Transcript, is absent doing the capital.

Rev. J. M. Robinson is absent in Halifax attending the Maritime Presbyterian Synod.

Congratulations to the genial Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. if it be true that one of Pictou's most amiable daughters, a scholar, a linguist, a painter and a musician will shortly swell the list of new made brides.

The current topic to-day is relative to a youth who gives evidence of still retaining his juvenile indiscretions, and who will shortly extricate his familiar figure from society's clutches, abandon his vocation, to adopt the theatrical profession. It is said that arrangements for studying are perfected and the most rational mind could not dissuade his pet ambition. It is vulgar to make a parade of one's feelings, but, the conduct of the youth whom it is my pleasure to know, and for whom I had taken an extraordinary predilection, is most disappointing. At this critical period in the life of a fellow who has scarce passed the simplicity and verdure of boyhood, I would condemn my tongue to a pythagorean silence if I thought it could attempt to flatter; yet, I must admit that with perseverance and natural capabilities a studious lover of the art will eventually acquire the requisite skill, and import the source of these remarks, sufficient to know that my disapprobation is sincere.

SILLY BILLY.

Remarkable Voyage of Two Ships.

Two ships, named respectively Lorton and Cockermonth, left Liverpool together on Oct. 5, 1890, bound for Astoria, Ore., where both arrived within 12 hours of each other. On the voyage they were within sight of each other for 48 days, during which time their crews exchanged courtesies and visited by means of their small boats.

Both left Astoria on the same day, April 8 of this year, but their destinations were different—the Lorton being bound for Dunquerque and the Cockermonth for Havre. Strange to say they both arrived at their respective respective destinations about the same time, the exact dates being: Cockermonth, Aug. 19, and Lorton, Aug. 22. Both left the French ports on the 9th September for Liverpool, and passed Holyhead at the same time, and they actually entered the Mersey side by side, just as they had left 240 days previously.

This voyage, so remarkable in other respects, covered a distance of fully 30,000 miles, so that it will probably go on record as one of the most unique in maritime history.

Bark Konoma.

Captain McKay, of the bark Konoma, reports a very stormy passage from Liverpool. He says he left that port on the 6th of August, and after passing the Bar met a strong nor'west wind and on account of the vessel pitching into a head sea, the windlass bits, to which the tow-rope was fastened, carried away. We then secured the tow-rope to the foremast, and when off Point Lynus we cast off from the tow-boat and were nine days getting clear of the Irish land, and afterwards had strong westerly gales. On the 28th August had a fresh breeze from the westward and clear barometer, 29.75, steady, when a shower made up to the northeast and soon after (at 6 p. m.) we were in the midst of a hurricane, and before the vessel could be got before the wind she was in danger of capsizing or losing masts, etc. At 7 while running before it and heading about SSW, the sails, although clewed up and upper topsails lowered, were blown to pieces, and only a lower main-top-sail and foresail were left whole. Two upper topsails, two topgallantsails and mainsail in pieces; lower foretopsail and foretopmast staysail split and much of the running gear damaged. At 8 the wind had somewhat decreased and sky clearing, and at midnight only a strong north gale which decreased to a calm on the following day. When off the St. Peters' Bank had a gale from NNW, and the barometer fell seven-tenths in 12 hrs. Here we passed through a quantity of deals that had not been long in the water. At St. Paul's we had another gale of short duration, and at the Bird Rock a gale from NNW, and had westerly wind until we arrived at the Bar."

A New Fur Bearing Animal.

The Otopedipiscornuicephalus, an exhibition in the window of J. G. Gunn's tailoring establishment, is proving a great attraction. It is one of the rarest animals of the St. John valley and has no distinct family trait but is a combination of the prominent features of the pleosaurus, dinornis, iguanodon and megalosaurus. Its body is covered with fur and is about the size of a rabbit, the head has the teeth of rodentia, while the brow is adorned with two horns that curve gracefully and are polished like a scimitar. Strange to say the hips are crowned with horns, while the legs have through the transformation of revolution become horns also. It is a strange animal.—Gleaner.

Aunt's Advice.

"My brother had severe summer complaint about a year ago and no remedies seemed to relieve him. At last my aunt advised us to try Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and before he had taken one bottle he was entirely cured."—Adelaide Crittenden, Baldwin, Ont.

Henry G. James.

Henry G. James, of Winnipeg, Man., writes: "For several years I was troubled with pimples and irritations of the skin. After other remedies failed I used four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and since then I have been quite free from my complaint. B. B. B. will always occupy a place in my house."

A Windfall.

The origin of "windfall" in the sense of "good luck," dates from the time of William the Conqueror. It was then a criminal offense to cut timber in the forests. Only such could be gathered as the wind had blown down; hence, a heavy wind-storm was hailed by the peasants as so much good luck, and from this comes the modern application of the expression.

Advertising Pays.

What do some of our readers think of this: A single page in one issue of the Century taken for advertising purposes cost $500, and in Harper's $400; and in magazines from $800 down to $100. A yearly advertisement in one column of the Chicago Tribune costs $26,554 for the lowest and $86,000 for the highest; in the New York Herald $38,204 for the lowest and $130,000 for the highest priced column.

There is a deeply rooted superstition in Scotland that May marriages are unlucky and are bound to turn out badly. Last April there were 2055 marriages in Scotland, in May there were but 1003, while in June the number jumped to 4148—twice as many marriages in April as in May and four times as many in June.

At a party at Mrs. Nelson Arnold's residence, Sussex, Friday night, as a waltz was being danced, Mrs. Surratt, a young widow from Boston or vicinity, asked her partner to stop dancing and walked with him from the parlors into the hall, where she fell to the floor, dying almost instantly. Mrs. Surratt is related to the Halletts and more distinctly to the Arnolds of Kings county.

Miss Minnie Charters, of Moncton, left last Saturday night for Philadelphia where she will begin a three years medical course in the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania. Miss Charters is a graduated nurse of one of the Massachusetts hospitals.

The grand jury which investigated the collapse of the building in Park Place, New York, by which over 60 lives were lost, reported its inability to decide whether overloaded floors or an explosion caused the calamity.

He Gave Back the Cards.

"I had rather a remarkable experience while I was chaplain of the army," remarked one of the ministers at the pastors' union.

"What was it?" "I had been working and talking to the boys about gambling, and they finally turned all the cards in the camp over to me. The next day they were paid off. The following day I was passing out and saw a blanket spread out with two lumps of sugar on the corner, and about half the money in the camp spread out."

"What were they doing?" "They were betting on which lump of sugar a fly would first light, and all the money on the blanket changed hands on the result."

"What did you say to the boys?" "I said: 'Here, boys, come get your cards.'"—Columbus Dispatch.

True Faith.

"I have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters as a blood purifier. I have taken three bottles for bad blood and find it a perfect cure. It is a grand medicine and I recommend it wherever I go."—Ida Sanderson, Toronto, Ont.

John Bain, a well known and much respected farmer of Flat Lands, near Campbellton, committed suicide by hanging. No cause assigned.

It is officially announced that after Baroness Macdonald's death, the son of the late Sir John A. Macdonald becomes Lord Macdonald of Earncliffe.

"Printers' ink has made many a man's fortune," said a toady to Horace Greely. "Yes," replied Horace, "I suppose it has. Printers are the only ones that ever lose by it."

A lady in Detroit advertised for a servant, and a colored woman put in an appearance. Her first question was, "Has yer got any chillun?" "No I have no children. Why do you ask?" "Bekase, if yer ain't got no chillun, I ain't gwinter stay wid yer." "What have children to do with your work?" "I don't wanter stay in no house whar dar's no chillun, bekase den, whenever any dishes am broke it am always laid on the servant and tuck-en outen her wages."
