

Moncton.

Tuesday 26th Sept.—I am tempted owing to scarcity of news this morning, to make an important speech on the recent weather changes, but the readers of Moncton's budget of news would undoubtedly remind me that no such unpardonable breach of etiquette is permissible in the columns of THE REVIEW. Therefore I shall have to abide by the stringent rules that govern the publication of a weekly periodical, and refer to the resources of my infertile brain, for more readable matter, which I regret to say is not discoverable within my billiard ball like cranium.

One of the memorable events of the week was the comedy opera on Friday night. Our cosy little theatre was well filled with an audience who were extremely cordial, beginning their applause when the curtain went up rather unexpectedly on one of the supes clad in poppy red tights causing the diminutive figure to vanish so quickly that the veritable Major Domo did not have time to "put it down." Miss Wiley in the title role "Vera" was irresistibly comic, her extra numbers "The song that reached my heart" and "Annie Laurie" were rapturously encored. Although not an ideal stage figure she possesses many other charming qualities and the comedy chosen is not only free from horse play, but is wholesome in its tone, brilliant in its dialogue, and without the vulgar variety that is usually associated with comic opera. It is the general verdict that manager Holstead scored an other hit, and on the company's reappearance as is announced for Monday the 5th, the theatre should be crowded in every part.

There will be a general breaking into the savings banks to-morrow, as I understand the native element will predominate at the St. John exhibition. The cost thitherward and return is but a dollar, and we'll all get there.

St. Bernard's R. C. bazaar closed Saturday night, after a successful three weeks' run. The mayoralty vote was keenly contested, the vote closed with the following result, J. McC. Snow, 604; F. W. Sumner, 444; Peter McSweeney, 235. "Put that down," and compare it with the actual result of the next election.

SILLY BILLY.

The Skull Made Advances.

A physician tells the following story: "At one time when I was a medical student my class had been for several days studying the bones of the head. To aid in this a number of human skulls had been brought into the lecture room. After we were through with them they were thrown in a heap in one corner.

"One night I chanced to be left alone in the room. Finding it quiet and pleasant in the half light, I sat down to smoke a cigar. Immediately facing me was the pile of skulls. They presented a very uncanny appearance as the light from a dim gas burner played over them, making them seem almost alive with a certain play of expression. One particularly big fellow, lying right on top of the pile, appeared actually to wink at me from its lidless eye sockets, while the teeth in the gaping mouth grinned horribly. Amused, I winked back and offered my cigar, when suddenly there was a slight noise and the skull inclined slightly forward, as if bowing acceptance. There was no mistake about it. It moved, not only once, but twice.

"I dropped my cigar and sat up straight in my chair, my eye fixed on the gruesome thing. There was another louder noise and a stronger movement of the skull, when down it came crashing to my very feet. In an instant I was on the table near by gazing upon the strange thing and ready for precipitate flight.

"Then the skull gave a violent shake and turned over and out jumped a big rat, which scampered across the floor, and into hiding."

A daring deed was committed on Saturday, a few miles from St. Stephen. Thomas Mahar, for whom a warrant has been issued since last May, for a fifth offence under the Canada Temperance Act, was arrested and sent to St. Andrews jail in charge of Constables Spence and Bailey. When the constables were about ten miles from town, near the Waveig bridge, three men, with faces blacked and revolvers in their hands, stepped out of the bushes and demanded the prisoners and they keys of his handcuffs. After obtaining these they took the constables' team and with the prisoner started for Calais. As no communication could be had with St Stephen in time to prevent the prisoner's escape he reached Calais in safety and is now in the land of the free.

That wonderful marine tale about a Brooklyn couple who went in bathing at Coney Island and were carried far out to sea and providentially rescued by a passing schooner, which conveyed them to Florida, has all been spoiled. It turns out that after the festive couple had been in bathing a short time they returned to the shore, got a fresh supply of clothing, leaving their usual garments hanging up in the bath houses, in order to give plausibility to the report of their drowning, and then they eloped by rail to Florida. Thus does brazen truth scatter afar the sweet imaginings of fable.

Dr. Kendrick's White Liniment cures and relieves Catarrh and Cold in Head.

The London Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent says: The distress among the peasants is increasing; potatoes are failing in many districts, and a new insect, known as the sooka, more destructive to corn than the Hessian fly, has appeared. The whole population of some villages in Astrakan, are dying of starvation. The doctors prescribe corn instead of medicine. There are stories afloat of persons eating their children in Nijni Novgorod. The authorities in many places are levying a tax on laborers, wherever they obtain work.

Eight thousand tourists, mostly American, and between ten and twelve thousand excursionists have visited Digby this summer.

And so the war cloud over the Dardanelles turns out to have been but the smoke arising from the pipey camp on a desert island off Mitylene, where half a dozen Jack tars were picnicking. But it scared Europe, flattened the bourses and called on the Farmers' Alliances of the United States to hold their wheat. For all that, however, the world will not laugh very loudly at the incident. It shows that European nations are in a decidedly nervous condition, and apt to start at every shadow. In the present instance reports of the landing of the British sailors were sent to the French, Russian, Italian and Turkish Governments. There is an uneasy feeling behind this vigilance which belies the lovely compliments European rulers have been paying each other of late.—Ex.

Revolutionary Outbreak.

St. Louis, Sept. 29.—A despatch from the City of Mexico says news has reached there of a revolutionary outbreak in the Republic of Guatemala. The outbreak occurred in the City of Guatemala on the 15th inst., during the celebration of the anniversary of the national holiday. The orators, who had been personally selected by President Barillas, were stoned and driven from the plaza by an excited mob shouting "Down with the government," "Down with despotism and tyranny," "Die Barillas." The government immediately ordered soldiers to the scene, many shots were interchanged and a number of persons killed and wounded. A despatch received on Monday afternoon from Newton, on the line between Guatemala and Mexico, says Barillas is master of the situation, having put down the revolt after three days' hard fighting.

The city is infested with soldiers. Martial law has been declared. Another despatch says 500 lives were sacrificed during the fighting and that Barillas has declared himself dictator. Salvador is moving troops to the southern frontier of Guatemala for the purpose, it is believed of invading that country.

A Bow Propeller.

An exhibition of a method of propulsion devised by Mr. Thomas Mills, of Queensland, was recently given in Glasgow: Mr. Mills' invention consists in the placing of the propeller at the bow instead of the stern of the ship. He states that he has made the change for two reasons—first, that the revolution of the screw propeller in its ordinary position at the stern of the vessel produces a vacuum, which must be filled by the inrushing water ere the ship obeys the forward impulse; and second, that the water at the bow of a ship offers resistance to its movement. Mr. Mills thus places his propeller at the bow. The shaft is carried through the bow, and carries a conical propeller with a diameter nearly as great as the beam of the ship. The outside of the cone consists of webs projecting at right angles to the surface, and arranged in a spiral. The action is thus a boring action.

An immense decrease of crime in Great Britain has been fairly quoted as a proof of the vastly improved social condition of the people. Recent returns show that since 1882 not less than eight prisons have been closed and converted to other uses, while others show a remarkable falling off in the number of convicts serving terms of imprisonment. The reason of this decrease in crime, lies in the social and moral condition of English people.

A correspondent of the London Daily Graphic, writing upon the locust plague in North Africa, says: "In reference to the diet of St. John the Baptist, who lived on locusts and wild honey in the wilderness, there are Sunday school teachers who cannot believe that anyone would voluntarily live on such food, and therefore, say that the locust bean, the fruit of the carab tree, is meant by the writers of the New Testament. I can only reply that the locust cricket, the Acridum Pterinum, order Orthoptera, variety Saltastoria—the flying Sauterelle of Africa—is sold at a half-penny per pound in the market place at Biskra (which is the second oasis for the north in Sahara), and that there it is cooked by boiling with salt water, as shrimps are boiled here. I myself have little doubt that it is more nutritious than the latter, because in March, when the insect is gathered and dried, it is as full of albumen as an egg."

Friday last was one of the hottest days this season.

China is said to possess more ducks than all the rest of the world. They are seen everywhere—about the villages and the isolated houses, on the roads, in the streets of the towns, and upon the canals, ponds and rivers. Salted and smoked duck and duck's eggs play an important part in feeding the Chinese.

An electric cane has been invented by a Frenchman. The battery is concealed in the stick, and the knob contains an electric lamp. It can be used for a reading lamp or to light its owner on a dark road.

It is estimated that the Western railroads have earned $250,000 the past year from the transportation of Mormon missionaries and their proselytes. Enough disciples are brought over from Europe every year to keep the Mormon colonies thriving. Regularly every two weeks the converts from foreign lands pass through Kansas City in bands from 75 to 100. They are in charge always of an elder, who is sent by the Mormons of Utah to work in Europe.

A Word For the Homely Girl.

Homely women are always more entertaining than pretty specimens of the fair sex. The latter rely on their beauty to carry them through the world, and it generally does until they get married, when it commonly fails them. The homely girl knowing she has no beauty to rely on goes to work and improves her mind; she learns some accomplishment, becomes a clever artist or pianist, reads a good deal and learns to converse readily and well. She is better company than the pretty girl, for the beauty does not think it worth her trouble to be entertaining as she has spent all her efforts in trying to look pretty. The beauty may make a good wife, but the chances are that she will learn nothing after marriage and will soon become uninteresting. The ugly girl, with a little brains, stands as fair a chance of getting a good husband as her pretty sister, and a much better prospect of having a happy home.

The Sparrow's Bath.

Have you ever noticed the pugnacious the pugnacious little English sparrow perform his morning ablution? He hunts up a street sprinkling cart, takes his position in front of it, and stands there like a drum major close to the wheel as the cart goes by. After receiving the full force of the water, he again takes his place in front and again awaits the oncoming of the cart. This is repeated until the little fellow is satisfied with his cleanliness. The English sparrow is nothing if not metropolitan.

Gents.—I took a severe cold, which settled in my throat and lungs and caused me to entirely lose my voice. For six weeks I suffered great pain. My wife advised me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the effect was magical, for after only three doses and an outward application, my voice returned, and I was able to speak in the Army that night, a privilege I had been unable to enjoy for six weeks.

M. Jules Verne, in the Paris Petit Journal, launches into a forecast of what the daily routine of life will be in the year 2000. We will then have according to the airy Verne, aerial trains flying at the rate of 625 miles an hour. The odd 25 miles thrown in apparently on the principle of the Englishman who never forgets to put the two-and-sixpence to his bill, no matter how big the amount. The trans-Atlantic journey will be accomplished through a tube in 295 minutes, and thus the Parisian can ask his American friend to dinner. If the friend cannot spare a moment, why he can stay at home and they can converse over his own modest chop. The world will be a universal city. There is a quaint humor if nothing else, in the precaution taken by the Germans to prevent accidents from the Lauffen-Frankfort cable, which transmits a current of 25,000 volts—a current so deadly that it would kill on the instant of contact. All poles carrying the wires for the 112 miles of transmission are adorned with skulls and cross-bones, which are surmounted with a warning notice.
