BARLEY BY IRRIGATION.

People in several of the United States have, with more or less success, been practising irrigation. The most successful of these enterprises are probably the fruit farms in Southern California. But favorable things are also said of irrigation works in Montana, and among these of certain barley producing farms in process of culture. The best barley procurable by United States maltsters is, it seems, the growth of Ontario, the market of which has been spoiled by the McKinley tariff. To supply the place of the coveted barley from Canada, costly irrigation works are being built in Montana. It is confidently expected that the barley grown will be of the proper quality, so early preparation is being made to handle it. But the Ontario barley derives its qualities mainly from the climate and the Montana climate will be found very different from that of Ontario.

WHEAT CULTURE.

An English firm, entitled Messrs. James Carter & Co., have for nearly ten years past been distinguishing themselves in their search for new and specially useful They have had on hand, this last season, some seven well defined varieties of wheat, all cross-bred wheats. The average product ranged from five quarters to six and a quarter quarters per acre, which, considering the severity of the season must be regarded as very fine.

A number of objects are aimed at in this wheat breeding business. Earliness of ripening is one. Storm defying powers is another. In this direction, especially, success has looked large. The name signalizing the achievement is "Stand up wheat." It has seemed to set the heaviest rain and wind storms at defiance. Efforts are being made to secure a mist and mildew resisting wheat. There seems no doubt that the good work will be crowned with gratifying results.

The crop in the United States this year is larger than ever before. It is gathered from Government reports that thirty-nine million acres were this year sown in wheat, and, it is calculated, that the crops amounted to five hundred and thirty million bushels-a little over sixteen bushels per acre. The estimate probably on both points is higher than the facts warrant.

We have not seen a carefully prepared estimate of the entire Canadian wheat crop this season.

COMPLIMENTS TO CANADIAN BANKING SYSTEM.

At a public meeting of the Bankers' Association of New Orleans, a few days ago, the cashier of the Bank of Buffalo, produced a paper descanting on the Canadian banking currency. They characterized the system as a carefully-studied, well guarded and highly efficient one. He seemed to propose it as a model to copy to his banking brethren around him. We should infer, that he rated that system far in advance of the one in vogue in the United States.

MR. LAURIER IN BOSTON.

The grand eating demonstration in Boston did not come to much after all. Mr. Laurier's speech on the occasion sounded probably pretty well, and generally his admirers, doubtless, had a tolerably good time. But the orator in question had not the courage of his conviction. He failed "to speak right out in 'meetin'." He slurred over the places where real difficulties lay; and merely skimmed the subject. But, indeed, Boston was not the place for such a discussion as would have been fitted ton was a mistake. It would have been more fitting for Yankeeized Quebecers to have minded their own business, and to have left Canadians to attend their own concerns.

dence-which was largely as already pubout that the statement of Officer Gosline dving statement of deceased and also with the statements of the prisoner, while the evidence of Nat McNeill stood alone. He referred to the influence that would move the different witnesses. The case, he said, was one of credibility. If the jury thought the evidence of McNeill was true; that Caples was not in danger of his life, or had no reasonable apprehension of such danger, then he was guilty of manslaughter. If, on the other hand, they concurred with Officer Gosline and the prisoner, that there was such reasonable idea of danger, they would acquit the prisoner. The jury retired and after a short deliberation returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Little Branch Notes.

Mr. Alexander Fowler has arrived home after an absence of twenty-eight years, during which time he lived in the United States, his home being in Sioux City. His mother Mrs. George Fowler, Sr., who is very ill, was much pleased to see him, and could scarcely recognise him as her own son, after so long an absence. He gives a lively description of the great western country, having travelled over an immense part of it. He called at Mankato to see his brother Frank; also at Kingston to see his other brother Professor Fowler, who was delighted to see him, as also were all his other friends; he leaves for the West again next week, via New York.

Mrs. Dr. E. H. Thurston, a prominent society woman, is lying at her home on Indian Avenue, Chicago, completely prostrated and with several ugly wounds on her head, the result of a fight with a burglar whom she discovered in her room at an early hour in the morning. The man ran downstairs on being discovered, but the plucky woman followed and caught him in the dining room. The man, who was a negro, attempted to strike her with his fists, but she dodged the blow and fastened both hands in his hair. The man fought desperately to make her loose her hold, and finally dragged her to the dining table, where he seized a heavy silver castor and knocked her senseless, giving her several ugly scalp wounds. Dr. Thurston was aroused by the noise of the struggle, but the burglar escaped.

The rapid growth of the population of India is shown by the fact that in the last ten years the natural increase has been 27,000,000. The population now numbers 286,000,000. One can hardly appreciate what these figures mean except by comparison. India contains more people than all Europe, exclusive of Russia. It's provinces are as populous as the great European States Bengal contains a population greater than that of the United States and all British North America, and fully one-fifth of the en. tire human race live on this little peninsula jutting out from the coast of Asia into the Indian Ocean.
