Nov. 30, 1891 .- The autumn season Mr. A. J. Loggie left for California, pursues its uneventful way with only an last Thursday, with the intention of spendoccasional wedding to mark the progress ing the winter there for the benefit of his of the weeks. These events, always inter- health. Mr. Howard Fleiger will have esting are giving us heaps of food for charge of the business during Mr. Loggie's table gossip. Last week was agreeably em- absence .-- World. Scotia, son of Mr. Wm. Anderson, of the siders Kent County good enough for him. Customs, and Miss Ethel Benson, eldest daughter of Dr. J. S. Benson. Owing to the recent death of the bride's mother, the event was quietly solemnized at the bride's home, with only the immediate relatives the train for Montreal, en route to Wisand friends in attendance. Miss Benson, who is eminently handsome, was gowned in white bengaline, and made a graceful, charming bride. The bridesmaids, Misses Katherine and Dorothy Benson, the bride's younger sisters, were gowned in white silk, the three making a most enchanting picture. Mr. R. S. Murray was best man. Rev. Neil McKay assisted by the Rev. Joseph McCoy officiated. The wedding presents were many and varied, including an elegant gold watch from the congregation of St. John's Presbyterian church, with whom Miss Benson had been associated as organist. The young people went west on a wedding tour, and will visit the bride's brother, Mr. Stafford Benson, in Wisconsin, who, it will be rembered, married Miss Anderson, sister of the groom, last autumn.

The first November function of high social importance in sporting circles, which occurred on Tuesday evening, was a fistic encounter between two agile youths of the genuine blue blood type, one a junior | last week. clerk in a prominent banking institution, the other in the employ of a leading lumber firm. Both bloods were fantastically orting themselves, adorned with infashion, when they unexpectedly collided on a crossing, but unlike the story of the two ruminating animals, with which we are all familiar, neither would submit to be put under, preferring, as in the apalogue of the cobbler's dog, to be crushed rather leg broken at the ankle. than move out of the way, until the imported stripling, forgetting that a sixteen ed last week from Nixon, Albert county, -candle power electric light shone overhead, discarded his checkered Norfolk and customary handful of papers, sprang upon his opponent in real English pugilistic style, and felled him to mother earth, completing the first round in less than three-quarters of a November forenight. The admiring crowd of corner loafers assuming that the Marquis of Queensbury rules governed the fracas, called time in the second scuffle, but the featherweight paid no attention, except to his opponent's deficient courage, and gradually outdone the home talent, until the latter, remembering that he was a -----, and thoroughly disgusted with the general disarrangement, gave up the ghost, and later gave information to the police magistrate, who issued citations for a gathering at the police court Thursday morning. The proceedings began at ten thirty, with a thoroughly representative crowd in attendance, the front row embracing the legal and medical fraternity, while the second tier exhibited a large percentage of the dude populace, local and foreign. All the trades were represented, likewise our manufactories. Order out of chaos seemed inevitable, un- N. S. til the court house door was shut, and the familiar voice of the magistrate struck the first verbal note in a case next in importance in the history of lawsuits to the familiar "goose case." After several hours' wrangling between two of our distinguish. ed lawyers, the magistrate decided in favor of the chap with the plain clothes, while the youth in checks was fined one dollar. I regret having to announce the determined choice of one of our most worthy citizens and demotic business men to make his future home in the West. I refer to Mr. A. J. Loggie, whose health has made it necessary for him to seek a less severe climate. Mr. Loggie has long enjoyed the esteem of all classes, and merited an envious share of public patronage at his well known dry goods establishment. Mrs. Loggie will remain in Chatham for the winter purposing to join her husband in the early summer. It is very improbable if ever we shall have them with us again permanently, but whether absent or present we shall entertain naught but the fondest memories of their association and wish them all possible success. Congratulations to Mr. N. R. McKenzie, brother of our popular druggist, who is meeting with pronounced success as a mharmacist in Boston.

John Thompson, the Bathurst flour merchant who was accused of running an illicit whiskey still, was arraigned before Justices Kerr and Harrington, and confessed. They sentenced him to pay a fine of $100 and go to jail for one month, as light a sentence as could be imposed. He had bought a farm from John Young, and employed him to run the still. They disagreed, and Young is supposed to have informed on him. It is said that Young wanted a deed of the farm as the price of silence. Thompson is an Ontario man who has been in Bathurst three or four years. He is said to understand the business of whiskey making thoroughly.
