ANXIOUSLY AWAITED.

During the week past the commission of judges appointed to enquire into the great steal at Quebec, has been steadily at work. The indications are that the investigation will be a thorough one, and that the truth, on all the main points involved, will be brought out clearly. The interest felt in the matter seems to be universal throughout Canada. It is seen that the fate of the Mercier government is dependent on the result. Every Canadian voter should hold his judgment in reserve till the enquiry is ended. But at the moment, it does not seem possible to clear the Quebec government from all complicity in the steal; while it seems plain enough that if the full complicity of that government in the transaction shall be established the downfall of the Mercier party will be sure to follow. That downfall would be felt far and wide in the Dominion. The Mercier party constitutes the main wing of the Laurier party. Messrs. Mercier and Laurier have made common cause. The first cannot be damaged disastrously without serious effect to the second. All this is perceived clearly by every intelligent onlooker.

One way of escape only seems conceivable. The perpetration of the steal cannot be disproved. Its nefariousness cannot be denied. But the agency of Pacaud may probably be denied. He may be disavowed and thrown overboard. He may be sacrificed for the salvation of the Mercier government. Is he willing to be wiped out in this way? Is he willing to assume full responsibility in the case? If he should be, can he relieve that government from all well grounded suspicion? That would be found, we fear, a difficult achievement, however good his will may be.

Perhaps by this time Pacaud has given his testimony, making a clean breast of it. Without doubt he could tell a remarkable story. We rather suppose that his easiest course would be to keep closely to the point, and say as little thereon as possible. He either has been or surely will be sorely pressed in search of the truth. But whether he has given his testimony or no, the general result is anxiously awaited.

BALFOUR'S PROMOTION.

Speculation as to the succession to the leadership of the British House of Commons ends with the appointment of Mr. Balfour as First Lord of the Treasury, carrying with it, as it does, the leadership of the Commons.

It will be acknowledged on all hands that Smith's mantle has fallen on the shoulders best fitted to wear it. Balfour is a much abler man than his predecessor in the leadership. He has a very clear head prompt decision, invincible courage, ready tact, and absolute self control, is rich in resources, has a fluent tongue, abounds in energy, and is a great worker. He is the most promising man that has for a long time appeared in the British political field. If his life be spared, he may be classed as a coming premier. There never was a more successful secretary for Ireland than he has proved. The position was a most difficult one, but it was one preeminently fitted for the display of talent of the highest order.

DEMAND FOR CANADIAN GOODS IN JAMAICA.

The result of the exhibition of Canadian products in Jamaica is all that could be expected. Quite a demand has sprung up there for Canadian flour, butter and cheese, and quite a market is being found there for wood goods of Canadian manufacture, and, indeed, for Canadian factory products generally. Canadian manufacturers and exporters should take pains to foster the trade opening. The requirements of the market should be studied and goods of the best quality furnished.

Circumstances do not look extremely favorable for the early negotiation of enlarged trade arrangements between the Republic and the Dominion. The great trouble is the old one, the political class in the Republic treat the question not from a purely business point of view but from a purely political standpoint. The duty for Canada in the case is to stand squarely on its feet and push trade through every available opening the world over. Whining and knuckling down in the situation would prove as useless as it would be contemptible—as useless and contemptible as the cries of the Britons at the departure of the Roman legions.

Work Done by New York's Paupers. During three months of 1890 in the work house 350 cubic yards of stone were broken, 65 yards of rag carpet were woven, 2,751 cubic feet of stone foundation were built by masons, 1,135 square feet of floor surface were concreted, 500 pairs of women's shoes and 700 pairs of women's slippers were manufactured, 3,600 square feet of pine flooring were laid by carpenters, besides the work of tinsmiths, locksmiths, blacksmiths, painters and harness makers.

In the workhouse laundry during the quarter 95,987 pieces were washed. In the Ward's island insane asylum 231,109 pieces were washed. There were made here during the quarter 295,515 pounds of white bread, 17,213 pounds of Graham bread, 11,461 pounds of gingerbread and 8,477 pounds of cake. Thousands of printed forms used in the departments under the care of the charities and correction commissioners are set up and run off each quarter on Ward's island, and on the Islip branch the crops planted included eight acres for potatoes, one for corn, one for cabbage, four for rye, and smaller plots for carrots, beans, onions, tomatoes, parsnips, beets, leeks, cucumbers and sweet corn.—New York Sun.

Cure for Diphtheria.

A writer in the last number of the Scientific American, the leading Science Journal in America, has this to say of a simple cure for diphtheria: "Why don't they use onions! For goodness sake why don't they use onions! Where do they live? I will go up there to-day and tell them to use onions!" Such were the exclamations of our mother, says the editor of the Denver Mirror, when we reported one day at dinner that a child of Mr. G. W. Dudley was dead, and the whole family, including himself, alarmingly sick with diphtheria. Mother was moved to these earnest and interested expressions by a firm belief that she knew several lives saved by the use of onions in diphtheria, one of them being our sister. In these cases raw onions were placed in a bandage and beaten into a pulp, the cloths, containing onions, juice and all, being then bound about the throat and well up over the ears. Renewals may be made as often as the mass becomes dry. In the cases noticed, the result was almost magical, deadly pain yielded in a short time to sleepy comfort. The editor adds the wish that this remedy might have a wide enough trial to fully test its usefulness.

Kouchibouguac.

No vacant houses in town now. "To Let" is seldom seen in a window for more than two days. Charles Grogan and John Kelly are among the young men who started last week to make their future homes under the star-spangled banner.

A number of grangers from the surrounding country have made their final exit from the old homesteads and are now taking a hand at holding up our corners.

A young man in our midst, of good social and financial standing, contemplates going to the far, far west. His failure to be admitted into the benedictine society may have something to do with it. "He who fights and runs away may live to fight another day."

The contract for building the iron bridge has been awarded to Mr. Cliff Atkinson, who has begun work with a large force of men.

Mr. Atkinson's new vessel was launched last Friday. The plans for launching were so successfully arranged by foreman Betts that she went off like a charm. She is now lying at anchor in the harbor, where the foreman and a staff of carpenters are giving her the "finishing touch." She will do a coasting trade under the management of Captain M. Grogan.

Great excitement prevailed in the Carleton debating rooms one night last week, when a member of the club introduced the question, "What is a dude, and to what sex does it belong?" Some contended that a dude was an individual of the fair sex, that, not content with its natural beauty, would deform itself and use paint, powder, false hair, false teeth, &c. Others claimed that the dude belonged to the coarser sex, and was a self esteemed creature, that would never admit to being more than 22 years of age, always wears tight clothes, dyes its moustache, if it has one, and parts its hair in the middle to balance its brain.

The ell of Mr. Angus McLeod's house took fire Monday evening last. The fire brigade was soon on the spot, and extinguished the flames with their usual dexterity.

Miss Mazerall, our worthy teacher, who has been sick for some time, is again able to attend to her official duties.

Mr. John McIntyre is home from Carquet, where he has been during the summer months in the interest of W. S. Loggie.

West Branch Notes.

The crops in this locality have been all that could be desired by the farmers.

Mr. T. Johnston reports from one bushel sowing of oats, forty, and from 4 of wheat, seventy-five.

Mr. T. Gibson having lately removed with his family to Boston, his old stand is occupied by J. Goodwin, formerly of Buctouche.

T. Ward, while in pursuit of partridge, had quite an adventure with bruin. He did not observe the bear until quite close upon him, and then, not wishing to remain long in the vicinity of his bearship, started for aid. Finding him in close pursuit, Mr. Ward fired his partridge load, and the animal, thinking there was more to follow, gave up the chase. Mr. Ward pushed homeward and alarmed the neighborhood. A number of young men started in pursuit. On arriving at the scene of action, nothing could be seen but the tracks.

Mrs. J. Morton, who fractured her arm some time ago, is recovering.

Alex. McMichael, after an absence of six months has returned to his home.

We are pleased to see our old friend, Wm. Murray, and family, again in this vicinity.

Miss Minnie Curran, of New Mills, is visiting friends.
