NEW BRUNSWICK, S. S. To the Sheriff of the County of Kent, or any constable within the said County. Greeting— Whereas Benjamin S. Bailey, administrator of, all and singular, the goods, chattels, and credits of George R. Bailey, deceased, hath prayed that license may be granted to him to sell such part of the real estate of the said deceased as to the Judge of the Probate Court may seem meet and necessary for the payment of his debts, (the personal estate being insufficient for that purpose.) You are therefore required to cite the heirs and all parties interested in said estate to appear before me at a Court of Probate to be held at the office of the Judge of Probates, in Buctouche, within and for the said County of Kent, on Thursday, the 23rd day of July next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, to show cause why such license should not be granted. Given under my hand and seal of the said Court this 23rd day of June, A. D. 1891.

HENRY H. JAMES, Judge of Probates, County of Kent. C. RICHARDSON, Registrar of Probates, County of Kent.

THE WORLD OVER.

Blight has played great havoc with the potato crops in Skibbereen district Ireland.

Seven American boats fishing in Canadian waters near Campobello, were seized by the cruiser Dream and towed to St. Andrews. The owners will lose them and their contents.

A fifteen-month old son of William Mulherrin, of St. Thomas, Carleton Co., tumbled head first into a firkin of butter-milk on Sunday of last week and was drowned.

Some consternation has been caused at Lisburn, a flourishing town in the north of Ireland, having intimate connections with Belfast, by the discovery of a leper among the paupers of the town.

Washington is the only city of a quarter of a million inhabitants in the country that has no female factory employes. The working women are chiefly in the government offices, there being no manufactories.

A man in Crapaud found yesterday by the road-side while performing his statute labor, a number of old silver and copper coins, English, French and American. Some of them are quite valuable.—Charlottetown Examiner.

The Michigan girl who picked 100 quarts of strawberries in one day wasn't so much of a champion after all. Mrs. F. H. Hill, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., picked 175 quarts one day last week.

Mrs. Georgianna Whetsel, a colored woman of St. John, New Brunswick, controls the ice trade of that city, employing fifty or sixty men and ten horses. She serves her customers so well that she has gained universal respect.—Boston Woman's Journal.

Captain Harry Trubenback will attempt to sail from New York to Boston on August 30 in a small dory, seven feet nine inches by two feet eight inches, rigged with a jib and main-sail, and if successful in reaching the latter point, by way of Point Judith, he will then start for Florida, a distance of 3,000 miles. The dory was designed and built by Captain Trubenback.

Henry Breathwaite, the veteran trapper and his chum, Arthur Pringle, returned last week from a two months trapping cruise on the head waters of the U. salqui et Tobique rivers. They brought nearly a thousand dollars worth of furs to Fredericton, the larger number being bear skins.—Fredericton Gleaner.

According to a German statistician the world has had 2,550 Kings or Emperors who have reigned over seventy-four peoples. Of these 300 were overthrown, sixty-four were forced to abdicate, twenty-eight committed suicide, twenty-three became mad or imbecile, 100 were killed in battle, 123 were captured by the enemy, twenty-five were tortured to death, 134 were assassinated and 108 were executed.

While out in Colorado sketching, a young English lady was surrounded by about fifty wild cattle, which moved threateningly toward her. Not knowing what to do, she began to sing the "Soldiers' Chorus" in "Faust," and one after another the animals began quietly to graze, and she walked through them without being molested. That is the way cowboys prevent stampedes among their herds, by singing to them.

The Philadelphia Bulletin is authority for the statement that the phonograph has been employed in New York to report the utterances of monkeys, scientific men having become convinced that their chattering is a language intelligible among themselves. Their phonographed talk has been repeated to the animals with startling effect, and they endeavored with their long arms to draw out the ape concealed in the instrument.

MRS. ROBINSON, Hopewell Corner, writes: Dear Sir, I have used your British Liniment for one year, and must say it surpasses all the Liniments I have ever used for Sore Throat, Lame Back, Pains in the Side, and all complaints for which a Liniment is needed. I had a pain in my side so bad that I had to give up work. I gave my side a good bathing with your Liniment and it gave me immediate relief so that in twenty minutes I was able to go about my work.

Twelve thousand nine hundred dollars in bills have been found in a piano stool among the effects of Lena Weinburg, the housekeeper of the old Huff house, Winona, Minn., who committed suicide two years ago. Eighteen months ago $12,000 were found in some false-bottomed trunks. The stool was ingeniously fixed to hold money without suspicion. The find was made by the administrator. The belief is the money was stolen, as she handled the funds of the hotel. Her heirs reside in Germany.

Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt, on her return from eight years of travel in forty-three countries as an around-the-world missionary of the W. C. T. U., was welcomed with a brilliant reception last Wednesday evening, by the Boston W. C. T. U., at Berkeley Temple. The audience rose and greeted her with the Chautauqua salute. After prayer, poetry, and a song by Mrs. Alice J. Osborne, Mrs. Livermore gave an address of welcome, and Mrs. Leavitt responded. The "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was sung in chorus and the exercises closed with a delightful social reunion.

Answered.

Teachers in the public schools have very frequent illustrations of peculiar association of ideas in the minds of their pupils. At a recent examination in geography in one of the public schools the teacher asked "What valuable things are taken out of the earth?" Much to her amazement one young hopeful immediately replied: "Clams and mummies."—Boston Times.

Halifax "Green Market."

One of the most picturesque features of Halifax is the open-air "Green Market," on Wednesdays and Saturdays, when the Chezzetcookers, descendants of the old Acadians, and many negroes come into town with vegetables, flowers, knitted woolen socks, and other little wares, and range themselves along the sidewalks near the Province Building for two or three hours, until their goods are sold. At these early morning markets one can see the regimental mess-man, the smart gun-steward from the dock yard, the caterer for the ships, and the natty private soldier who has just set up housekeeping with a newly made wife from the servant class, jostling gentleman's servants in livery and eager-eyed boarding-house keepers, or even the mistress of some aristocratic mansion who herself, in fresh morning gown, has come out to do her own marketing.—Harper's Bazar.

Gaming in the Middle Ages.

During the Middle Ages gaming became a more fashionable form of amusement, and we find in the records that the vice (sic) was greatly indulged in by the clergy. Not only that but in the fifteenth century we read of an abess being tried by the ecclesiastical authorities for having systematically "gamed" in her convent; she pleaded—it is curious to note—guilty to the fact, but demurred that neither the law nor the rules of the sisterhood obliged her to abstain from her favourite pleasure. She was, however, only acquitted on giving a promise that she would game no more. In England we find that in the fourteenth century the lord mayor and lady mayoress gave two dicing entertainments, when they, in their high official capacity, held the tables against all comers. The latter-day holders of these offices will not improbably be surprised to hear this.

Gaming was more extensively carried on in that early period in England, France and Italy, and the dice were in constant requisition. In the fourteenth century a great fllip was given to gaming by the introduction into Europe of playing cards. The exact date of the importation is not known, but the earliest unquestionable evidence of their European existence is to be found in the Diary Accounts of Charbot Poupard, who was the treasurer of the household of Charles VI. of France. The diary for 1392 or 1393, and the entry runs as follows: "Donne a Jacquemin Gringonneur, penitre pour trois jeux de cartes, a or et a diverses coulers, ornes de Seigneur Roi, pour son ebatment, cinquante six sols paris." This refers to painting, or, as it is termed, "illuminatin" cards, and not to their introduction.—The Westminster Review.

The Largest Gold Coin.

The largest gold coin now in circulation is said to be the gold ingot, or "loof," of Anam, a French colony of eastern Asia. It is a flat round gold piece, and on it is written in India ink its value, which is about $220.

The next sized coin to this valuable but extremely awkward one, is the "obang" of Japan, which is worth about $55; and next comes the "benda" of Ashantee, which represents a value of about $49.

The California $50 gold piece is worth about the same as the "benda." The heaviest silver coin in the world also belongs to Anam, where the silver ingot is worth about $15; then comes the Chinese "tael," and then the Austrian double thaler.

At Lowell, Ark., the two-year-old child of Dr. White, while playing in his mother's arms recently, was struck by lightning and killed instantly. The mother was uninjured.

General Butler can repeat the four gospels from memory.

The London Lancet is very severe upon the recent electric deaths in Sing Sing, and thinks that the form of execution is as barbarous as the word electrocution.

James Rigley, a Cincinnati newsboy, accidentally swallowed a silver 25 cent piece a few days ago, and sent another after it while too demonstratively showing how it happened.

Capt. O'Shea's solicitors deny the statement made, that Parnell had paid the costs of the divorce trial. They say Parnell has not as yet paid anything of the costs and that the greatest difficulty is experienced in serving the bankruptcy order on him.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the St. Stephen Driving park, it was decided to hold a fall meeting Sept. 9 and 10, at which $1,000 in purses will be offered.

During a cyclone at West Superior, Wis., on Tuesday, a number of buildings were blown down, including an hotel in course of construction. Of forty workmen in the building several were killed and others badly hurt.
