BILL.

AN ACT RELATING TO THE COLLECTORS OF RATES, AND CONSTABLES IN KENT COUNTY.

Be it enacted by the Lieutenant Governor, Legislative Council, and Assembly as follows:

1. That from and after the passing of this act the several Collectors of Rates appointed, or hereafter to be appointed, in the several parishes in the Municipality of the County of Kent, shall be ex officio Constables for the said Municipality, and shall be duly sworn as such, and it shall be the duty of such Collector to apply for, take out and execute all executions against the resident delinquent ratepayers on his list in the Parish for which he is collector, except in cases where he may be related to any such delinquent ratepayer, in which case he shall have the execution addressed to and delivered to some Constable in the Parish, and when collected by such Constable he shall pay the same over, together with the Justice's costs, to the Collector, handing him, or his successors in office, the executions, and the Collector and his bondsmen shall be responsible for all moneys collected by such constable; nothing in this Section shall interfere with the duties or power of Sheriffs as prescribed by law, or authorize the issuing of an execution in any case until the provisions of law now authorizing the issuing of an execution for non-payment of taxes have been complied with.

2. The Collector shall, when he applies to a Justice for an execution, pay to him his fee for issuing the same, provided that no such execution shall be applied for by any such Collector prior to the fifteenth day of July in any year, unless with the consent and by the direction of the Assessors.

3. An assessment List once delivered to any Collector shall be collected by him or some person duly deputed by him while in office, or by his successor in office, and the sureties of any collector shall be responsible and liable upon any bond signed by him and them for any moneys received and collected by the deputy of any Collector, the same as if such money had been received by such Collector.

4. On the first day of November in each and every year, or within ten days thereafter, it shall be the duty of the Assessors of each Parish to appoint a time (not later than the twentieth of November) and place within the Parish to meet the Collector, and on receiving notice from the Assessors, it shall be the duty of the Collector to attend at such time and place, and then and there to submit to such Assessors any and every Assessment List then in his hands for collection; and the Assessors shall then determine and direct the Collector what persons or ratepayers on any such list shall be proceeded against according to law, by such Collector, and what persons or ratepayers shall not be proceeded against on account of death, removal, indigence, or other lawful or sufficient cause.

5. The Collector shall forthwith take proceedings against the persons thus indicated by the Assessors to be proceeded against, and no others, but nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent the Collector taking proceedings against any person on his list as directed by law previous to the date in the last section mentioned; the Collector, in addition to his usual fees, or commission as such, shall, in all cases in which he shall also act as Constable, be entitled to receive and recover the fees to which any Constable would be entitled.

6. On or before the fifteenth day of December, in every year, the Collector shall return to and file in the office of the Secretary, or Secretary-Treasurer, any list or lists placed in his hands for collection, with a full and true account of his proceedings therein during that year, showing all moneys collected by him, and how and to whom disposed of and paid over, and also the names of all persons unpaid and in default, and the reasons of such default, and a list of all executions, stating by what Justice issued, and unexecuted, or in course of execution; and such returns shall be submitted to the County Auditor and reported upon by him.

7. Upon return being made by the Collector, it shall be the duty of the Secretary or Secretary-Treasurer, after the same has been reported upon by the Auditor, to hand the list returned by the Collector to his successor in office, whose duty shall be to proceed and collect all sums remaining unpaid by the delinquent ratepayers named in the said list, save and except those exempted by the Assessors as hereinbefore mentioned; provided, however, that nothing in this Act mentioned shall prevent the County Council from directing that the persons so exempted by the Assessors, in the manner aforesaid, shall be proceeded against in the same manner as if such exemption had not been made or ordered.

8. That all executions taken out by the Collector himself, and remaining unexecuted at the time directed by this Act for the Collector to make his final return, shall be executed and concluded by his successor in office, in the same manner as if taken out by and issued to such successor, and all moneys remaining uncollected or unpaid on account of rates payable to the Collector so making his return, and unpaid at the time of making his return, shall be payable to his successor in office and collected by him, who shall duly account for the same to the County Council.

9. The execution when issued to the Collector, as provided by this Act, shall be in form X in the Schedule hereto as near as may be.

10. So much of Chapter 100, of the Consolidated Statutes, of 'Rates and Taxes,' as is inconsistent with or repugnant to this act, and all Acts and parts of Acts so inconsistent or repugnant, be, and the same are hereby repealed, so far as relates to the County of Kent.

(X) Execution. KENT COUNTY, To-wit:

To any Constable in the County of Kent: Levy of the goods and chattels of A. B., within the County of Kent, a sum of which has been assessed upon him in the Parish of _____, also _____ for costs, the whole being besides 'costs' of levying this execution, and have the execution before me at my office on the _____ day of _____ next, (or instant), and for want of goods or chattels whereon to levy, take the said A. B. and to deliver him to the keeper of the gaol for the said County who is required to receive him and keep him safely _____ days, (together with one day for every forty cents of the expenses of taking and conveying such person to gaol, not in the whole to exceed forty days), unless the same, with costs, be sooner paid, and make return hereof at the day and place aforesaid.

Dated this _____ day of _____ A. D. 18 _____ E. F., Justice of the Peace.

GRIDER'S RIDE FOR LIFE Pursued by a Pack of Wolves, the Wisconsin Man Makes a Desperate Leap.

In one of the wildest portions of Wisconsin when it was a wild frontier state had settled the noted pioneer Hank Grider, a man whose wonderful endurance of limb is in a measure illustrated by this sketch.

One dark and rainy night of the year 1856 the brave pioneer, whose reckless nature had won for him the title of Wild Grider, and by which he was known far and wide, found himself some fifteen miles from home on the Kananook river, swollen and turbulent from the recent rain, between himself and his destination.

Wolves howled upon every hand, but he paid no particular attention to them, pressing steadily on in the drenching rain.

At length, however, he noticed that the grim scavengers of the forest were beginning to congregate in large numbers on the trail behind him, and drawing uncomfortably near, howling and snarling at one another as they came.

This served to give him a slight uneasiness of mind as he urged his horse forward.

Steadily the horde of wet, shaggy forms increased in number until it seemed that a thousand of them were crowding along the pioneer's track, making the night hideous with their babel of snarling voices.

How swiftly in pursuit came that writhing mass of now thoroughly enraged brutes, and though his horse was remarkably swift of foot he had to put forth every effort to keep out of their way, and there in the darkness of the Wisconsin wilderness ensued a desperate race for life and death.

The ground was fairly smooth, and this aided the desperate man somewhat, but he was compelled to use the spurs mercilessly to escape those clashing jaws.

Like the very wind he sped along, his only hope lay in reaching the river in advance of his fierce pursuers, for once across the turbulent current and he would be safe.

But fully five miles lay between him and the river, and it would indeed be a miracle to reach it; but wholly undaunted the reckless fellow sped on, his teeth closed firmly and his eyes gleaming with all the fire of his wild excitable nature.

Mile after mile was cast behind, and daylight was beginning to steal over the land when the swift and swollen Kakanook hove in sight.

The ground sloped toward it, and down this descent flew pursued and pursued with scarce six feet separating them.

For over five miles had that desperate race continued, and now, exhausted as he was by his superhuman speed Grider performed a feat that was simply marvelous and almost unparalleled.

The banks of the stream were high and projecting, and scarcely eight rods below the river fell over a mass of jagged rocks that no one could hope to pass over alive, while it would be impossible to effect a landing when once in the turbulent current.

With that horde of raging beasts close behind him, and the dangerous river below, and fully twenty-five feet between its banks, the brave pioneer was truly in a most desperate situation. But, scarcely realizing his danger, in his desperation and frenzy, he galloped down the slope, and, putting every effort of his horse's fast falling strength in one mighty leap, landed upon the other bank of the river.

The wolves were unable to check their headlong speed, and many of their number went over the bank and were swept away, while the exhausted steed sank trembling upon the ground.

Three hours later, however, he reached his cabin in safety, and in a few days had fully recovered from the effects of that terrible ride for life—about the most extraordinary one in the entire record of the west.

Grider's life was one of remarkable adventures, and now a man of superior endurance, although nearly sixty years of age. He resides at Moose lake, Minn., where his life is still a stirring and eventful one.—Yankee Blade.
