Mary Jane.

[From the London Figare.] I have thought of getting married When I've seen thee, Mary Jane, With thy dainty silks and satins, With thy petticoat and train; But a whisper comes across me, Like a sigh with omen rife,

"Ah! 'tis very well to marry, But oh! canst thou keep a wife?" If the last new bonnet suits thee, Canst thou wear it still the same,

Though a newer pattern tempt thee, Lately handed down to fame? Will a dress or two content thee, When stern fashion orders more, And a solitary headdress do,

Instead of half a score? But they tell me I am raving, To expect so strange a thing, And they laugh to scorn my musing, And the hopes to which I cling, So I fear I must resign thee, And a bachelor remain, Dufferin Co. Miracle.

Oh, too costly Mary Jane.

Yet I never can forget thee,

ERNEST DUKE'S GREAT PERIL AND WONDERFUL ESCAPE

Condition had Been Declared Hopeless by Three Doctors-An Interesting Narrative Given to a Post Reportor by the Boy's Mother

and Other Witnesses. [Dufferin Post, Orangeville.] The great Edmund Burke once exclaimed in a moment of sadness and despair that the age of chivalry was gone forever, and on every side of us we hear it remarked that the days of miracles are a part of the dim, superstitious and romantic past. We are not going to enter into a discussion on the merits of either statement. Much of the chivalry that we read of had a great deal of the wild and grotesque about it while not a little that was attributed to miraculous agencies was the work of men of talent and men of genius, wiser and greater than their generation, who bad explored and comprehended the treasures of Mother Nature within whose bosom is said to be locked a panacea for every ill of fallen flesh. A newspaper's chief mission is to faithfully and attractively record interesting current events and to make such comments and suggestions as it deems advisable, and it is this role that the Post is desiring to fill in this article. The neighboring township of Mono furnishes an instance of a remarkable cure, which in less enlightened times would undoubtedly have been credited to supernatural agencies, and which has even in this practical era created a genuine sensation. In a recent issue we gave the particulas of the restoration to physical strength and activity of George Hewitt, of Mono Mills, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which are now household words on this continent. Many who read the article on Mr. Hewitt might be disposed to doubt, but the least credulous were silenced and convinced by the striking evidence of the patient himself, evidence that was corroborated by several reliable persons who had an intimate knowledge of the facts. The fine banner township of Mono supplies equally striking and conclusive testimony of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as an effectual remedy where the physician's skill and knowledge have been utterly baffled. Men may be disposed to be skeptical, and to fancy that much that is said in praise of these pills is mere hyperbole, but it is hard to confront the logic of facts, and in this respect an enduring monument is fast being built in support of the merits and claims of of this greatest medical preparation of the century. Mr. William Duke, lot 1, concessione, Mono, is one of the best known and respected pioneers of this

When the representative of the Post called at his quiet and comfortable home, Mr. Duke was at a neighboring threshing, but the reporter was courteously received by dition of Ernest, the little boy who was had duly described as a simple remedy. reported to have been cured, and were somewhat nonplussed when told that he was at school. From our information as to his state of health last spring, we did not expect to find him able to leave the throng. We asked him if he was the boy house, and were not prepared for the news that he was once more strong enough to mix with the gamboling schoolboy throng. "Is Ernest the little boy who was so sick last winter and spring?" was our next interrogative. "He is, indeed," replied Mrs. Duke, "and to tell you the truth, we had at one time no hope that he would ever again be able to leave his the facts would think that he had so re-

"To what do you attribute the boy's recovery?" the reporter asked.

"Oh! to nothing but Dr. Williams'

Pink Pills," was the ready and emphatic response of Mrs. Duke, who is a very intelligent lady, and who then gave the interviewer the following interesting and well-nigh incredible narrative: "Last | Pink Pills. winter Ernest had the grippe, and he never seemed to fully recover from the Mr. Duke's neighbors, and found them effects of it. In February last, some time after he had the grippe, he was so unwell that we took him to Dr. Bonnar, of Mono Mills, who examined him and said that what was troubling him was a decaying tooth which required to be extracted. He pulled the tooth and said to take the boy home and he would be all right shortly. Instead of getting better however, Ernest got far worse, and was soon confined entirely to his bed. He failed in strength ticipated that our mission would be disand appetite, and was becoming more nervous every day. Sometimes he would get twitching and nervous fits, and shake so hard that he would frighten you. The shaking was so strong that the whole bed shook with him. We became alarmed that was flying rumor before conclusively and sent for a second doctor who prescribed for the boy, and who gave it his opinion that his recovery was impossible. At this time Ernest had lost the power of both legs and arms and they had to be tied down to ease the sufferer by lessening the nervous agtation. The second physician called in attended the boy some time, but the case was getting so bad, every day becoming more hopeless, that a third was sent for to consult. This last one said that there was no hope for poor Ernest and that all the trouble seemed to be in his nerves. I need not tell you how grieved we felt over the prospect of losing our boy, and would have tried anything to save his life. We had been reading in the post about the wonderful cures made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and often thought of trying them as we were told they would do no harm if they did no good. Nearly every week we read about miracles wrought by the pills, and one day we determined to ask the doctor if we might try them. 'Well,' he said, the boy can't get better and the pills are not likely to hasten his end. You can do as you like.' Shortly after we bought a box of the pills. This was in May last. Little Ernest had not been taking them two weeks when we noticed a wonderful change. We quit the doctor's medicine altogether, and kept using the pills only. The boy improved so rapidly that in short time he was able to be out of bed. One can hardly believe a story like this, but every bit of it is true. I tell you there is a wonderful charge in our boy and we ought to be thankful to Pink Pills. Ernest is growing stout and strong, and this is his first day at school. The doctor said he would be dead before the last Toronto exhibition. We have been buying the pills from Mr. Stevenson, one of the Orangeville druggists, and Ernest is still using them although not so often as at first. It would not be much out of your way to call at the school, and there you will find Ernest who will speak for him-

Just as Mrs. Duke was concluding her interesting narrative, the teacher of the school, Mr. Thomas E. Langford, who boards at Mr. Duke's entered the house. It was the dinner hour, and the reporter expected that Ernest would turn up, and save him a visit to the school. He was informed however that the boy had taken his lunch with him in the morning and would spend the dinner hour at play. Mr. Langford accompanied the reporter to the road and on the road the teacher said that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills could not be too widely known. "I have been boarding at Mr. Dukes all along," he said,

"Are you well now?" "Oh, yes, I am as well as ever again." "What cured you ?" "Pink Pills !" was the ready and smiling response. The little fellow certainly did appear to be in the full enjoyment of health, and no one who did not know cently been in such a feeble and precarious condition as to be despaired of by three local physicians of standing and experience. We shook hands with the boy and started for Orangeville fully convinced that there was a good deal in the stories we had been reading of miracles wrought through the use of Dr. Williams'

The reporter also intelewed several of all of one opinion. This was that his so would now be sleeping in the silent churchyard had it not been for the timely use of Pink Pills. He also learned that many others were using the pills with gratifying results, while many more had made up their minds since the miraculous saving of young Duke's life to try the great remedy for lesser ailments with which they were troubled. We had anappointing in some respects, never expecting to have the strange story which we had heard of Ernest Duke's recovery so fully substantiated, but here we were returning to Orangeville with everything established upon investigation. WHAT THE DRUGGISTS SAY. On 'arriving at Orangeville we determined to interviow the local druggists as to the popularity of the remedy that is working such wenders and causing such genuine sensations in many parts of the country. Mr. Thomas Stevenson was the first druggist interviewed. "Do you sell many of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?" we asked Mr. Stevenson. "I should think we did," was his prompt reply. "There is no remedy in my store for for which there is such a demand, and while the number we sell is very large, the sale is certainly increasing " "How do you account for this large sale !" we asked. "I believe it due entirely to the merits of the preparation. Those who use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills report the best results. The remedy is certainly a

Scarcely a day passed afford the dealer larger profit. that he did not hear of parties who were benefited by the use of Pink Pills.

Mr. J. R. Dodds was equally enthusiastic "If you call Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a patent medicine," said he, are the most popular and the best selling patent medicine in my store. The sale is undoubtedly on the increase, and I can say that scores who have bought from me are loud in their praises of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for them. They are certainly a great remedy, and my experience is that they effect all that is claimed for them."

Dr. Willi Pink Pills are a perfect blood bunder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as theumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, elecomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling resulting therefrom, the after effects of la grippe, 1852-Franklin Pierce, Democratic. diseases depending on humours in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions, and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work or excesses of any nature.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont. and Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50. Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in "and I tell you Ernest was in a bad state bulk or by the dozen or hundred, and any last spring. But civilized man, with his supply of bread and beef, is not necessarily a hunter, and it is just conceivable that he might be content to leave the animals in a newly discovered country unmolested and condescend, when not better employed, to watch their attitude towards himself, says the Popular Science Monthly. The impossible island in "The Swiss Family Robinson," in which half the animals of the two hemispheres were collected, would be an ideal place for such an experiment. But unfortunately uninhabited islands seldom contain more than a few species, and those generally only birds and sea beasts, and in newly discovered game regions, savage man has generally been before us with his arrow, spear and pitfall. Some instances of the first contact of animals with man have, however, been preserved in the accunts of the early voyages collected by Hakluyt and others, though the hungry navigators were generally more intent on victualing their ships with the unsuspecting birds and beasts or on noting those that would be useful commodities for "trafficke," than in cultivating friendly relations with the animal inhabitants of the newly dis-
