

JIM CAPTURED!

I had no fear arms on me, I decided to let him go for the present but resolved to shadow him so that I would be able to capture him at any time. Upon releasing his arms, we left the barn together and walked towards Welford on my way home. Upon reaching my gate I left him and went into my house and informed my wife of my suspicion, telling her that I was going to shadow him. I then left the house and went to Mr. Timpson's and informed him of the matter after which we both started to track the robber down. We followed the trail along the road and at last found that it turned into the woods. Thinking that the man could not remain long in there, as it was too wet, I went to the house of Mr. R. Clark and borrowed his revolver, and we both made another search through a number of old houses and barns but without success. Upon returning home after this search I met Messrs. Carroll and Wilbur, who stated that they wanted me to aid them in the capture of Jim, and asked me to repeat what happened in my barn in the morning. I told them the whole circumstances, and we immediately started out on the trail, we traced the foot prints along the road for some distance when we noticed that they turned off into the house of a man named Robert Carter. Carroll went into the house a few seconds afterwards I saw the two men, the prisoner and Carroll, come out the door in a crouch; Carroll was above and Jim was underneath. I ran to Carroll's assistance and put my foot on the prisoner's wrist. In his hand he held a revolver from which he fired a shot. We then handcuffed him and brought him to Welford where he was placed on the train for Moncton. On the way down he was very conversant speaking on several subjects, frequently referring to the murder. He asked if "Buck" had given him away and at one time pointing to myself he told the others near that he had a right to shoot me in the morning, as he ought to have known that I would track him down. He stated that he had been twelve nights in the woods without anything to eat except berries and a few dry crackers. He said he belonged to the West and acknowledged to firing four shots during the trouble at the Donnelly House, on August 1st. In conversation on the way down he said to me, "I suppose 'Buck' has given the whole thing away."

"JIM" TELLS HIS STORY.

Jim admitted that he was in company with Buck, on the night of the shooting at the Donnelly's. He states that after he left the house on the night in question he fired four shots from his revolver, which is 35 calibre, and then jumped the fence, and then ran through the field and up Telegraph street until I arrived at a railroad track which I followed west. I passed the Moncton station and took the St. John line walking all night, at day break I arrived within a mile or so of a town, and as I was intoxicated and considerably troubled as to the result of the shots fired on the previous night, I laid down in the woods and slept. I woke up towards noon and went out on the track and continued my tramp. I passed by a gang of section men who looked rather suspicious at me. I asked them if they had any water, whereon one of them handed me a tin can from which I took a drink; as I noticed them looking at me, I left the track and took the Pike road, and had not proceeded far before I met another man. We fell into a conversation on different subjects, and he at last spoke of the Moncton murder, stating that the country was all aflame and that there was no possibility for the accessory to the murder to get out of the country. This was the first I knew that any one had been killed. The stranger looked at me rather suspiciously, but I gave him a gag saying that I hoped the man would be caught and that I was sorry for the policeman. I then took the track, intending to stop in the woods, and passed a second gang of section men. After I had proceeded about a quarter of a mile, the section boss put the hand car on the track and came towards me, and as he passed asked me if I wanted a ride. I replied "No." I then stepped into the woods about nine miles from Moncton and stayed there for eight days and never came out at all. On Sunday night following the murder I retraced my footsteps to Moncton and passed through the upper end of the town, taking the north track which I followed all night. I did not have a bite to eat during the twelve days in question, other than berries that I picked in the woods; after walking up north all night towards morning about Canaan I passed a man milking cows, I bid him good morning and passed on. He walked after me and upon seeing him advancing I waited until he approached. We talked about the weather and several other subjects and at last he brought up the murder. I told him that I understood that the men were captured. We at last separated. I kept on towards Coal Branch. During my travel I talked with several persons, and although every one suspected that I was "Jim," no one had the spunk to attempt to arrest me, or retard my progress through the country. In regard to his capture he stated that he was in the house sitting near the stove, smoking and lulled into a sense of security, when I heard the little boy say there is someone coming. He informed me that it was some neighbor, making a friendly call and therefore I did not put myself on my guard. When Carroll entered the door he asked the man of the house if he had seen any person pass recently. I then became suspicious and grabbed my revolver, but before I could get it out, Carroll was upon me. I struggled considerably to get free or get the drop on my captor, but without success. On being asked how he shaved himself, he replied that upon going into the woods he put his revolver on the limb of a tree and used the nickle portion for a looking glass. In the morning the prisoner had whiskers in the afternoon when seen he was shaved. He gives Carroll great credit for the nerve he exhibited in his capture.

He will not tell anything personal about himself or Buck, and says that Jim Doe will suffice for his name at present.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Aug. 13.—A special circuit court for Westmorland to try Buck and Jim was ordered by the Government to-day to be held about the middle of September. The exact date to be named to-night. It is not known what judge will preside. The session of the Government will end to-night.

Dreadful Fall of a Pictou Girl.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 10.—There was a swish of skirts through the air, a half-articulate cry of fear, followed by a dreadful thud of a heavy falling body from number one elevator shaft in the Exchange building this morning. A dozen men rushed to the spot and peered in horror through the gratings. At the bottom of the shaft lay a young woman, bleeding senseless, in a ghastly heap. The fatal elevator had claimed one more victim. It was an accident of a peculiarly painful nature, and to-day that great human hive the Exchange building, 53 State Street, feels the hush of subdued horror. In the twinkling of an eye a young girl in the very plenitude of life was hurled to eternity. No one is to blame. It was sheer carelessness on the part of the victim. Her name was Miss Bella McKenzie, of Pictou, and she was employed as stenographer and typewriter in the office of stock broker James S. Warden, of room 521. She resided at three Joy st., but had no relatives here. She came from N. S., where here parents are living. Three girl chums are taking care of her affairs until relatives, who have been notified by telegraph, can arrive. Miss McKenzie was an estimable girl, cool and methodical in habit. It has been her custom to go to the office early and open up and sort the mail, and generally make ready for the day. She arrived at the building at 8.30 o'clock this morning, and entered the elevator nearest to the State street entrance. William Knith was the young man in charge. At the fifth floor, where Mr. Warden's office is, the car stopped and a man got off. Miss McKenzie was standing in a little group of passengers, and as she struggled forward Knith slid the door to and started the car upward. Miss McKenzie caught the door with one hand and tried to step off but the car had got under full headway. Her foot slipped and in an instant she had disappeared feet first through the space between the car step and the outer door, which is about two feet wide. With a scream she was precipitated past five floors and the la-ement, striking her head on the metal-sheathed bottom of the shaft. A crowd gathered in a few minutes about the basement and the big fireman on duty tenderly lifted the inert form. Her pulses were still beating but consciousness had departed, and soon even the feeble flutter of life ceased and she was dead. Miss McKenzie was a pretty girl of 24 years. She wore a blue skirt and light waist, the latter garment being splashed with her blood. Her skull was fearfully crushed by the tremendous fall.

In another column this week appears the card of Mr. J. Warren McDermott, of Harcourt, to the electors of Kent, consequent upon a vacancy caused by the death of the late lamented Dr. E. H. Legere. Mr. McDermott is the proprietor of the Eureka Hotel, one of the most popular and favorably known hostleries on the north shore of this province. Should he succeed as well in politics as in his present capacity Mr. McD. will prove the right man in the right place. As a native of the county, and one whose interests are with those of the electorate, having much at stake in commercial and other enterprises, of a greater or less extent; and, above all, without sins of omission or commission—politically speaking—to answer for, Mr. McDermott places himself strongly and fairly before, and occupies no mean position among the other candidates, who will, doubtless follow him.

Being conversant with the French language is, also, a matter of serious consideration in this electorate of mixed people who desire a square representative.—Com.

To the Electors of the County of Kent.

Gentlemen:—A vacancy having occurred in the representation of the County in the death of Dr. Legere, I beg to announce myself as a candidate to fill said vacancy. The interests of this County, of this Province, and of the Dominion at large, have been and will be subservient to the present dominant party.

I oppose monopolists, and all appertaining thereto; I claim, irrespective of nationality or creed, to be in a position to represent all. I feel that it is in duty bound for some one of our young men to present himself before this, his native County, and for this purpose, I, as a native of the County, having a large stake in its interests and welfare, place my name before you.

The electors of Kent, my interests are your interests, any increase in your taxes caused by the present dominant party are an increase in mine. In supporting me during this contest, you are supporting your friend, let him be rich or poor.
