Kent County S. S. Association.

The Kent County Sabbath School Association will be held in the Presbyterian church, Bass River, on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 20th and 21st, commencing at nine o'clock a. m. The following is a programme of the exercises:—

1. Who should teach in our Sabbath Schools? Rev. Wm. Hamilton.
2. How should the teachers prepare to teach? Rev. F. A. Wightman.
3. Our Provincial work in Organization, Education and Evangelization. Rev. A. Lucas, Field Secretary.
4. How to get and retain scholars in our Sabbath Schools. Rev. W. McLeod.
5. How many parents assist the teachers? Rev. Wm. Cameron.
6. The aims of the Sabbath Schools. Rev. N. McLaughlin.

This programme should be sufficient guarantee to the public of the high order of the convention. The interest which has been manifested in the past in our convention work not only assures the association that their work is a success, but it should assure all Sabbath School workers, and, indeed, all interested in Sabbath School work, that the County Convention is a treat which they cannot afford to miss.

The field secretary, Rev. A. Lucas, will visit the different Sabbath Schools in the county in the interests of the association work, and the promotion of Sabbath School interests generally. The following is a plan of the secretary's work in Kent County:—

- Sept. 16th, Smith's Corner, 3; Harcourt, 7.
- 17th, Kouchibouguac.
- 18th, Mill Creek, Kingston and Richibucto. Local arrangement.
- 15th, Mill Branch, 3; McWilliam's Corner, 7.
- 20th and 21st, Convention at Bass River.
- 22nd, Mollus River, 2; West Branch, 7.
- 23rd, Pine Ridge, 2; McLaughlin Road, 7.
- 24th, Coatesville, 3; Little River, 7.
- 25th, Mill Creek, Buctouche. Local arrangement.
- 26th, Cocagne, 7.

Pastors are requested to assist in forming local arrangement committees, that due announcement be made, and other necessary arrangements which would make the work of the secretary a success.

F. A. WIGHTMAN, Secretary.
Harcourt, August 28th, 1892.

The Fall River Tragedy.

The mysterious murder of Andrew J. Borden and his wife in Fall River on August 4th is still unsolved, and apparently as great a mystery as ever. The known facts of importance may be briefly summarized. The Borden family name is numerous and wealthy. It is said there are 1,000 Borden among the 60,000 people of Fall River, this name occupying several pages of the city directory. Andrew J. Borden was estimated to be worth half a million of dollars. He was a man of 70 years of age, living very quietly with his wife, two daughters, Emma and Lizzie, and a single servant. Mrs. Borden was a second wife to whom Mr. Borden had been married some 30 years. The two daughters were children of the first wife.

On the night previous to the murder one John V. Morse, a brother-in-law of Mr. Borden by his first marriage and uncle to the two daughters, stayed in the Borden house. Emma Borden has been for some weeks absent. Matters appear to have gone on much in the usual manner on the morning of the murder. Mr. Morse was the first to leave the house. Later Mr. Borden went out, returning shortly before 11 o'clock. All the persons known to be in the house at that time were Mr. and Mrs. Borden, Lizzie and the servant, Bridget. Within a quarter of an hour after, Lizzie called to the servant in an excited manner that her father was killed, and the servant ran out to summon assistance. Those who came found Mr. Borden dead on a sofa in the sitting room, and a little later Mrs. Borden was found dead in the spare room up stairs. Both had been killed, apparently with an axe or hatchet, in the most brutal manner, their heads being literally chopped to pieces. The post mortem examination revealed 18 distinct wounds on the head of Mr. Borden and 14 on the head and body of Mrs. Borden. The latter had been killed probably an hour before her husband, as was shown by the medical testimony.

As is well known, the daughter, Lizzie Borden, is charged with the crime. The seemingly incredible theory of the state is that in a very brief space of time she performed this double butchery, washed the axe and concealed it in the cellar, got rid of all traces of blood from her clothes and person and then gave the alarm. A large portion of the general public refuse to believe this possible, much less probable. Lizzie Borden was known to her friends and acquaintances as a quiet cultured and refined young woman. She was religious, too, and thought to be a worthy, active member of the Congregationalist church. There is an entire absence of any unusual motive for so unnatural a crime on her part. The most that can be said is that she would come a little sooner into possession of her share of her father's estate if he were dead.

But the state can find no other to accuse. So far no reliable testimony can be obtained of any person entering or leaving the Borden house shortly before or after the murder. Nor can any motive be found for any person outside the house having entered it to commit the crime. No robbery or other crime was attempted. Mr. Morse's time is so satisfactorily accounted for that he is not even suspected. Hence the suspicion that one of the two women who were about the house at the time of the murder, and the only persons known to be there, committed the deed. Neither one of them appears to accuse or suspect the other. Neither of them appears to have heard any unusual sound about the house during the time the terrible butchery was enacted.

During the morning down to very nearly the time of the murder Lizzie Borden was ironing in the kitchen, and Bridget Sullivan, the servant, was washing windows inside and outside. Both saw Mr. Borden after he returned to the house. He laid himself down upon the sofa, and had apparently gone to sleep before he was murdered. One or two suspicious circumstances are relied upon by the prosecution against Lizzie Borden. It is affirmed that some days previous she had made an effort to purchase prussic acid at a drug store. Bridget Sullivan in her evidence tells that on the morning of the murder Lizzie told her that Mrs. Borden had gone out to see a sick friend from whom she had received a note, but no trace can be found of this note or of any friend of Mrs. Borden's who had sent one. These are, so far, the main incriminating stories, though others have been conjured up and disproved.

The time of the murder, the frenzied manner in which it was done, the weapon used, the absence of motive, the previous high character of Lizzie Borden, her affection for her father and her demeanor since being accused, all tend to raise a belief in her innocence. If guilty, she was probably insane at the time the deed was done, but there seems nothing in her life before or after the crime to give indications of insanity. What seems at this distance most probable is that some cunning murderous monomaniac entered the Borden house on the morning of 4th August, committed the frenzied deed and fled without being perceived.

Although the state was so positive that Lizzie murdered her parents with the claw hatchet found as to have it so stated in the warrant, Prof. Wood finds that the supposed blood stains were merely rust spots; that of the two hairs on it, one came from an animal, probably a cow, and that the other had disappeared in transit. The case against Lizzie has thus far been made up largely of suspicious circumstances, which might, in the opinion of many, warrant an accusation, but never a conviction.

The evidence of Engineer Davidson, who heard two men in a passenger car at Jersey City talk about a friend of theirs having committed the Borden murder, is unavailable just at present, but may be used later on. When Professor Wood said he had found no traces of poison in the stomachs of the murdered couple the prisoner's cold, pale gray eyes lighted up most wonderfully, and she bent down and spoke to Emma.

No blood on the dress, nor on the shoes, and no blood on the axe!

What a change came over the suspected woman. For the first time since the hearing began, she saw light coming out of the darkness which has enveloped her. The chain of evidence which held her was breaking. She drank in every word the witness said, and quite naturally, too.

He whom it was supposed would give the most important testimony against her could not do so. Analytical science could not lie; there was no incriminating evidence.

And as the professor stepped from the stand Lizzie Borden breathed the greatest sigh of relief that has come to her since her incarceration.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 1.—In the Borden case this afternoon, attorney Jennings and district attorney Knowlton, finished their arguments, and the judge ordered Lizzie Borden to be remanded to the county goal for trial at the November term.
