—Mrs. J. Seller desires to express through THE REVIEW her thanks to the kind friends in Richibucto, who presented, on the eve of her departure, the following expressions of good will, accompanied by several gifts:—"Please except this small token of our appreciation of your untiring zeal in the Sabbath school and choir, and as an expression of our love and esteem toward you. May your endeavors be as successful in your new field of labor and our prayers and best wishes will attend you."
—We go to press too early to give the result of the races this week.

Red-Headed Actress.
Mrs. Kendal's hair is a reddish blonde by day and as smooth as she is herself, says Dunlop's Stage News. Kate Claxton's hair is a chestnut red. Maria Burroughs has soft, dark brown hair and Annie Russell pale blonde hair, just the length of her shoulders. Fanny Davenport's hair looks pretty at night, but in daylight it looks a harsh yellow. Clara Morris, they say, has scanty red hair, but she always uses a wig. Modjeska has very dark hair, but she uses a blonde wig. Julia Marlowe's hair is a rich brown. Grace Filkins a Rubens red. Mrs. Leslie Carter's hair is a little beyond auburn, with enough of it to hide herself if her Parisian gownmaker failed to be on time.

Isabelle Coe has wavy, brown hair and Sarah Bernhardt's hair is a short crinkle of red. May Yohe has dark brown hair and Lillian Russell's golden hair—all her own—is as soft as silk. Rose Coghlan has brown hair. Isabelle Urquhart has dark brown hair in great quantities. Georgia Drew's hair is dyed blonde, and so, they whisper, is Ada Rehan's. Della Fox has short hair, dark yellow. Marie Jansen's hair is dark brown. Nellie McHenry has soft, brown hair, and likes blonde wigs on the stage. Minnie Maddern has an abundance of beautiful red hair. Maggie Mitchell's hair is a crinkly reddish brown. Lotta's hair is bright red, and she never crosses the field if the bull is within a mile. Helen Dauray's hair is sleek, black and heavy. Johnstone Bennett's hair is lightish brown, with an inclination to curl if it wasn't shingled.

President Harrison is not easily disconcerted on state occasions, but when Hassan Ben Ali, the World's fair commissioner from Morocco, in an interview at the White House prostrated himself in true oriental style and refused to rise until the president had left the room, General Harrison hardly knew how to deal with his visitor.
