GAMBLING.

The publication of the annual financial statement of the gambling casino at Monte Carlo shows the profits of the institution for the season of 1891-92 to have been no less than $5,700,000, an increase of half a million dollars over the previous season. Monte Carlo is the fashionable gambling resort of Europe, and enjoys a license from the prince of Monaco. Men and women, mostly of the upper classes, congregate there from all parts of Europe, each eager to risk a portion of his or her means in the hope of making a "pull" on the golden stores of the bank. The figures above given sufficiently attest to the folly of these people, and yet their publication appears to have no effect on the crowds that assemble there every season, intent on the same doubtful undertaking. The rush of people to Monte Carlo is as great, if not greater, than ever, and the profits of the institutions are yearly increasing. Sometimes a murder or suicide, caused by a quarrel or loss at the tables, interrupts the regular order of business, and leaves a disagreeable impression on the public mind, but these little incidents are soon forgotten. While we cannot, on this side of the Atlantic, boast of such a high toned resort as Monte Carlo, it must not be concluded that gambling is not openly practised in Canada and the United States. The Louisiana State Lottery has been for years scooping in millions from all parts of the North American continent. It is difficult to ascertain what proportion of its receipts is divided among its prize-winners, but when a company is in a position to offer to assume the public debt of the State of Louisiana and pay an annual license fee of over a million dollars besides, it is safe to assert that its income is much greater than that derived from the Monte Carlo gambling tables. The province of Quebec boasts of several regular lotteries, one of which claims to be doing business under a license from the provincial government. But the amount, stupendous as it appears, yearly paid into these regular gambling institutions, is but a fraction of the amount which yearly changes hands in the various private gambling transactions that are every day taking place. Mr. Labonchere, who is said to be an authority on this subject, says the losses at Monte Carlo are but a trifle compared with the losses on the English turf. He has not informed us how much is yearly lost and won over baccarat tables, but if the disclosures made in the Gordon-Cumming affair are any guide to us in getting at the figures, the amount is not small. While Americans and Canadians have not generally been initiated into the mysteries of baccarat, they are able to enjoy themselves over a quiet game of draw poker, and to loose as much money on the turf as their English neighbors can. In fact they are rather ahead of Europeans in the matter of gambling.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

It was intimated that a successor to Sir Leonard Tilley, lieutenant governor of New Brunswick would be appointed at the same time the new governor of Ontario received his appointment. The vacant position in Ontario has, however, been filled and Sir Leonard still remains at the head of the executive of this province and will probably remain there for some time yet. It is said that the government strongly favors the appointment of Sir John C. Allen, chief justice, but his appointment would leave a vacancy on the supreme court bench and that is where the trouble arises. The Roman Catholics have no representative on the bench of this province and Mr. Burns and the other Catholic representatives from New Brunswick at Ottawa are demanding that the governorship or in the event of the chief justice receiving the appointment, then the vacant seat on the bench be given to a Roman Catholic. It is no secret that Mr. Burns would be quite willing to accept the governorship himself, and, as matters at present stand, he is undoubtedly a strong candidate. Judge Landry who made such a determined effort to secure the seat on the bench given to Judge Hanington, has not yet abandoned all hope of promotion, and his name is mentioned in connection with both positions. While his national ity and religion greatly strengthen his claims, he seems in some way to have incurred the hostility of a number of his co-religionists in this province and this no doubt will prove a very serious obstacle in the way of his promotion. Mr. Temple,

M. P. for York, is not without friends and they are strongly advocating his claims to the governorship. He resigned a lucrative position several years ago to become the government standard bearer in York, and has since in three successive contests carried that constituency for the Conservatives. In doing so he has sacrificed a great deal of time and no doubt a considerable amount of money and he now naturally looks for something in the shape of a reward from his party. As he is not a lawyer a position on the bench is not open to him and his only hope is the governorship or a seat in the Senate. Mr. E. McLeod, M. P. for the city of St. John, will make a vigorous fight to capture the next vacant judgeship, and Dr. Barker, ex-M. P. for the city is after the same thing. Dr. Parker was defeated at the general election in 1887 and no doubt feels that that fact alone entitles him to the position. Then again Judge Palmer is said to be slightly dissatisfied with his position as judge in equity and is quite willing to exchange it for that of governor or chief justice, while the many friends of Judge King throughout the province feel that he should be made chief justice in case Chief Justice Allen is appointed to the governorship. This is the position of affairs and these are the difficulties the government will have to meet in the matter. Those who are in a position to know say the promotion of Sir John C. Allen to the governorship has been decided on by the government but what action it will take in regard to the vacancies on the bench is still a matter of doubt.

HARRISON RE-NOMINATED.

The convention of the Republican party to nominate a candidate for the presidency has met and adjourned and President Harrison is again the nominee of his party. There was if we may believe the reports from Minneapolis a great deal of wire pulling, a great deal of bribery and a great deal of ill-feeling exhibited in the proceedings but the first ballot showed the delegates to be overwhelmingly in favor of giving the President a second term. Mr. Harrison is by no means the ablest man in his party. Both Blaine and McKinley are head and shoulders above the president in this respect. Neither is he the most popular man in his party. Ex-speaker Reed voiced the feelings of a large number when he characterized him as "a man three quarters water and very cold water at that." Owing to a series of circumstances however he has succeeded in securing a renomination over the heads of much better and more popular men. There is no doubt, public sympathy throughout the republic was strongly in favor of Mr. Blaine. A few months ago his was the only name spoken of among Republicans in connection with the presidency. He, however, wrote a letter to the party managers distinctly refusing to allow his name to go before the convention. The different state convention accepted this decision as final and instructed their delegates for Harrison. As the time for holding the convention approached several anti-Harrison members of the national committee again began to boom Blaine and it is said induced him to give a qualified assent to the use of his name before the convention. The result was that Mr. Blaine was balloted for and defeated. The principal cause of his defeat was no doubt his refusal in the beginning of the campaign to accept a nomination. A great many of the delegates whose sympathies were strongly in his favor were compelled by their instructions to vote against him. Apart from this there was a general feeling that it would be unfair to Harrison to desert him when he had been induced to seek a renomination only after Blaine had voluntarily retired from the fight. Then again Mr. Blaine's ill health and the unsavory political records of some of his strongest supporters in the convention very much weakened his chances of success. Mr. Blaine possesses in the highest degree the confidence of his party, yet he has been singularly unfortunate in his efforts to reach the presidency. His name has been before every Republican convention since 1867. In the convention of that year and again in 1880 he narrowly escaped nomination. In 1884 he was almost the unanimous choice of his party, but he was defeated at the polls by Mr. Cleveland the Democratic candidate. In 1888 he refused to allow his name to go before the convention. Mr. Harrison has now before him the greater task of securing his election. If the last congressional elections are any indication of the drift of public feeling in the United States, it is safe to say the next president will not be a Republican.

Molus River Notes.

A very malignant type of measles has been very prevalent here, the families of W. H. Warman, Stephen Ward, Richard Warman, Peter Graham, John Miller, John Graham and a great many others have been afflicted, there is happily no fatal ending to the malady, and the sick are in a fair way to recovery. Mr. Miller's drive has not all come out or nearly all the cedar being held up. The prospects of a good crop are most excellent, and the amount of ground seeded is the largest ever known in this section. Our school is again thriving with Miss Maggie Graham as teacher. PANSY.
