MOROCCO'S TREASURE HOUSE.

Boarding Gold and Silver Under Ground With 300 Black Soldiers to Guard Them.

Morocco has a famous treasure house which, although not so important as it was once, still contains a large part of the Sultan's accumulations from the heavy taxes imposed on his people. There are at present three sub-treasures where a considerable part of the country's revenue is kept. The chief repository, however, and the only one which is well known, is at Miknas, on the road between Fex and the city of Morocco.

In the course of time an immense amount of money has been kept in that strongly guarded receptacle. The treasure is in the form of gold and silver, a good deal of it coined and a great deal in the form of bar metal.

Morocco is not a very expensive Government to carry on, although burdened with heavy taxes. The Sultan's outgo is chiefly for the expenses of his court, for the payment of his pension roll, which amounts to a considerable sum, for theological schools, for the entertainment of his guests, and for his army, which, however, is not a heavy drain on the treasury.

The officers of the State cost the Government comparatively little, for they are expected, in their own provinces, to bleed the people for their personal advantage, and they live right up to their privileges. Very little is expended for streets, roads, bridges, prisons, and other things which cost most governments a great deal of money. The Sultan hoards a large part of the sums he receives from taxes to add to his personal fortune and to pay the expenses of war, should he be so unlucky as to become involved in trouble with his European friends. The debt he owes Spain on account of the unpleasantness between that country and his own years ago is not paid yet, although the sum is being diminished rapidly, as Spain takes one-half of the total customs duties collected at Moroccan ports.

Nobody knows how great a sum of money is held in the treasure boxes. Morocco has a population of about 8,000,000, and although most of them are very poor, the tax gatherers contrive to squeeze a good deal of money out of them. Miknas has been the royal treasury for some centuries. The treasury building is a short distance outside of the city. Its stone walls are very high and thick. To get inside these walls one has to pass through three great iron doors. If thieves could get inside all these doors they might not be able to secure the treasure. The interior is a long narrow hall, as dark as pitch, which is the passageway to an iron trap door, abundantly supplied with locks, which is let into the stone flooring, and leads to an underground apartment, where the treasure is kept in a large room called the treasure chamber. The building is guarded constantly by 300 negro slaves, who are part of the Sultan's army, and are never permitted to leave the neighborhood.

The treasure house is opened only once a year. At that time the Sultan either comes in person or sends one of his most trusted officials. The purposes, usually, is not to take any treasure away, but to add to the hoard, because the Sultan retains from the taxes a sufficient sum to meet all the expenses of his court and government. As a rule, therefore, unless the Sultan has an unusually unpleasant time with the Berbers, who are in rebellion often, and determined, apparently, to make the Sultan's life a burden to him, the accumulations in the treasury are not diminished.

The sub-treasures, which have existed within the past few years only, are at Fez, the city of Morocco, and in the oasis of Tafilet, south of the Atlas Mountains, among the Filali people. The shrewd Sultan, in hiding part of his treasure in the desert of Sahara, is providing, undoubtedly, for the possibility that he may be compelled to leave his throne and seek safety in flight some day. He proposes, if that unhappy event occurs, to have money enough for a rainy day in a region that is not accessible easily. It is said that the treasure kept in the oasis is very much larger than the amount deposited in the other sub-treasures, and that the Sultan has been considering seriously the advisability of carting off most of the money he keeps at Miknas to Tafilet. Miknas is on the road to the city of Morocco, and should the Sultan be involved in war with an invading European power it is likely that one of its first enterprises would be to get possession of the treasure house at Miknas. The soldier slaves who guard the house are called the black guard. A great many fables and rumors about this treasure house have been recorded, but the foregoing facts are unexaggerated, and very little more is known actually about the treasure.

After the Grip
And after typhoid fever, diphtheria, pneumonia, or other prostrating diseases, Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed to restore the strength and vigor so much desired, and to expel all poison from the blood. It has had wonderful success in many such cases.

Hood's Pills act especially upon the liver, rousing it from torpidity to its natural duties, cure constipation and assist digestion.

He Cut Out His Tongue.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 18.—One of the greatest mysteries of this city has been that of the tongueless man, which has just been solved. Last November a priestly looking man hired a room at the lodging house at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway. One morning he was found in his room, blood issuing from his mouth and a bloody razor in his hand. On examination it was found that he had cut his tongue out with the razor. Bloody tracks to the door out in the hall and the bathroom indicated that he had been there. Search showed that he had thrown his tongue down the drain pipe. After his wound healed he disappeared. He was thought to have been a Catholic priest. It now turns out that his name is George Wilson. He was garbed as a priest, but he is a professional gambler. His family is wealthy and live in New York. His father has just died and left an estate of $150,000, $50,000 of which was left to him. The estate cannot be settled up till George has been found and detectives from New York are now in the city looking for him. They state that George has been the black sheep of the family. This statement suggested that the man's act of cutting out his tongue was prompted by remorse.

The Blood is the Life.

Good health without pure blood is simply impossible, and to secure pure blood is therefore absolutely necessary, especially in spring, when bad blood is very prevalent. Burdock Blood Bitters is the remedy, without an equal in the world of medicine. It drives out all poisonous humours of the blood from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

There is more snow on the ground in Picton county than has been at any one time during the last seventeen years.

Ten Reasons

For the Wonderful Success of Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Most Popular and Most Extensively Sold Medicine in America.

- 1 Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses great medicinal merit, which it positively demonstrates when fairly tried.
- 2 It is most economical, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" can truly be said.
- 3 It is prepared by a Combination, Proportion and Process Peculiar to itself, unknown to other preparations, and by which all the medicinal value of the various ingredients is secured.
- 4 It effects remarkable cures where other medicines have utterly failed to do any good whatever.
- 5 It is a modern medicine, originated by experienced pharmacists, and still carefully prepared under their personal supervision.
- 6 It is clean, clear and beautiful in appearance, pleasant to take, and always of equal strength.
- 7 It has proven itself to be positively the best remedy for scrofula and all blood disorders, and the best tonic for that tired feeling, loss of appetite and general debility.
- 8 It is unequalled for curing dyspepsia, sick headache, biliousness, catarrh, rheumatism and all diseases of the kidneys and liver.
- 9 It has a good name at home, there being more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, Mass., where it is made, than of all other sarsaparillas and blood purifiers combined.
- 10 Its advertising is unique, original, honest, and thoroughly backed up by the medicine itself.

A Point for You.

If you want a blood purifier or strengthening medicine, you should get the best. Ask for Hood's Sarsaparilla, and insist upon having it. Do not let any argument or persuasion influence you to buy what you do not want. Be sure to get the ideal medicine.
