"Carpe Diem."
What are the tears—the sorrow of years. In the light of the joys of today? The form of dull care is as thistle in air, That laughter can chase away.

And tho' the grim clouds hang o'er us, like shrouds Enfold the fair crown of Hope, Thro' some rift will gleam a light that will seem Like a beacon as blindly we grope.

Bid defiance to woe, let time fairly flow; And grieve not when grief is not near, For soon, ah! too soon, the splendor of noon Is dimmed into shadows so drear.

Drink without measure of innocent pleasure, Let the world and its worry go by; For soon life will grieve you—youth speedily leave you, And its mirth without warning will fly.

Household Hints.

After the juice is squeezed from lemons the peels are useful to rub brass with; dip in common salt, then brush with dry bath brick.

Bags can be made from all sorts of odds and ends for work, scraps, combings, shopping, etc. A laundry bag is of brown linen and has on it the word "Laundry," outlined in gold silk. Yellow ribbons are used to draw it up by. Drawn work is a pretty decoration for these bags.

Wash zinc in a strong solution of warm water and wash soda, or ammonia and soap; afterwards, rub thoroughly with a woolen cloth saturated with kerosene.

When you polish your stove, shave as much hard soap as you use of the polish, boil together in a little water and apply.

The following is recommended for bleaching cotton goods:—To five pounds of cloth, take twelve ounces of chloride of lime, dissolve in a small quantity of boiling water, and when cold strain off into sufficient warm water to immerse the goods. First boil the goods in strong sud-wring out and rinse. Put the cloth in the above solution, let it remain ten or fifteen minutes, frequently stirring; and rinse till clean.

Chandeliers and picture frames, if rubbed occasionally with oil of lavender, will not be injured by flies.

Sweeping heavy velvet carpets with salt, cleans and keeps them from moths, as particles of salt remain in the carpet and corners. Salt is not hurtful, and has no disagreeable odor.

By rubbing with a flannel dipped in whitening, the brown discolorations may be taken off cups which have been used for baking.

In making custards, pumpkin or lemon pie, it is better to partly bake the crust before adding the mixture, that it may not be absorbed by the paste.

A travelling case of brown linen bound with ribbon, which has pockets or place for comb, brush, pins, and other necessary toilet articles, can be made very pretty with little trouble. The pockets to slip the different articles in are feather-stitched with silk.

In some hospitals, almost the only gargle used for the throat is hot salt water.

Grained woods should be washed with cold tea, and then, after being rubbed dry rubbed with linseed oil.

Kerosene will take iron rust and fruit stains from almost every kind of goods, without injuring the fabric. Wash the soiled spot in kerosene as you would in water. The spots must be washed in the kerosene before they have been put into soap and water, or it will do no good.

A sack of the best salt standing where there is a smell of fish or any objectionable odor, will absorb the flavor.

A dainty button bag is of orange silk, lined with pale blue pongee. A casing is run up the top, and silk cord is drawn in for closing the bag. A small diamond-shaped piece of celluloid, notched at the edges, is fastened at one side with tiny bows of ribbon, and on this is painted in gilt letters "Buttons."

Soiled bottles may be cleaned with eggshells, sand, or common coarse salt.

The small, dark checks in crockery are caused by cleansing in too hot water.

Set pearls which have become discolored by wear may often be improved by placing in a covered vessel with a mixture of ammonia, whitening, and hot water, and permitting them to remain a few hours.

With a little care all stale bread can be utilized. All the odds and ends of crusts should be spread evenly on a pan, and allowed to dry in a warm oven. When quite dry, put them in a small bag made of ticking or canvas, and pound them until fine. Sift and put them into empty fruit cans. They will keep a long time; and are useful for breading meats, croquettes, omelettes, and making dressing for fowls.

"How delicious is the winning Of a kiss, at love's beginning," sings the poet, and his sentiment is true with one possible exception. If either party has the catarrh, even love's kiss loses its sweetness. Dr. Sage's Catarrh remedy is a sure cure for this repulsive and distressing affliction. By its mild, soothing, antiseptic, cleansing and healing properties it cures the worst cases. $500 reward offered for an incurable case.

It may be old, but Johnson's Anodyne Liniment retains the vigor of youth. Long may it live.

"The Prodigal Daughter."
From our first recollection we have always heard a great deal of talk about the return of the prodigal son. We have heard that tender and instructive parable read many times in churches, and heard many eloquent sermons preached from the same, yet we cannot remember of a single instance either in sacred or profane history, where a hurrah was made over the return of a prodigal daughter.

Many girls have wandered away from home, fallen into dissipation and bad ways and have occasionally become so heart sick they have braved a father's wrath and the contumacious reproach and scorn of their female acquaintances, and sick and tired of life, have returned to the home of their youth and innocence to die. We have never heard, however, of an instance where her father saw her afar off and ran forth to meet her, ordered the finest apparel brought forth, the fatted calf killed, and the neighbors invited to rejoice over her return.

On the contrary, in the cases we ever heard of, she has quietly slipped in the back way and the matter kept as quiet as possible. Instead of making it a matter of public rejoicing, the prodigal daughter was made to take a back seat. Her acquaintances, who met the prodigal son with a hearty handshake and wreath of smiles upon his return, seem afraid to come near her, and generally gather their dress skirts as she passes by.

Why is this distinction? We find no fault with the grand instructive parable, nor with those who preach from it. We think the old gentleman did right. But the same principle should apply to women.

While laboring day after day to reclaim fallen men, we should not neglect to give erring women a chance to reform. While we make a hero of a reformed man, we should at least extend the hand of friendship to reformed women, and once more give them the right to earn a respectable living, free from the reproach and contempt of society.

Public sentiment should be educated to regard women's crimes the same as it regards those of men. Society should be impressed with the fact that both are equally guilty, and one entitled to forgiveness as well as the other.—National Weekly.

Girl's Fight With a Wildcat.

NORTH LYME, CONN., Feb. 18.—Charles Cables and Miss Almira Dossett were returning from religious services in the Canby District school house last Sunday night. The road for a short distance ran through a swamp and had a dense growth of brush on both sides. The moon shone brightly and the young pair were going along leisurely when they were startled by a peculiar whining noise from a cluster of alders and the next instant Miss Dossett was knocked down by a wildcat that sprang upon her back from a tree.

Cables kicked the animal in the side and knocked it into the gutter, but it was at him instantly and set its teeth and claws into his leg. Cables is a powerful man, and grasping the cat with both hands he tore it away from his leg and dashed it to the ground. The beast landed on its feet and flew at the man with redoubled fury. The cat began chewing his right arm, while with its claws it tore his overcoat.

The man struck his heel against a clog of frozen mud and fell on his back. Half a dozen times he tore the animal away from his throat and as many times it returned to the battle. Cables was growing weak from loss of blood, when Miss Dossett with a heavy piece of fence post hammered the cat and drew the attack upon herself. Cables fainted and the girl fought the animal with all her might, and was able to keep beyond its reach except when the animal once or twice tore her cloak with its claws.

For fifteen minutes she wielded the club with good effect, and then the cat showed signs of weakness. The girl rained blows upon the animal until, maimed and whining, it attempted to crawl into the brush, but Miss Dossett followed and killed it. The cat, a male, was not as large as some that have been killed in this locality this season. Cables is still confined to his bed, from the effects of his wounds.

An Egyptian Curiosity.

In July, 1881, there were discovered in the ancient city of Thebes the mummies of Egypt's mightiest Pharaohs, among them that of Rameses the Great. There were also found seals, coins, statuettes, preserved food, and a few rolls of papyrus some of the latter being of great value, curiously bound together, and, notwithstanding the mould and mildew of ages upon them, as easily read as if written yesterday. A queer little book entitled "A Night with Rameses II.," has been executed so cleverly, that the oxidized seal, suggestive of mould, antique coloring, and partially decayed and ragged-edged papyrus carry at once to the mind the possession of a veritable relic from the dawn of civilization. Mailed to any address on receipt of 6c. in stamps, by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Women who suffer from physical and nervous debility find great help in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It produces the rapid effect of a stimulant, without reaction—the result being a permanent increase of strength and vigor, both of mind and body.

EXCELLENCE.

RHEUMATISM.—Mr. WM. HOWES, 68 Red Lion St., High Holborn, W. C., London, Eng., states he had rheumatism 20 years; suffered intensely from swelling of hands, feet and joints. He used St. Jacobs Oil with marvelous results. Before the second bottle was exhausted the pain left him. He is cured.

NEURALGIA.—Mrs. JOHN McLEAN, Barrie Island, Ont., March 4, 1889, says: "I suffered severely with neuralgia for nine years and have been greatly benefited by the use of St. Jacobs Oil."

SCIATICA.—Grenada, Kans., U. S. A., Aug. 8, 1888, "I suffered eight years with sciatica; used five bottles of St. Jacobs Oil and was permanently cured."

STRAIN.—Mr. M. PRICE, 14 Tabernacle Square, E. C., London, Eng., says: "I strained my wrist and the severe pain yielded like magic to St. Jacobs Oil."

LAMEBACK.—Mrs. J. RINGLAND, Kincaid St., Brockville, Ont., writes: "I was confined to bed by severe lumbago. A part of a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil enabled me to go about in a day."
