ANOTHER HERESY TRIAL.

Those who have been taught to look upon the Bible as a perfect revelation of God to man, infallible in its teachings and without error, have received a succession of shocks within the last month. Closely following the trial of Dr. Briggs and his expulsion from the Presbyterian ministry of the United States for heresy in expressing doubts as to the authenticity and inspiration of the Scriptures, comes the declaration of Rev. John Campbell, professor of church history in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, denying in toto the doctrine that the Bible is infallible either in the Old Testament or in the new. The writers of the different books, he asserts, were more or less influenced by the conditions surrounding them. He endeavors to show that God cannot be anything but a loving, forgiving, beneficent Father, and that the description of God given in the Old Testament wherever he is painted as arbitrary and revengful is opposed to the teachings of the New Testament and contrary to the dictates of human reason. The New Testament, he declares, is in direct conflict with the old in this respect, and he accounts for the difference by advancing the theory that the old writers were influenced in their ideas of the Deity by their oriental surroundings, looking upon God as they would on an absolute all-powerful monarch. He argues as follows:—We find (in the old testament) God tempting Abraham to commit murder, and David to number Israel in order to his people's destruction; sending lying spirits forth to deceive, and commanding Hosea to sin filthily. Then James the Just meets us (in the new testament) and reproves the thought in the words, "God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth He any man." Which are we to believe? The Psalmist curses his enemies, and sacred writers speak of the curse of God, but Paul, speaking for Jesus, says, "Bless and curse not." The Old Testament God commanded the extirpation of Amalek and the slaughter of the Canaanites, and slew the first born of Egypt, but in the new, He is revealed to give life, while he that has the power of death is the devil. In the Old Testament, it is in vain God says, "I am the Lord that healeth thee," for He sends plague and pestilence on Egyptian, Israelite and Assyrian, while in the new Christ comes to destroy the works of the devil which are of the same nature. And again, "Be ye perfect," said Christ, "even as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect; He broke every law He ever made. In short, says Prof. Campbell, if we accept the Old Testament as infallibly inspired in every word: "The moral difficulties of the Old Testament in view of Christ's teaching are insurmountable." The case of Professor Campbell came up before the Presbyterian General Assembly at Eramford, Ontario, last week, and it was resolved to refer it to the Montreal Presbytery to take action in the matter. It is probable the trial will be no less interesting than the famous Dr. Briggs case which evoked so much discussion a few weeks ago.

expect him to fight the school battle, did think he would at least be honest in the House when questioned by Pitts, and the other party is justly indignant over the displacement of Sheriff Doucet, who was a good man and well qualified for the position. He has also to answer for not dividing the parish of New Brandon. He cannot be blamed for being good to his supporters, for in nearly every case he supported the petitions of those opposed to him in his election. All the excitement now is over the hearing at Bathurst, where any impartial reader of the evidence will see Mr. Thompson and Mr. Sellar in their true colors as honest, upright, fearless, impartial Christian ministers, who did no more than their duty in the question, and did that regardless of the consequence to themselves. Business is dull this summer. Mr. John H. McGill, was here from Boston and started his Grindstone quarry, and is away home again leaving the business in charge of C. H. Greeley of Augusta, Maine. J. W. Lowe, and family, have left for Ohio, Mr. N. C. Read is expected here in his place. They have already loaded two schooners with Grindstone for Montreal. The quarries are turning out large quantities of Grindstone and Sythestones. A trial will easily prove their superiority over any other in the market. Their trade mark is Bay Chaleur Blue Grit, with a red centre. The lobster fishing is finished here for this season, and fishermen generally feel satisfied with the catch. Since the beginning of the year a number of our old men have passed away. The last has been Mr. John Dempsey, who has been for about ten years Treasurer of the Agricultural Society here.

Acadiaville. JUNE 16th.—The farmers and done with their farming, and have great hopes for a good crop this fall. Mr. Chappell intends setting up his saw-mill in two different places in this parish this summer. Several thousand logs were hauled for him last winter. A number of peddlers is buying eggs in the parish. They have head-quarters in the different places. We are glad to record the visit of Mr. G. Smith, school inspector, to our schools. This is the first visit paid them by an inspector for three years. It was rumored that a few of our leading men proposed removing our school house, but the trustees were assured by the inspector, that no change would be made. Messrs. D. Vantour and C. Daigle have several bear traps set in the woods. One day last week, on visiting them, they found a large bear. Bruin was promptly despatched, and the trap set for another. Dr. Bourque of Richibucto, removed a tumor from Mr. Calixte Daigle's eye. Under the doctor's skillful treatment the operation was a success. Since the fine weather set in, the number of children attending school has greatly increased, and Miss S. Babineau, our teacher, is kept pretty busy. Mr. G. Mazerolle is giving up his saw-mill and taking up a farm in lower St. Louis. Potatoes are in great demand. They are sold at 50c. a bushel. NOVUS HOMO.

The people of Kent, Liberals and Conservatives alike, were surprised to learn from the St. John Telegraph a few days ago that a Liberal Convention had been held in Buctouche and delegates elected to attend the meeting of the party at Ottawa. It is probable the majority of the delegates selected learned for the first time through the columns of the Telegraph of the honor done them. By whom was the meeting called? Where was it held? and who were in attendance? are questions that prominent members of the party have been asking without receiving a satisfactory answer. The number of Liberals in this county is by no means small, and a properly called Convention would have been well attended. Why, then, was it necessary for two or three self-styled leaders of the party to meet informally and assume the role of party bosses without consulting the members of the party throughout the county?
