Editor Review:

SIR—The process of inebriation has three distinct stages. In the first the victim is jocularly insulting, in the second violently abusive, and in the third, he reaches the stage of maudlin sentiment in which he talks of love, honesty and religion till closing his eyes in a stupor he charges all his friends to meet him in heaven. The first communication of D. D. D. in your valuable paper showed him in the first stage of the malady, his second, in which he throws off such epithets as goose, skunk, egotist, etc., shows him in the second, and he will reach the third when he gets the decision of the judges in his coming race with the owners of Apollo. Habits are bands of iron and they dominate both mind and body.

While C. C. C. certainly was not at all surprised to find that D. D. D. exhibited those symptoms, he did express surprise that he should so far forget all the laws of propriety, gentlemanly conduct and common honesty as to procure a letter by false representation and publish it without asking for an explanation or giving warning to those about to be assailed. The man who strikes another without telling him to look out for himself is a treacherous coward; and this is just what D. D. D. has done. He wrote Dr. Lewis saying that Simpson had published that he had a colt from his mare by Aurora. Now, Simpson or no one else ever said such a word, and the facts are that the Dr. Lewis D. D. D. communicated to know nothing of either Simpson or the horse. Then he publishes this letter to prove the owners of Apollo guilty of fraud. It is rarely in deed that the common rowdy of the street would descend to such treachery and malice, and make such a wanton and unprovoked attack in a matter in which he had no concern except to puff his dead stallion Kingston. Now, what has D. D. D. accomplished by all this flurly? He has not given a single line of proof to show that the horse Apollo is no. by Aurora out of the Lewis mare, and that she was not a blood mare and a famous one at that. These facts are too well known to be doubted; and as Apollo has been weighed and measured and examined by those far more competent to do so than D. D. D., the claims that he is 16½ hands high, is a 1200 lbs. horse and a model of style, strength and beauty is unchallenged by anyone knowing what a horse is. D. D. D. claims that Kingston beat Micky Free and got first prize over Apollo. But he does not say that Micky Free was not in condition, and that the only one of the judges having any knowledge of horses was most pronounced in his opinion that Kingston had no claims to a prize at all. We know something of the way prizes are given in Kingston Society, and so does the general public, in which a man selects his own friends to judge his exhibit and sometimes does so himself. The opinion of the one man who had opportunity to know and had made a study of the matter to some degree was of much more value than that of the two others who were not only prejudiced against the horse but had not sufficient data to be competent judges in such a case. However, the public have settled the question. They have declined to patronize Kingston and do patronize Apollo, and here is the test and the trouble with D. D. D.

D. D. D. wasted a lot of legion on your misprint of 0 to 0 for 0 to 6; at the same time he proved my figures as to his stud book correct, as he enumerated all his colts of this season.

But it was C. C. C. that D. D. D. was after, and the desire to injure the owners of Apollo only a secondary matter—so we gather from his letter; and all because C. C. C. had a controversy some years ago with the Grits of Kent. Well, C. C. C. was, and is, a Conservative, and he always fights on deck. He does not draw a salary from the Dominion government and then stab them in the back. He would not like D. D. D. on the occasion of the controversy referred to write letters as purporting to have been written by Mr. McInerney and think it a good joke to have C. C. C. as he expressed it, fly at McInerney. This might have been a joke in D. D. D.'s opinion but the one to whom he boasted of the matter did not hesitate to tell him his opinion of that kind of joking. The boy who would strike from behind another was in the youth of the writer called a sneak; what a man claiming to be a gentleman should be called who did the same the writer will not say. Oh! but C. C. C. was guilty of believing that the Acadians were our fellow countrymen and were entitled to all the rights we as Britains claim for ourselves; that they are on a perfect equality both as to race, culture and intelligence with even the descendants of Sir Cavan O'Dougherty. A serious crime no doubt, but still one shared by the leading men of English extraction all over Canada and England. The tale or tail of the skunk was a most bewildering, blinding, sorrowful and horrible affair. Nothing like it, of course, was ever told before. It, however, explains the peculiarly offensive odor that always offends the nose whenever D. D. D. is handy. The public always thought that this arose from another cause, but this odor is, of course, made worse by the effluvia of the skunk.

Rub him and scrub him
And do as you will,
The scent of the skunk
Will adhere to him still.

The writer trusts that D. D. D. is not so lost to the sense of value attached to honest worth as to confound his valuable four footed companion with the wretched little two legged thing that he occasionally uses to do his dirty work—"soiled labor"—as the dude puts it. Oh! no, no! ten times no! Don't for a moment name them together. The four footed colts is a useful animal.

It is no doubt wrong in C. C. C. to write for the press; and it is quite evident D. D. D. knows but little of the matter, as he uses the first personal pronoun and breaks the fundamental rules of English syntax with blissful unconsciousness. The writer will set D. D. D. an example of candor and honesty by accepting his version of the calf story, although members of the Society tell a different tale. All the same D. D. D. had better not inquire too closely into the manufacture of a pedigree for a standard-bred colt. Of what use is a pedigree unless it produces a horse to match it. And if D. D. D. would study the works of such men as Prof. Haeckel and keep away from the company of two legged colts, he might be able in time to express an opinion worth attention on at least some matter. Now, as D. D. D. began his last letter by quoting the words of the writer in his reply, he will give him a form for the beginning of another one. He may say as follows and do so with truth, which he did not do before, as he well knows that he forced this discussion on the stallions into this paper against the opinion of C. C. C., who thought, and still thinks, it out of place. Now this is the form for D. D. D. Having made a most malicious and uncalculated attack on the owners of the stallion Apollo and on C. C. C., and having failed to prove a single point presented by me, I now withdraw all I asserted and tender a most ample apology to those assailed; and further, I will promise for the future to keep good company, never undertake to write anything while intoxicated, get up at least some time in the forenoon everyday, and cease desecrating the Sabbath. Now, if D. D. D. does this he will be following only in the steps of his friends of the W. C. T. U., who, when they found that the decent public opinion of Moncton so strongly sustained C. C. C., and that the electors had by their votes done the same thing, apologized to the gentleman they had so causelessly assailed.

A little girl was listening to the doctor telling how he found the new baby behind the barn, and after he had concluded his wonderful narrative she crept close to her grandmother and whispered: "Oh, grandma, I thought he knew all about it and he doesn't know nothing. Is not the doctor a silly man, grandma?" and so says C. C. C.

P. S.—I see that in this hurried letter I forgot to say that you made a mistake in fixing the value of the scrub I offered to beat Kingston at $160.00. The figures were $60.00, only. It doesn't take a horse worth $160.00 to beat Kingston, any $50.00 scrub can do that. He is not asked to buy at all unless the scrub beats him in three straight heats, or distances him. Now with this explanation let D. D. D. put up his money.

Bordering on Consumption.

When a cold is neglected it frequently develops a condition bordering on consumption. No other remedy will so quickly relieve and cure cases of this dangerous kind as Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, because no other remedy possesses such perfect curative powers as does this price of pectoral remedies.

It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. For sale by W. W. Short, druggist, agent for Kent Co. *

The Yott Case.

KINGSTON, May 22nd.—The big ferry steamer "Pierpont" has carried many a visitor to Wolfe Island recently to interview Mr. L. Yott, a farmer of that island whose wonderful cure by Dodd's kidney pills was recently published in these columns.

The publication of so many marvellous cures had already excited much interest in this community, and now that we have proof of what has been said of this remedy at our very doors it is talked of on all sides. Mr. Yott's case was one that had excited the pity and anxiety of everyone for many years, and now that he is well and strong the people are not only much gratified with the result but interested in the incontestable proof that Dodd's kidney pills certainly strike right at the seat of the diseases for which they are recommended and are certain in their results.

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I bought one bottle of South American Nerve, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." A trial bottle will convince you. For sale by W. W. Short, druggist, agent for Kent Co. *

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.
